II. AND be it further enacted, that no person under the age of eighteen years shall be employed in any such mill or factory in such description of work as aforesaid more than twelve hours in any one day, nor more than sixty-nine hours in any one week, except as herein-after provided. Persons under 18 not to work more than 12 hours a day, &c.

[III.] PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that if at any time in any such mill, manufactory, or buildings situated upon any stream of water, time shall be lost in consequence of the want of a due supply or of an excess of water, or by reason of its being impounded in higher reservoirs, then and in every such case and so often as the same shall happen, it shall be lawful for the occupier of any such mill, manufactory, or building to extend the time of labour in this Act prescribed at the rate of three hours per week, until such lost time shall have been made good, but no longer, such time to be worked between the hours of five of the clock in the morning and nine of the clock in the evening: Provided also, that no time shall be recoverable after it has been lost six calendar months.

the heirs of the person who shall thereby have conveyed the same land, such person shall be considered to have acquired the same as a purchaser by virtue of such assurance, and shall not be considered to be entitled thereto as his former estate or part thereof.

IV. AND be it further enacted, that when any person shall have acquired any land by purchase under a limitation to the heirs or to the heirs of the body of any of his ancestors, contained in an assurance executed after the said thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three, or under a limitation to the heirs or to the heirs of the body of any of his ancestors, or under any limitation having the same effect contained in a will of any testator who shall depart this life after the said thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three, then and in any of such cases such land shall descend and the descent thereof shall be traced as if the ancestor named in such limitation had been the purchaser of such land.

Where heirs take by purchase under limitations to the heirs of their ancestor, the land shall descend as if the ancestor had been the purchaser.

V.. AND be it further enacted, that no brother or sister shall be considered to inherit immediately from his or her brother or sister, but every descent from a brother or sister shall be traced through the parent.

Brothers, &c. shall trace descent through their parent.

VI. AND be it further enacted, that every lineal ancestor shall be capable of being heir to any of his issue; and in every case where there shall be no issue of the purchaser, his nearest lineal ancestor shall be his heir in preference to any person who would have been entitled to inherit, either by tracing his descent through such lineal ancestor or in consequence of there being no descendant of such lineal ancestor, so that the father shall be preferred to a brother or sister, and a more remote lineal ancestor to any of his issue, other than a nearer lineal ancestor or his issue.

Lineal ancestor shall be heir in preference to collateral persons claiming through him.

VII. AND be it further enacted and declared, that none of the maternal ancestors of the person from whom the descent is to be traced, nor any of their descendants, shall be capable of inheriting until all his paternal ancestors and their descendants shall have failed; and also that no female paternal ancestor of such person, nor any of her descendants, shall be capable of inheriting until all his male paternal ancestors and their descendants shall have failed; and that no female maternal ancestor of such person, nor any of her descendants shall be capable of inheriting until all his male maternal ancestors and their descendants shall have failed.

After the death of a person attainted, his descendants may inherit.

X. AND be it further enacted, that when the person from whom the descent of any land is to be traced shall have had any relation who, having been attainted, shall have died before such descent shall have taken place, then such attainder shall not prevent any person from inheriting such land who would have been capable of inheriting the same by tracing his descent through such relation, if he had not been attainted, unless such land shall have escheated in consequence of such attainder before the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four.

Act not to extend to any descent before 1st Jan. 1834.

XI. AND be it further enacted, that this Act shall not extend to any descent which shall take place on the death of any person who shall die before the said first day of January one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four.

Limitations made before 1st Jan. 1834, to the heirs of a person then living, shall take effect as if the Act had not been made.

XII. AND be it further enacted, that where any assurance executed before the said first day of January one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, or the will of any person who shall die before the same first day of January one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, shall contain any limitation or gift to the heir or heirs of any person, under which the person or persons answering the description of heir shall be entitled to an estate by purchase, then the person or persons who would have answered such description of heir if this Act had not been made shall become entitled by virtue of such limitation or gift, whether the person named as ancestor shall or shall not be living on or after the said first day of January one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four.

Recited provisions of 36 Geo. 3. c. 88. repealed as to certain markets.

CHAPTER XXII.

AN ACT to amend an Act of the Eleventh Year of King George the Second, respecting the Apportionment of Rents, Annuities, and other periodical Payments. [16th June 1834.]

Recital of 11 Geo. 2. c. 19.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the eleventh year of the reign of his Majesty King George the Second, intituled "An Act for the more effectual securing the payment of rents, and preventing frauds by tenants," it was enacted, that where any tenant for life should happen to die before or on the day on which any rent was reserved or made payable upon any demise or lease of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments which determined on the death of such tenant for life, the executors or administrators of such tenant for life should and might, in an action on the case, recover of and from such undertenant or undertenants of such lands, tenements, or hereditaments, if such tenant for life die on the day on which the same was made payable the whole, or if before such day then a proportion of such rent according to the time such tenant for life lived of the last year or quarter of a year or other time in which the said rent was growing due as aforesaid, making all just allowances, or a proportionable part thereof respectively: And whereas doubts have been entertained whether the provisions of the said Act apply to every case in which the interests of tenants determine on the death of the person by whom such interests have been created, and on the death of any life or lives for which such person was entitled to the lands demised, although every such case is within the mischief intended to have been remedied and prevented by the said Act; and it is therefore desirable that such doubts should be removed by a declaratory law: And whereas, by law, rents, annuities, and other payments due at fixed or stated periods are not apportionable (unless express provision be made for the purpose), from which it often happens that persons (and their representatives), whose income is wholly or principally derived from these sources, by the determination thereof before the period of payment arrives are deprived of means to satisfy just demands, and other evils arise from such rents, annuities, and other payments not being apportionable, which evils require remedy: Be it therefore enacted and declared by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that rents reserved and made payable on any demise or lease of lands, tenements, or hereditaments which have been and shall be made, and which leases or demises determined or shall determine on the death of the person making the same (although such person was not strictly tenant for life thereof), or on the death of the life or lives for which such person was entitled to such hereditaments, shall, so far as respects the rents reserved by such leases, and the recovery of a proportion thereof by the person granting the same, his or her executors or administrators (as the case may be), be considered as within the provisions of the said recited Act.

Rents reserved on leases determining on the death of the person making them (though not strictly tenant for life), &c. shall be considered as within the provisions of recited Act.

[II.*] AND be it further enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act all rents service reserved on any lease by a tenant in fee or for any life interest, or by any lease granted under any power (and which leases shall have been granted after the passing of this Act), and all rents charge and other rents, annuities, pensions, dividends, moduses, compositions, and all other payments of every description, in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, made payable or coming due at fixed periods under any instrument that shall be executed after the passing of this Act, or (being a will or testamentary instrument) that shall come into operation after the passing of this Act, shall be apportioned so and in such manner that on the death of any person interested in any such rents, annuities, pensions, dividends, moduses, compositions, or other payments as aforesaid, or in the estate, fund, office, or benefice, from or in respect of which the same shall be issuing or derived, or on the determination by any other means whatsoever of the interest of any such person, he or she, and his or her executors, administrators, or assigns, shall be entitled to a proportion of such rents, annuities, pensions, dividends, moduses, compositions, and other payments, according to the time which shall have elapsed from the commencement or last period of payment thereof respectively (as the case may be), including the day of the death of such person, or of the determination of his or her interest, all just allowances and deductions in respect of charges on such rents, annuities, pensions, dividends, moduses, compositions, and other payments being made; and that every such person, his or her executors, administrators, and assigns, shall have such and the same remedies at law and in equity for recovering such apportioned parts of the said rents, annuities, pensions, dividends, moduses, compositions, and other payments, when the entire portion of which such apportioned parts shall form part shall become due and payable, and not before, as he, she, or they would have had for recovering and obtaining such entire rents, annuities, pensions, dividends, moduses, compositions, and other payments if entitled thereto; but so that persons liable to pay rents reserved by any lease or demise, and the lands, tenements, and hereditaments comprised therein, shall not be resorted to for such apportioned parts specifically as aforesaid, but the entire rents of which such portions shall form a part shall be received and recovered by the person or persons who if this Act had not passed would have been entitled to such entire rents; and such portions shall be recoverable from such person or persons by the parties entitled to the same under this Act in any action or suit at law or in equity.

All rents, annuities, and other payments coming due at fixed periods shall be apportioned;

Act not to apply where the contrary is stipulated, nor to annual sums payable on policies of assurance.

[III.] PROVIDED always, and be it enacted, that the provisions herein contained shall not apply to any case in which it shall be expressly stipulated that no apportionment shall take place, or to annual sums made payable in policies of assurance of any description.

AN ACT to alter, amend, and consolidate the Laws for regulating the Pensions, Compensations, and Allowances to be made to Persons in respect of their having held Civil Offices in His Majesty's Service. [25th July 1834.]

57 Geo. 3. c. 65.

6 Geo. 4. c. 90.

Pensions to the first lord of the Treasury, secretaries of state, chancellor of the Exchequer,

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the fifty-seventh year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Third, to enable his Majesty to recompense the services of persons holding or who have held certain high and efficient civil offices, his Majesty is empowered to grant pensions, as therein provided, to persons who shall have served his Majesty, his heirs or successors, in the offices therein mentioned: And whereas by an Act passed in the sixth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Fourth, for amending the said recited Act, it is enacted, that the several other offices therein particularly described shall be deemed to be comprised in the several classes of offices in the said recited Act respectively specified: And whereas it is expedient that the amount of the pensions by the said two Acts authorized to be granted should as to future pensions be reduced, and the conditions under which the same shall be granted be altered and regulated: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from and after the passing of this Act no pension to be granted to any person in respect of his having served in any one or more of the offices of first lord of the Treasury, or of one of his Majesty's principal secretaries of state, or chancellor of the Exchequer, or first lord of the Admiralty, or president of the board of commissioners for the affairs of India, or president of the committee of council appointed for the consideration of matters relating to trade and foreign plantations, shall exceed the sum of two thousand pounds per annum; nor shall any such pension be granted to any person unless he shall have held one or more of the said offices for a period of not less than two years in the whole, either uninterruptedly or at different times; nor shall any more or greater number than four such pensions hereafter to be granted be existing or in force at the same time. [Rep., with savings, 32 & 33 Vict. c. 60. s. 9.]

II. AND be it further enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act no pension to be granted to any person in respect of his having served in either or both of the offices of chief secretary for Ireland or secretary at war shall exceed the sum of one thousand four hundred pounds per annum; nor shall any such pension be granted to any person unless he shall have held one or both of the said offices for a period of not less than five years in the whole, either uninterruptedly or at different times; nor shall any more or greater number than two such last-mentioned pensions be existing or in force at the same time. [Rep., with savings, 32 & 33 Vict. c. 60. s. 9.]

III. AND be it further enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act no pension to be granted to any person in respect of his having served in any one or more of the offices of one of the joint secretaries of the Treasury, or first secretary of the Admiralty, or vice president of the committee of commissioners appointed for the consideration of matters relating to trade and foreign plantations, shall exceed the sum of twelve hundred pounds per annum; nor shall any such pension be granted to any person unless he shall have held one or more of the said offices for a period of not less than five years in the whole, either uninterruptedly or at different times; nor shall any more or greater number than four such last-mentioned pensions be existing or in force at the same time. [Rep., with savings, 32 & 33 Vict. c. 60. s. 9.]

IV. AND be it further enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act the pension, not exceeding one thousand pounds, authorized by the said recited Act to be granted to any person in respect of his having served in any one or more of the offices of one of the under secretaries of state, or clerk of the ordnance, or second secretary of the Admiralty, or one of the secretaries of the board of commissioners for the affairs of India, shall not be granted to any such person unless he shall have held one or more of the said offices for a period of not less than ten years in the whole, either uninterruptedly or at different times; nor shall any more or greater number than six such last-mentioned pensions be existing or in force at the same time. [Rep., with savings, 32 & 33 Vict. c. 60. s. 9.]

V. PROVIDED always, and be it enacted, that in case it shall happen that any person shall have served his Majesty, his heirs or successors, in more than one class of offices herein-before specified, in respect whereof any pension less than two thousand pounds may be granted, it shall be lawful to grant, under the regulations aforesaid, to such person, any pension annexed to the highest class of office in which such person may have been employed, whenever the whole period of the service of such person in the several offices in which he shall have been employed shall amount to ten years, although the period of the service of such person in such highest class shall not have extended to the period of five years: Provided always, that such person shall have served in such highest class for the period of not less than three years; and in cases in which the service of any such person in any class of those offices shall not be sufficient to entitle him to the pension of that class, it shall be lawful to grant him a pension not exceeding one thousand pounds, provided the period of his aggregate services in that and any inferior class or classes or department of the public service shall amount to ten years: Provided also, that there shall not be more than the aforesaid number of pensions to that amount existing at the same time. [Rep., with savings, 32 & 33 Vict. c. 60. s. 9.]

VI. AND whereas the principle of the regulations for granting allowances of this nature is and ought to be founded on a consideration, not only of the services performed by the individual to the state, but of the inadequacy of his private fortune to maintain his station in life: Be it therefore enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act, whenever any person shall seek to obtain any one of the pensions before mentioned, his application for that purpose shall be made in writing to the commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury, to which he shall subscribe his name, and which shall contain not only a statement of the services performed by him, and the grounds on which such pension is claimed, but a specific declaration that the amount hereby empowered to try persons so committed at the general quarter sessions of the peace held for such county, riding, or division, or at any adjournment thereof.

II. AND whereas the justices of the peace acting in and for certain boroughs and franchises in that part of the said United Kingdom called England have jurisdiction at the general sessions of the peace held in and for such borough or franchise to hear and determine divers felonies, and it is expedient that any such justice or justices should have power in certain cases to commit for trial, at the general quarter sessions of the peace for the county, riding, division, or shire in which such borough or franchise may be situate, any person charged with felony which the said justices are not authorized or empowered to hear and determine at the general sessions of the peace held in and for such borough or franchise: Be it therefore enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act it shall and may be lawful to and for a justice or for justices of the peace acting in any of the said last-mentioned boroughs or franchises to commit to the gaol of the county, riding, division, or shire in which such borough or franchise may be situate, to be tried at the general quarter sessions of the peace in and for such county, riding, division, or shire, any person charged with a felony which the said court of quarter sessions may have jurisdiction to try, and to the trial of which the jurisdiction of the justices of such borough or franchise at the general sessions of the peace in and for such borough or franchise does not extend; and the justices of the peace acting in and for such last-mentioned county, riding, division, or shire are hereby authorized and empowered to try any such person so committed as last aforesaid at the general quarter sessions of the peace held in and for such county, riding, division, or shire.

Justices of boroughs, &c. may commit for trial at the county quarter sessions persons charged with felonies triable at the county quarter sessions, but to which the jurisdiction of the borough justices does not extend.

In places having a recorder and a fit prison, the magistrates shall commit for trial at the quarter sessions of such places persons charged with felonies, &c. which if committed in the county would have been triable at the county quarter sessions.

III. AND be it further enacted, that in all such towns or franchises which have a recorder and a prison fit for the confinement of prisoners the magistrates of such town or franchise shall commit to the prison of such town all persons charged with having committed within such town or franchise any felony or misdemeanor which might, if the same had been committed out of such town or franchise and within the body of any county, have been tried by the justices of quarter sessions of such county; and the court of quarter sessions of such town or franchise shall have the same authority to inquire of, hear, determine, and punish any persons charged with such felonies or misdemeanors as the courts of quarter sessions of counties have; which quarter sessions the justices for such town or franchise are hereby required to hold.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

AN ACT to give Costs in Actions of Quare impedit.

[30th July 1834.]

WHEREAS the delay and expence of recovering advowsons, and the rights of patronage and presentation to ecclesiastical benefices by actions of quare impedit, are much increased by reason of the defendants in such actions not being liable for the payment of costs, and the true patrons are thereby frequently deterred from the prosecution of their just rights; and it is also expedient to afford further protection to incumbents of advowsons from vexatious and unfounded proceedings to disturb them in the enjoyment thereof: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that in all writs and actions of quare impedit issued or brought from and after the passing of this Act in England, Wales, or Ireland, where a verdict shall pass or be given for the plaintiff or plaintiffs in any such writ or action, the plaintiff or plaintiffs in every such writ or action, in addition to the damages to which he or they is or are by law now entitled, shall also have judgment to recover his or their full costs and charges against the defendant or defendants therein, to be assessed, taxed, and levied in such manner and form as costs in personal actions are now by law assessed, taxed, and levied; and where in any such writ or action the plaintiff or plaintiffs therein shall discontinue, or be nonsuited, or a verdict shall be had against him or them, that then the defendant or defendants in every such writ or action shall have judgment to recover his or their full costs and charges against the plaintiff or plaintiffs therein, to be assessed, taxed, and levied in manner aforesaid: Provided always,

Plaintiffs may recover costs in actions of quare impedit.

If plaintiff is nonsuited, &c. defendant to have judgment for his costs.

No costs against ecclesiastical persons where it is certified that they had probable cause
for defending.

that no judgment for costs shall be had against any archbishop, bishop, or other ecclesiastical patron or incumbent, if the judge who shall try the cause, or if there shall be no trial by a jury, the court in which judgment shall be given, shall certify that such archbishop, bishop, or other ecclesiastical patron or incumbent had probable cause for defending such action; but in no case when the defence to any such action shall be grounded upon a presentation or presentations, collation or collations, previously made to any benefice, shall such presentation or presentations, collation or collations, be deemed or considered probable cause for defending such action.

AN ACT for preventing the Interference of the Spring Assizes with the April Quarter Sessions.

[13th August 1834.]

11 Geo. 4. &
1 Will. 4. c. 70.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the first year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled "An Act for the more effectual administration of justice in England and Wales," it is directed, that the justices of the peace in every county, riding, or division for which quarter sessions of the peace ought by law to be held shall hold their general quarter sessions of the peace (among other times) in the first week after the twenty-eighth day of December and in the first week after the thirty-first day of March: And whereas in some counties of England and Wales the time usually fixed for holding the spring assizes interferes with the due holding of the last-mentioned quarter sessions; and although the justices of the peace have authority to hold general sessions of the peace at other times of the year besides those specified in the said recited Act, such sessions are not quarter sessions within the intent of various Acts of Parliament which give jurisdiction to justices of the peace in their quarter sessions or in their general quarter sessions; and for the purpose of preventing the inconvenience arising from such interference as aforesaid it is expedient to allow to the justices of the peace a discretion as to the time of holding their general quarter sessions, which they are now required to hold in the week next after the thirty-first day of March: Be it therefore declared and enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that in every county, riding, or division for which general quarter sessions ought to be held, it shall be lawful for the justices assembled in their general quarter sessions in the week next after the twenty-eighth day of December in every year to name (if they shall see occasion so to do) two justices of the peace who shall be empowered, as soon as may be after the time for holding the spring assizes shall be appointed, to fix the day for holding the next general quarter sessions of the peace for such county, riding, or division, so as such time shall not be earlier than the seventh day of March nor later than the twenty-second day of April, and to give notice of the day so fixed by advertisement in such newspapers as shall be directed by the justices so assembled; and in every such case the general quarter sessions held on the day so fixed and notified shall be valid, and it shall not be necessary to hold any sessions of the peace for such county, riding, or division in the week next after the the thirty-first day of March, any thing in the said recited Act to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided always, that in every county, riding, and division where no other day shall be fixed in the manner herein-before mentioned, the justices of the peace shall hold their general quarter sessions of the peace in the week next after the thirty-first day of March, as by the said recited Act they are required.

Justices at epiphany sessions may name two of their body to fix the day for holding the next general quarter sessions.

XXII. AND be it further enacted, that where in any case any information for the recovery of any penalty incurred, or the condemnation of any goods, commodities, articles, or things forfeited, under any law or laws relating to the revenue of excise, shall by order of the commissioners of excise be exhibited before the commissioners of excise, or before any justice or justices of the peace, and the officer of excise by whom or in whose name such information shall be or shall have been exhibited shall die, or be removed or discharged, or at the time of hearing may be absent, such information shall not, by such death, removal, or discharge, or by the absence of such officer, abate or be diminished, but all the proceedings on such information shall be continued and may be proceeded on by any other officer of excise in the name of the officer by whom the same shall have been exhibited ; and the said commissioners of excise and the justices shall, on the day named and appointed in the summons to be issued in that behalf, proceed to hear and determine the matter of such information, and shall examine all such witnesses as shall be tendered to them for examination by any officer of excise in support of such information, notwithstanding such death, removal, or discharge, or the absence of the officer of excise by whom or in whose name such information shall be or shall have been exhibited; and all the proceedings on such information, and all proceedings for recovery of any penalty awarded thereon, or for the arrest and imprisonment of any defendant for nonpayment of such penalty, or for condemnation of any goods, commodities, articles, or things, shall be good, valid, and effectual.

Provisions as to appeal to quarter sessions against judgments given by justices of the peace on informations exhibited to them.

XXIV. AND whereas by the said recited Act commissioners of appeal and justices at the quarter sessions shall not at the hearing of any appeal examine any evidence or witness or witnesses other than or different from the evidence and the witness or witnesses which and who shall have been before examined before the commissioners of excise or justices of the peace respectively at the trial and hearing of the information upon which the original judgment appealed against shall have been given, and great inconvenience has been experienced by justices deciding on alleged defects in informations, and dismissing the same without any examination of witnesses, whereby the remedy of appeal hath been lost: Be it further enacted, that where the commissioners of excise or justices of the peace respectively before whom any information shall be exhibited shall dismiss such information without examination of witnesses, or shall refuse to examine any witness produced on the hearing of any information, the several witnesses refused to be examined shall be tendered to the said commissioners or justices respectively for examination on the part of the informer or defendant, as the case may be, and the said commissioners or justices respectively shall, on ascertaining the witnesses so tendered for examination to be present, cause their names to be taken down in writing, and shall transmit the same, with the information and judgment, to the commissioners of appeal or quarter sessions respectively; and the several witnesses so tendered for examination, and whose names shall be so transmitted, shall on the hearing of the appeal be examined in the case, although not examined before the commissioners or justices on the original hearing and judgment.

XXVII. AND be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for the commissioners of excise, or any three or more of them, within the limits of the chief office of excise, and for any two or more justices of the peace in any other part of the United Kingdom, within whose jurisdiction respectively any person chargeable with or liable to the payment of any duty of excise shall have been charged with or paid such duty, upon complaint to them respectively made by any person or persons of any overcharge made by any officer of excise, or of any over-payment made by any such person, within twelve calendar months next after the making of such over-charge or over-payment, and also in any case in which by any Act of Parliament relating to the revenue of excise any persons shall be entitled to any return of any duty of excise paid by or on behalf of such person, upon the like complaint by such person within the time in that behalf respectively limited by law for exhibiting such complaint, and such commissioners and justices are hereby respectively authorized and required, in every such case, to hear, adjudge, and determine such complaints, and to examine the witness or witnesses upon oath who shall be thereupon produced as well on behalf of the person making complaint as on behalf of his Majesty and of all parties therein concerned, and shall thereupon, by warrant under their hands, discharge or acquit the complainant of so much of such over-charge or over-payment as shall be made out and proved before such commissioners of excise or justices of the peace respectively to have been over-charged or over-paid, or wrongly paid, or shall order such amount of duty as the party shall appear to be entitled to have returned to him to be returned and paid; and if any person in whose favour any such judgment shall be given shall before acquittal of any over-charge have paid any money for or in respect of such over-charge, and in case of any over-payment or order to return any duty of excise to a return of which the party may be entitled, the commissioners of excise shall and they are hereby required, upon such acquittal or order as aforesaid, to repay to such person or persons out of the public monies in their hands or at their discretion to allow out of the next duties becoming payable by such person or persons, so much money as shall be specified in such judgment or order as over-charged, over-paid, or wrongly paid, or to be returned, anything in any Act or Acts to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided always, that no such complaint shall be heard before the said commissioners of excise unless the same shall be entered by or on behalf of the complainants in a book to be kept for that purpose in the office of the solicitor of excise at the chief office of excise, stating the particulars thereof, and the name and place of residence or place of business of such complainant; and upon every such complaint being so entered, not less than six days notice shall be given by the commissioners of excise of the time and place by them appointed for the hearing of such complaint; and if such complainant shall not appear at the time and place appointed for the hearing of any such complaint, it shall be lawful for the said commissioners, or any three or more of them, to dismiss such complaint, upon proof of such notice of the time and place appointed for the hearing of such complaint having been given to such complainant or left at the place mentioned in such complaint book as aforesaid as the place of residence or place of business of such complainant; and no such complaint shall be heard before any justice of the peace unless a notice in writing of the time and place of hearing thereof shall be given to the collector of excise in whose collection or to the supervisor of excise in whose district the subject matter of complaint shall have arisen eight days at least before the time appointed for the hearing of such complaint, which notice shall contain and set forth the exact sum which is complained of as being an over-charge, and the date when the charge was made on which such over-charge is said to have arisen, or the exact sum complained of as being an over-payment, and the date when such over-payment was made, or the exact amount of duty claimed to be allowed or returned, and on what account, as the case may be; and in every case respectively the ground of complaint of such over-charge or over-payment, or claim of return or allowance of duty shall be set forth in such complaint: Provided also, that the payment of any duty with which any such complainant as aforesaid shall have been charged, or any proceedings for the recovery or payment of any such duty, shall not be delayed or suspended by reason of the making of any complaint or over-charge of such duty, or of the same being depending.

Offences under the customs laws may be sued for by order of commissioners of excise, and in the name of officers of excise.

Option as to which of two penalties shall be sued for.

XXIX. AN ACT to amend the Laws relating to the Land and Assessed Taxes, and to consolidate the Boards of Stamps and Taxes. [13th August 1834.]

WHEREAS, for the more convenient execution of the Acts relating to the land tax, it is expedient to authorize the commissioners acting in the execution of the said Acts for any county, shire, or riding to alter the jurisdiction of any parishes, tithings, townships, hamlets, or places, by transferring any one or more thereof from one division to another of the same county, or by creating thereout any new division or divisions for the purposes of the said Act, as occasion shall require: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that it shall and may be lawful for the said commissioners, at a general meeting or meetings for any county, riding, or shire, if and as they shall see fit (subject as herein provided), to transfer the jurisdiction of any of the parishes, townships, hamlets, tithings, or places in any county from the division or divisions to which the same respectively now belong, together with the quotas payable by them respectively at the time of such transfer, to any adjoining or other division or divisions of the same county, or to any new division or divisions; which new division or divisions it shall be lawful for the said commissioners and they are hereby expressly authorized and empowered to create in any such county; provided every such alteration or creation of divisions respectively shall be certified in writing under the hands of the majority of the commissioners present at such general meeting to his Majesty's commissioners of stamps and taxes; and provided the same shall be approved of by the commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury for the time being; and such approbation, together with the quotas to be assessed and levied on the parishes, townships, tithings, hamlets, or places so as aforesaid transferred, shall be certified to the commissioners of the respective divisions under the hands of the commissioners of stamps and taxes, or any two or more of them, but not otherwise; and the commissioners whose respective divisions shall be extended or created in manner aforesaid shall have full jurisdiction and control in, over, and throughout the several parishes, townships, tithings, hamlets, or places so as aforesaid transferred, and shall and may execute all the powers and provisions of the Acts relating to the land tax, and of the Acts relating to the duties of assessed taxes, in assessing, charging, raising, and enforcing payment of the said taxes respectively in and throughout the same; and the parishes, townships, tithings, hamlets, or places so as aforesaid respectively transferred shall be considered as forming part of the division to which they shall be or shall have been transferred, for all the purposes of the Acts relating to the land tax and the assessed taxes respectively, anything in any former statute contained to the contrary thereof notwithstanding; and all the alterations herein provided for, which may have been made at any time previous to the passing of this Act, shall be as valid, lawful, and effectual, and be acted on in all respects, as if the same had taken place after the passing of this Act, and in pursuance hereof: Provided nevertheless, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize the alterations of the limits or jurisdiction of any of the cities, boroughs, cinque ports, towns, and places respectively in Great Britain, for which separate and distinct quotas of land tax are provided by and enumerated in the Acts now in force relating to the land tax.

II. AND whereas divers open fields, commons, and waste lands, since the inclosure thereof, have been rated and assessed to the land tax, wholly or in part, in other parishes, townships, hamlets, or places than those in which such lands do lie, the inhabitants of such parishes, townships, hamlets, or places in which such lands are rated and assessed having been before the inclosure thereof entitled to common of pasture or other common rights in such open fields, commons, and waste lands: And whereas doubts have arisen touching the legality of rating and assessing such lands as aforesaid elsewhere than in the parishes, townships, hamlets, or places in which the same do lie, and it is expedient to remove such doubts: Be it therefore enacted and declared, that all allotments and pieces or parcels of land which at any time heretofore have been part or parcel of any such open fields, commons, or waste lands shall and may lawfully be rated and assessed to the land tax in such manner, and in such parishes, townships, hamlets, or places, as the same have since the allotment or inclosure thereof been usually rated and assessed, although such lands may not lie in the parishes, townships, hamlets, or places in which the same have been or may be so as aforesaid rated or assessed; and that all rates and assessments which have been at any time heretofore or may be at any time hereafter made or charged upon or in respect of any such lands as aforesaid in or for the parishes, townships, hamlets, or places respectively in which the same have heretofore been usually rated or assessed, are hereby declared to have been and shall be deemed to be respectively as valid and effectual to all intents and purposes, and shall be collected and levied in like manner, as if such lands had been situated within the parishes, townships, hamlets, or places in or for which such rates or assessments have been or shall be made or charged.

Assessments of certain inclosed lands may be made in the places in which they have usually been assessed.

IV. AND whereas by an Act passed in the fifty-third year of the reign of King George the Third, intituled "An Act to amend and render more effectual" several Acts passed for the redemption and sale of the land tax," certain general rules and directions contained in a schedule marked (E.) to the said last-recited Act annexed were enacted with reference to certain contracts for the redemption of land tax therein mentioned, and amongst other rules it was enacted as follows; (that is to say,) first, the commissioners for executing this Act who shall have entered into any such contract shall, as soon as conveniently can be done after the date of each contract, cause an abstract of so much thereof as shall be necessary to be transmitted to the commissioners acting in the execution of the Land Tax Act in the division where the land tax con-

AND be it enacted, that in lieu of the duplicates by the said last-recited Act directed to be returned to the receiver general and the King's remembrancer, the certificate of the commissioners for the time being acting in the execution of the Acts for the redemption and sale of the land tax, to the commissioners for auditing the public accounts, of the payments which according to such contracts shall become due in each year as aforesaid, shall be a sufficient authority for charging the respective receiving officers with the same ; and such certificate shall be in such form as shall be devised by the said commissioners acting in the execution of the said Acts for that purpose.

VI. AND whereas by an Act passed in the sixth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Fourth, intituled " An Act to provide for the application of monies arising in certain cases of assessments for land tax in Great Britain," the commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury are authorized, on the receipt of any such certificate as is thereupon required to be transmitted by the commissioners of districts of the amount of excess of assessment and collection of land tax in any such cases as are therein specified, to direct the net produce and amount of such excess of assessment and collection to be applied to his Majesty's use in such manner and for such purposes as in the said last-recited Act are mentioned : And whereas it is expedient to amend the said recited Act in the manner herein-after mentioned : Be it therefore enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the said commissioners acting within and for any district or division in which any excess of assessment and collection of land tax shall arise to cause to be deducted from the amount of such excess, and to be paid to the respective assessors of the several cities, boroughs, towns, parishes, wards, or places in which such excess shall arise, as a remuneration to the said assessors for their trouble in making the assessments to the land tax, such sum or sums of money as the said last-mentioned commissioners shall certify to be a just and reasonable remuneration to the said assessors, and as the commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury shall sanction and approve ;

CHAPTER LXI.

AN ACT for the more effectually providing for the Erection of certain Bridges in Ireland. [13th August 1834.]

WHEREAS according to the laws now in force in Ireland, where any river is the boundary between two counties, the expences of building, rebuilding, repairing, enlarging, or altering any bridge over such river are to be defrayed by such two counties only, that is to say, a moiety by each; and no money can be paid by the treasurer of either of such counties on account of any presentment for any of the aforesaid purposes unless an equal sum shall have been presented to be raised for the same work upon the adjoining county : And whereas differences have been frequently found to exist between the grand juries of such adjacent counties with respect to the expediency of the building, rebuilding, altering, or improving or repairing of bridges so situated, by reason whereof the same have been in many instances suffered to fall into decay, to the great inconvenience of the public : And whereas the objections to making presentments for such bridges have been sometimes founded upon the supposition that the particular counties which alone would be thereby so charged would not derive from such bridge a benefit commensurate with the expence, whilst other neighbouring counties would gain a portion of such benefit without contributing in any degree to the burthen, and it is expedient to remove any foundation for such objections : Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that where at any time after the commencement of this Act it shall be deemed expedient by the grand jury of any county or county of a city or town in Ireland that any bridge over any river forming a boundary between such county or county of a city or town and any other county or county of a city or town, or any approach to such bridge, shall be built, rebuilt, enlarged, altered, repaired, or in anywise improved, it shall and may be lawful for such grand jury to present a memorial to the lord lieutenant or other chief governor or governors of Ireland, stating the nature of the work proposed, and the reasons for which the same is considered to be useful or desirable, and praying that the powers by this Act authorized to be exercised may be applied for the purpose of prosecuting and completing such work.

Grand juries may apply to lord lieutenant for powers under this Act to build or repair bridges between any two counties.

II. AND be it enacted, that thereupon it shall be lawful for such lord lieutenant or other chief governor or governors of Ireland, if he or they shall so think fit, to appoint any number of persons not exceeding five to inquire into and report upon the circumstances stated in such memorial, and to investigate the truth of the matters therein contained, and the propriety and expediency of complying with the prayer of such memorial ; and that the person or persons so to be appointed shall have full power to examine into the merits of such memorial and the grounds thereof, and for that purpose to receive such evidence, whether oral or documentary, to make or cause to be made such surveys and plans, and to collect such information as may be offered in support of or against the prayer of such memorial ; and in case such person or persons shall, upon a consideration of all the facts submitted or proved to them or him, be of opinion that the provisions of this Act shall be put into operation with respect to the subject matter of such inquiry, he or they shall so report to the said lord lieutenant or other chief governor or governors ; and such report shall be accompanied by a proper plan, estimate, and specification for the execution of the intended work, and also by a statement of the proportions in which the expences thereof should be defrayed by the two counties between which the bridge shall be, and by such neighbouring counties, if any such, as ought to be contributory to such expences.

Lord lieutenant may appoint persons to inquire into the expediency of complying with such application.

If such persons are satisfied they shall so report, and therewith transmit the plan, estimate, &c. of the work and the proportions of expences to be defrayed by the counties.

III. AND be it enacted, that the said lord lieutenant or other chief governor or governors shall cause a copy of such report, plan, estimate, specification, and statement to be transmitted to the secretary of the grand jury of each and

Copy of report, &c. to be sent to the secretary of the grand jury of every county named therein, to be laid before the grand jury for consideration.

Any grand jury may appeal against the report to the lord lieutenant, who shall hear and decide the appeal.

Lord lieutenant, upon such report being settled, may direct that the bridge shall be built or repaired, and how the expence thereof shall be raised.

Grand jury making such application shall present off their own county a sum for defraying expences of commission, to be lodged with treasurer, and applied under direction of the lord lieutenant if the application is not complied with; but if report be every county named in such statement as proper to be contributory to such expences as aforesaid, to be by him laid before the grand jury at the next assizes; and each such grand jury shall take the same into consideration; and if any such grand jury shall determine that an appeal shall be made against such report on account of such county being made contributory to the expences aforesaid, or on account of its being charged in an undue proportion for the said expences, or on account of any objection to the plan, specification, estimate, or statement aforesaid, it shall be lawful for such grand jury to direct that such appeal shall be made to the said lord lieutenant or other chief governor or governors in council, in the name of such grand jury, on behalf of such county; and the grounds of such appeal shall be stated in writing, and signed by the foreman of such grand jury, and transmitted by him to the clerk of the privy council; and notice of every such appeal shall be inserted by or on behalf of such grand jury in the Dublin Gazette once in two successive weeks next after such appeal shall have been lodged with the clerk of the council as aforesaid; and it shall be lawful for such lord lieutenant or other chief governor or governors, by and with the advice and consent of his Majesty's privy council in Ireland, to hear and determine such appeal, and to make such order disallowing or confirming such report, or for the varying, altering, or modifying such report, plan, estimate, specification, or statement, as shall seem meet.

IV. AND be it enacted, that upon such report if not appealed against, or in the case of any such appeal then upon such report, if the same shall be confirmed, or, if varied, altered, or modified, then upon the same as so varied, altered, or modified upon such appeal, it shall be lawful for the said lord lieutenant or other chief governor or governors, if he or they shall so think fit, by order to be signified through his or their chief or under secretary, to direct that the bridge in such report mentioned shall be built or rebuilt, or that the same or any of the approaches thereto shall be repaired, enlarged, widened, altered, or improved, in the manner and according to the plan in such report approved of, or according to such other plan as may be approved of upon such appeal as aforesaid, and that the expences of any such work, or, in case any grant shall be made in aid of such work as herein-after mentioned, then the residue of such expences, shall be raised off and from the several counties which may be specified for that purpose in such report or amended report, according to the shares and proportions thereby recommended or determined.

V. AND be it enacted, that, in order to provide for any expences which may become necessary by the appointment of any person or persons for the purpose of examining into the subject matter of any memorial to be presented under this Act, the grand jury presenting or authorizing any such memorial shall be and are hereby empowered and required to present to be levied off their own county such sum not being less than two hundred pounds as they may think fit, which sum shall be deposited with the treasurer of such county as a fund or security for the discharge of such expences as aforesaid, and be by him, or such proportion thereof, paid over to such person or persons as shall be directed by the said lord lieutenant or other chief governor or governors to receive the same, in case a report shall be made that such memorial ought not to be complied with; but in case a compliance with the same shall be recommended and granted, then the money so deposited shall remain in the hands of such treasurer to the credit of the county, and the expences attending the investigation of the matter of such memorial shall be deemed part of the charges for the work recommended, and shall be borne by the several counties liable thereto under the provisions of this Act in the several proportions hereby directed.

favourable, the expences shall be defrayed out of the monies raised for the work.

VI. AND be it enacted, that when any such report as aforesaid shall have been received and approved of by the said lord lieutenant or other chief governor or governors, or if the same shall be appealed against then upon the determination of such appeal, the order made upon the same shall be transmitted to the secretaries of the grand juries of the respective counties thereby directed to be liable to the charges of the said work, and shall be by them at the next assizes laid before such grand juries respectively, who shall thereupon present to be levied off their respective counties the sums appearing by such order to be respectively chargeable thereon.

If report be approved by lord lieutenant, the order made thereon to be laid before the grand juries liable thereunder, who shall present the sums charged on their respective counties thereunder.

VIII. AND be it enacted, that the building, rebuilding, repairing, widening, enlarging, or improving of any bridge under the provisions of this Act, or of any of the approaches thereto, and the execution of all works relating to the same, shall be carried on, conducted, and managed by and under the controul and direction of the commissioners for the time being<sup>[a]</sup>; and that all the provisions of the said last-mentioned Act shall and may be applied and extended to the several works hereby authorized to be executed, so far as the same may be necessary, and may not be repugnant to or inconsistent with this Act: And provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to restrain or prevent the said last-mentioned commissioners from making any grant in aid of the erection of any bridge which may be proposed to be erected under the provisions of this Act, in like manner and to such extent as they may be authorized by the said last-recited Act to make grants on the application of any grand jury; and such commissioners are hereby authorized, upon consideration of the report, with the plans, specifications, and estimates, to be prepared as herein-before provided, at their discretion, subject nevertheless to the consent and approbation of the lords commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury for the time being, to make such grant in aid of the erection of bridges in respect whereof the provisions of this Act may be put in execution; and in the case of any such grant the amount thereof shall be deducted from the gross amount of the expence of erecting the same, and the residue only shall be levied off the several counties contributory to such expence in the proportions and manner prescribed by the order of the said lord lieutenant or other chief governor or governors as aforesaid.

XXIV. AND be it further enacted, that for the better and more effectually securing the repayment of any sum or sums of money which may be borrowed for the purposes aforesaid, with interest, it shall be lawful for the said overseers or guardians to charge the future poor rates of such parish or union with the amount of such sum or sums of money: Provided always, that the principal sum or sums to be raised for such purposes, whether raised within the year or borrowed, shall in no case exceed the average annual amount of the rates raised for the relief of the poor in such parish or union for three years ending at the Easter next preceding the raising of such money; and that any loan or money borrowed for any of the purposes aforesaid shall be repaid by annual instalments of not less than one tenth of the sum borrowed, with interest on the same, in any one year.

XXVI. AND be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said commissioners, by order under their hands and seal, to declare so many parishes as they may think fit to be united for the administration of the laws for the relief of the poor, and such parishes shall thereupon be deemed a union for such purpose, and thereupon the workhouse or workhouses of such parishes shall be for their common use; and the said commissioners may issue such rules, orders, and regulations as they shall deem expedient for the classification of such of the poor of such united parishes in such workhouse or workhouses as may be relieved in any such workhouse, and such poor may be received, maintained, and employed in any such workhouse or workhouses as if the same belonged exclusively to the parish to which such poor shall be chargeable; . . . . .

Commissioners may form parishes into unions, with a common workhouse.

XXVII. AND be it further enacted, that in any union which may be formed under this Act it shall be lawful for any two of his Majesty's justices of the averages may

XXVIII. AND be it further enacted, that when any union of parishes for the administration of the laws for the relief of the poor shall be proposed to be made or shall be made under the provisions of this Act, it shall be lawful for the said commissioners, and they are hereby required, from time to time, by such means and in such manner as they may think fit, to inquire into and ascertain the expence incurred by each parish proposed to form part of such union for the relief of the poor belonging to such parish, whether such relief shall have been given in or out of any workhouse, for the three years ending on the twenty-fifth day of March next preceding such inquiry, and thereupon the said commissioners shall proceed to calculate and ascertain the annual average expence of each parish for that period; and the several parishes included or proposed to be included in such union shall from the time of effecting the same contribute and be assessed to a common fund for purchasing, building, hiring, or providing, altering, or enlarging any workhouse or other place for the reception and relief of the poor of such parishes, or for the purchase or renting of any lands or tenements, under and by virtue of the provisions of this Act, of or for such union, and for the future upholding and maintaining of such workhouses or places aforesaid, and the payment or allowance of the officers of such union, and the providing of utensils and materials for setting the poor on work therein, and for any other expence to be incurred for the common use or benefit or on the common account of such parishes, in the like proportions as on the said annual average of the said three years such relief had cost each such parish separately, until such average shall be varied or altered as herein-after provided: Provided always, and the said commissioners are hereby authorized, if they shall so think fit, but not otherwise, from time to time, either upon the application of the guardians of such union or of the overseers of any parish forming part of the same, or without such application, to cause a like inquiry and calculation to be made and average ascertained for the three years ending on the twenty-fifth day of March next preceding such inquiry; and from and after the ascertaining of any such average, or of any succeeding average, the respective parishes of such union shall contribute and be assessed to the common fund thereof, for the purposes aforesaid, in the proportions which the expence of such parishes shall be found to have borne to each other during such period upon the average which shall have been so last ascertained, until a like inquiry shall be again made, and a new average and proportion ascertained for the future assessment of such parishes.

XXIX. AND whereas in divers unions formed under the said recited Act made and passed in the twenty-second year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Third, intituled "An Act for the better relief and employment of the poor," or under local Acts of incorporation, the whole of the expence, as well of upholding the united workhouses therein as of maintaining and relieving the poor of the respective parishes of such unions, is assessed upon such parishes in the respective proportions fixed at the period when such unions were formed, and in others a part of such expences is so levied, and a part subjected to variations at stated periods: And whereas some of the parishes of such unions have contributed and still continue to contribute, as their fixed proportion of the general fund, a sum much larger and others a sum much less than the actual expence incurred for the relief of the poor belonging to them respectively: For remedy thereof be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said commissioners, as soon as conveniently may be after the passing of this Act, to cause an inquiry to be made and an account rendered, as far as it may be practicable to render the same, by the visitors, directors, acting guardians, or other officers of such parishes or unions respectively, of the expence incurred for the relief of the poor belonging to each parish within any such union, whether such poor shall have been relieved in or out of such parish respectively, or in or out of any united workhouse, and whether such expence has been paid by the general fund of such union or the parochial funds of any of the parishes thereof, or by any private rate, or general subscription in lieu of a rate among the ratepayers of any such parish, and whether passed through the books or paid under the control of the managers or officers of such union, or not, for the period of three years ending on the twenty-fifth day of March one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, including therein a due proportion of the expence of maintaining the united workhouses and establishment of such union, calculated according to the actual expence otherwise incurred for the relief of the poor belonging to each such parish; and the average annual amount of such expence shall be deemed and taken to have been the annual expence incurred by such parish on account of its poor, notwithstanding such parish may have contributed a greater or smaller sum than such annual average to the general funds of the union during such period; and such annual average, so ascertained as aforesaid, shall, if the said commissioners shall see fit, and to such extent only as they may direct, be deemed and taken as the fixed proportion to be contributed and paid by each such parish respectively towards a common fund for the future hiring, maintaining, and upholding, repairing, altering, or enlarging of any workhouse, and the renting of any land used by such union at the passing of this Act, and for the purchasing, building, hiring, maintaining, upholding, repairing, altering, or enlarging of any new workhouse or workhouses, or other place for the reception and relief of the poor belonging to the parishes of such union, and for the renting or purchase of any lands or tenements under or by virtue of the provisions of this Act, and the payment or allowance of any officers of such union, and the providing of utensils or materials for setting the poor on work therein, and for any other expence to be in future incurred for the common use or benefit of such parishes, and in addition to the cost or proportion of cost of the poor of such parishes who shall be maintained or relieved in or out of any workhouse of such union, for which each such parish shall in future be charged separately; any provision or enactment in the said recited Act or in any such local Acts to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided always, and the said commissioners are hereby authorized, if they see fit, but not otherwise, upon the application of the every word importing the singular number only shall extend and be applied to several persons or things as well as one person or thing ; and every word importing the plural number shall extend and be applied to one person or thing as well as several persons or things ; and every word importing the masculine gender only shall extend and be applied to a female as well as a male ; and every assurance, already made or hereafter to be made, whether by deed, will, private Act of Parliament, or otherwise, by which lands are or shall be entailed or agreed or directed to be entailed, shall be deemed a settlement ; and every appointment made in exercise of any power contained in any settlement, or of any other power arising out of the power contained in any settlement, shall be considered as part of such settlement, and the estate created by such appointment shall be considered as having been created by such settlement ; and where any such settlement is or shall be made by will, the time of the death of the testator shall be considered the time when such settlement was made : Provided always, that these words and expressions occurring in this clause to which more than one meaning is to be attached shall not have the different meanings given to them by this clause in those cases in which there is anything in the subject or context repugnant to such construction.

II. AND be it further enacted, that after the thirty-first day of October one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four no fine shall be levied or common recovery suffered of lands of any tenure in Ireland, except where parties intending to levy a fine or suffer a common recovery shall before the thirty-first day of October one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four have sued out a writ of dedimus or any other writ in the regular proceedings of such fine or recovery ; and any fine or common recovery which shall be levied or suffered contrary to this provision shall be absolutely void.

III. AND be it further enacted, that in case any person shall, after the thirty-first day of October one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, be liable to levy a fine or suffer a common recovery of lands of any tenure in Ireland, or to procure some other person to levy a fine or suffer a common recovery of lands of any tenure, under a covenant or agreement already entered into or hereafter to be entered into before the first day of November one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, then and in such case, if all the purposes intended to be effected by such fine or recovery can be effected by a disposition under this Act, the person liable to levy such fine or suffer such recovery, or to procure some other person to levy such fine or suffer such recovery, shall after the thirty-first day of October one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four be subject and liable under such covenant or agreement to make or to procure to be made such a disposition under this Act as will effect all the purposes intended to be effected by such fine or recovery ; but if some only of the purposes intended to be effected by such fine or recovery can be effected by a disposition under this Act, then the person so liable to levy such fine or suffer such recovery, or to procure some other person to levy such fine or suffer such recovery as aforesaid, shall after the thirty-first day of October one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four be subject and liable under such covenant or agreement to make or procure to be made such a disposition under this Act as will effect such of the purposes intended to be effected by such fine or recovery as can be effected by a disposition under this Act; and in those cases where the purposes intended to be effected by such fine or recovery, or any of them, cannot be effected by any disposition under this Act, then the person so liable to levy such fine or suffer such recovery, or to procure some other person to levy such fine or suffer such recovery as aforesaid, shall after the thirty-first day of October one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four be liable under such covenant or agreement to execute or to procure to be executed some deed whereby the person intended to levy such fine or suffer such recovery shall declare his desire that such deed shall have the same operation and effect as such fine or recovery would have had if the same had been actually levied or suffered; and the deed by which such declaration shall be made shall, if none of the purposes intended to be effected by such fine or recovery can be effected by a disposition under this Act, have the same operation and effect in every respect as such fine or recovery would have had if the same had been actually levied or suffered; but if some only of the purposes intended to be effected by such fine or recovery can be effected by a disposition under this Act, then the deed by which such declaration shall be made shall, so far as the purposes intended to be effected by such fine or recovery cannot be effected by a disposition under this Act, have the same operation and effect in every respect as such fine or recovery would have had if the same had been actually levied or suffered.

IV. AND be it further enacted, that if it shall be apparent, from the deed declaring the uses of any fine already levied or hereafter to be levied, that there is in the indentures, record, or any of the proceedings of such fine any error in the name of the conusor or conusee of such fine, or any misdescription or omission of lands intended to have been passed by such fine, then and in every such case the fine, without any amendment of the indentures, record, or proceedings in which such error, misdescription, or omission shall have occurred, shall be as good and valid as the same would have been, and shall be held to have passed all the lands intended to have been passed thereby, in the same manner as it would have done if there had been no such error, misdescription, or omission.

Fines made valid without amendment in certain cases.

V. AND be it further enacted, that if it shall be apparent, from the deed making the tenant to the writ of entry or other writ for suffering a common recovery already suffered or hereafter to be suffered, that there is in the exemplification, record, or any of the proceedings of such recovery any error in the name of the tenant, demandant, or vouchee in such recovery, or any misdescription or omission of lands intended to have been passed by such recovery, then and in every such case the recovery, without any amendment of the exemplification, record, or proceedings in which such error, misdescription, or omission shall have occurred, shall be as good and valid as the same would have been, and shall be held to have passed all the lands intended to have been passed thereby, in the same manner as it would have done if there had been no such error, misdescription, or omission.

Recoveries made valid without amendment in certain cases.

VI. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that nothing in this Act contained shall lessen or take away the jurisdiction of any court to amend any fine or common recovery, or any proceeding therein, in cases not provided for by this Act.

Saving jurisdiction to amend in cases not provided for.

Recoveries made valid in certain cases where bargain and sale is not duly inrolled.

VII. AND be it further enacted, that no common recovery, already suffered or hereafter to be suffered, shall be invalid in consequence of the neglect to inrol in due time a bargain and sale purporting to make the tenant to the writ of entry or other writ for suffering such recovery, provided such recovery would have been valid if the bargain and sale purporting to make the tenant to the writ had been duly inrolled.

Recoveries invalid in consequence of there not being proper tenants to the writs of entry made valid in certain cases.

VIII. AND be it further enacted, that no common recovery already suffered or hereafter to be suffered shall be invalid in consequence of any person in whom an estate at law was outstanding having omitted to make the tenant to the writ of entry or other writ for suffering such recovery, provided the person who was the owner of or had power to dispose of an estate in possession, not being less than an estate for a life or lives in the whole of the rents and profits of the lands in which such estate at law was outstanding, or the ultimate surplus of such rents and profits after payment of any charges thereout, and whether any surplus after payment of such charges shall actually remain or not, shall, within the time limited for making the tenant to the writ for suffering such recovery, have conveyed or disposed of such estate in possession to the tenant to such writ; and an estate shall be deemed to be an estate in possession, notwithstanding there shall be subsisting prior thereto any lease for lives or years, absolute or determinable, upon which a rent is reserved, or any term of years upon which no rent is reserved.

Certain cases in which fines and recoveries shall not be made valid by this Act.

IX. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that where any fine or common recovery shall before the passing of this Act have been wholly reversed, such fine or recovery shall not be rendered valid by this Act; and where any fine or common recovery shall before the passing of this Act have been reversed as to some only of the parties thereto, or as to some only of the lands therein comprised, such fine or recovery shall not be rendered valid by this Act so far as the same shall have been reversed; and where any person who would have been barred by any fine or common recovery, if valid, shall before the passing of this Act have had any dealings with the lands comprised in such fine or recovery on the faith of the same being invalid, such fine or recovery shall not be rendered valid by this Act; and this Act shall not render valid any fine or common recovery as to lands of which any person shall at the time of the passing of this Act be in possession in respect of any estate which the fine or common recovery if valid would have barred, nor any fine or common recovery which before the passing of this Act any court of competent jurisdiction shall have refused to amend; nor shall this Act prejudice or affect any proceedings at law or in equity pending at the time of the passing of this Act, in which the validity of such fine or recovery shall be in question between the party claiming under such fine or recovery and the party claiming adversely thereto; and such fine or recovery, if the result of such proceedings shall be to invalidate the same, shall not be rendered valid by this Act; and if such proceedings shall abate or become defective in consequence of the death of the party claiming under or adversely to such fine or recovery, any person who but for this Act would have a right of action or suit by reason of the invalidity of such fine or recovery shall retain such right, so that he commence proceedings within six calendar months after the death of such party.

X. AND be it further enacted, that after the thirty-first day of October one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four the records of all fines and common recoveries levied and suffered in his Majesty's Court of Common Pleas in Dublin, and all the proceedings thereof, shall be deposited in such places and kept by such persons as the said Court of Common Pleas shall from time to time order or direct; and in the meantime the said records and proceedings shall remain in the same place where they are now deposited, and be kept by the person who would have continued entitled to the custody thereof if this Act had not been passed; and while the said records and proceedings shall be kept by such person, searches may be made, and extracts and copies obtained, as heretofore, and on paying the accustomed fees; and when any of the records and proceedings shall by the order of the said court be kept by any other person, then, so far as relates to the records and proceedings in the custody of such other person, searches may be made, and extracts or copies obtained, at such times and on paying such fees as shall from time to time be ordered by the said court; and the extracts or copies so obtained shall be as available in evidence as they would have been if obtained from the person whose duty it would have been to have made and delivered out the same if this Act had not been passed.

Regulations as to the records of fines and recoveries in the courts of Common Pleas in Dublin after 31st October, 1834.

XI. AND be it further enacted, that all warranties of lands which after the thirty-first day of October one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four shall be made or entered into by any tenant in tail thereof shall be absolutely void against the issue in tail, and all persons whose estates are to take effect after the determination or in defeasance of the estate tail.

Estates tail, and estates expectant thereon, no longer barable by warranty.

XII. AND be it further enacted, that after the thirty-first day of October one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four every actual tenant in tail, whether in possession, remainder, contingency, or otherwise, shall have full power to dispose of, for an estate in fee simple absolute, or for any less estate, the lands entailed, as against all persons claiming the lands entailed by force of any estate tail which shall be vested in or might be claimed by, or which but for some previous Act would have been vested in or might have been claimed by, the person making the disposition, at the time of his making the same, and also as against all persons whose estates are to take effect after the determination or in defeasance of any such estate tail, including the King's most excellent Majesty, his heirs and successors, as regards the title to his Majesty to any reversion or remainder created or reserved by any settlement or will, and which reversion or remainder shall have come or shall hereafter come to the crown in consequence of the attainder of any person to whom the forfeited reversion or remainder was previously to such forfeiture limited by any settlement or will, but not in any other case, or where the title to the crown shall have accrued by any other means; saving always the rights of all persons in respect of estates prior to the estate tail in respect of which such disposition shall be made, and the rights of all other persons, except those against whom such disposition is by this Act authorized to be made.

Power of actual tenant in tail, after 31st October 1834, to dispose of entailed lands in fee simple, or for a less estate, saving the rights of certain persons.

XIII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that where, under any settlement made before the passing of this Act, any woman shall be tenant in tail of lands within the provisions of an Act passed in the tenth year of the reign of his Majesty King Charles the First, intituled "An Act for the extension of the Statute of Fines," the power of disposition herein-before contained as to such lands shall not be exercised by her, except with such assent as, if this Act had not been passed, would under the provisions of the said Act of King Charles the First have rendered valid a fine or common recovery levied or suffered by her of such lands.

XIV. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that, except as to lands comprised in any settlement made before the passing of this Act, the said Act of the tenth year of the reign of his Majesty King Charles the First shall be and the same is hereby repealed. [Rep., Stat. Law Rev. Act, 1874.]

XV. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that the power of disposition herein-before contained shall not extend to tenants in tail after possibility of issue extinct.

XVI. AND be it further enacted, that after the thirty-first day of October one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, in every case in which an estate tail in any lands shall have been barred and converted into a base fee, either before or on or after that day, the person who if such estate tail had not been barred would have been actual tenant in tail of the same lands shall have full power to dispose of such lands as against all persons whose estates are to take effect after the determination or in defeasance of the base fee into which the estate tail shall have been converted, so as to enlarge the base fee into a fee simple absolute, including the King's most excellent Majesty, his heirs and successors, as regards the title to his Majesty to any reversion or remainder created or reserved by any settlement or will, and which reversion or remainder shall have come or shall hereafter come to the crown in consequence of the attainder of any person to whom the forfeited reversion or remainder was previously to such forfeiture limited by any settlement or will, but not in any other case, or where the title to the crown shall have accrued by any other means; saving always the rights of all persons in respect of estates prior to the estate tail which shall have been converted into a base fee, and the rights of all other persons, except those against whom such disposition is by this Act authorized to be made: Provided always, that nothing in this Act contained shall authorize any tenant in tail or other person to defeat or bar any estate or interest which may at the time of passing this Act have been granted to any person or persons by his Majesty, or any of his predecessors, in any reversion or remainder which may have come to the crown by attainder or otherwise.

XVII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that nothing in this Act contained shall enable any person to dispose of any lands entailed in respect of any expectant interest or possibility which he may have as issue inheritable to any estate tail therein.

XVIII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that if a tenant in tail of lands shall make a disposition of the same under this Act by way of mortgage, or for any other limited purpose, then and in such case such disposition shall, to the extent of the estate thereby created, be an absolute bar in equity as well as at law to all persons as against whom such disposition is by this Act authorized to be made, notwithstanding any intention to the contrary may be expressed or implied in the deed by which the disposition may be effected: Provided always, that if the estate created by such disposition shall be only an estate pour autre vie, or for years absolute or determinable, or if, by a disposition under this Act by a tenant in tail of lands, an interest, charge, lien, or incumbrance shall be created, without a term of years absolute or determinable, or any greater estate, for securing or raising the same, then such disposition shall in equity be a bar only so far as may be necessary to give full effect to the mortgage, or to such other limited purpose, or to such interest, lien, charge, or incumbrance, notwithstanding any intention to the contrary may be expressed or implied in the deed by which the disposition may be effected.

XIX. AND be it further enacted, that if at the time when there shall be a tenant in tail of lands under a settlement there shall be subsisting in the same lands or any of them under the same settlement any estate for years determinable on the dropping of a life or lives, or any greater estate (not being an estate for years), prior to the estate tail, then the person who shall be the owner of the prior estate, or the first of such prior estates if more than one, then subsisting under the same settlement, or who would have been so if no absolute disposition thereof had been made, (the first of such prior estates, if more than one, being for all the purposes of this Act deemed the prior estate,) shall be the protector of the settlement so far as regards the lands in which such prior estate shall be subsisting, and shall for all the purposes of this Act be deemed the owner of such prior estate, although the same may have been charged or incumbered, either by the owner thereof or by the settlor, or otherwise howsoever, and although the whole of the rents and profits be exhausted or required for the payment of the charges and incumbrances on such prior estate, and although such prior estate may have been absolutely disposed of by the owner thereof or by or in consequence of the bankruptcy or insolvency of such owner or by any other act or default of such owner; and that an estate by the curtesy, in respect of the estate tail, or of any prior estate created by the same settlement, shall be deemed a prior estate under the same settlement within the meaning of this clause; and that an estate by way of resulting use or trust to or for the settlor shall be deemed an estate under the same settlement within the meaning of this clause.

XX. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that where two or more persons shall be owners, under a settlement within the meaning of this Act, of a prior estate, the sole owner of which estate, if there had been only one, would in respect thereof have been the protector of such settlement, each of such persons, in respect of such undivided share as he could dispose of, shall for all the purposes of this Act be deemed the owner of a prior estate, and shall, in exclusion of the other or others of them, be the sole protector of such settlement to the extent of such undivided share.

XXI. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that where a married woman would if single be the protector of a settlement in respect of a prior estate which is not thereby settled or agreed or directed to be settled to her separate use, she and her husband together shall in respect of such estate be the protector of such settlement, and shall be deemed one owner; but if such prior estate shall by such settlement have been settled or agreed or directed to be settled to her separate use, then and in such case she alone shall in respect of such estate be the protector of such settlement.

Married woman and her husband shall be together the protector, except where the prior estate is settled to her separate use.

XXII. AND be it further enacted, that from and after the thirty-first day of October one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four it shall be lawful for any person, either before or after he shall become entitled in any manner, except as expectant heir of a living person, or as expectant heir of the body of a Proviso as to protector in case of estates confirmed or restored by settlement.

XXIII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that except in the case of a lease herein-after provided for, where an estate shall be limited by a settlement by way of confirmation, or where the settlement shall merely have the effect of restoring an estate, in either of those cases such estate shall for the purposes of this Act, so far as regards the protector of the settlement, be deemed an estate subsisting under such settlement.

Proviso as to leases at rent created or confirmed by settlement.

XXIV. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that where a lease at a rent shall be created or confirmed by a settlement, the person in whose favour such lease shall be created or confirmed shall not in respect thereof be the protector of such settlement.

No tenant in dower, bare trustee, heir, executor, &c. (except as hereafter mentioned) to be protector.

XXV. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that no woman in respect of her dower, and (except in the case herein-after provided for of a bare trustee under a settlement made before the thirty-first day of October one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four) no bare trustee, heir, executor, administrator, or assign, in respect of any estate taken by him as such bare trustee, heir, executor, administrator, or assign, shall be the protector of a settlement.

Who shall be the protector where the owner of the prior estate shall by the two last clauses be excluded.

XXVI. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that where under any settlement there shall be more than one estate prior to an estate tail, and the person who shall be the owner within the meaning of this Act of any such prior estate, in respect of which but for the two last preceding clauses or either of them he would have been the protector of the settlement, shall by virtue of such clauses or either of them be excluded from being the protector, then and in such case the person (if any) who, if such estate did not exist, would be the protector of the settlement, shall be such protector.

Where, in the disposition of an estate before 31st October 1834, the person to make the tenant to the writ of entry in a recovery shall be the protector.

XXVII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that where already or before the thirty-first day of October one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four an estate under a settlement shall have been disposed of either absolutely or otherwise, and either for valuable consideration or not, the person who in respect of such estate would, if this Act had not been passed, have been the proper person to have made the tenant to the writ of entry or other writ for suffering a common recovery of the lands entailed by such settlement, shall, during the continuance of the estate which conferred the right to make the tenant to such writ of entry or other writ, be the protector of such settlement.

Where, in the case of the disposition of a reversion on or before 31st October 1834, the person to XXVIII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that where any person having, either already or before the thirty-first day of October one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, either for valuable consideration or not, disposed of, either absolutely or otherwise, a remainder or reversion in fee in any lands, or created any estate out of such remainder or reversion, would under this Act, if this clause had not been inserted, have been the protector of the settlement by which the lands were entailed in which such remainder or reversion may be subsisting, and thereby be enabled to concur in the barring of such remainder or reversion, which he could not have done if he had not become such protector, then and in every such case the person who, if this Act had not been passed, would have been the proper person to have made the tenant to the writ of entry or other writ for suffering a common recovery of such lands, shall, during the continuance of the estate which conferred the right to make the tenant to such writ of entry or other writ, be the protector of such settlement.

make the tenant to the writ of entry in a recovery shall be the protector.

XXIX. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that where under any settlement of lands made before the passing of this Act the person who, if this Act had not been passed, would have been the proper person to make the tenant to the writ of entry or other writ for suffering a common recovery of such lands for the purpose of barring any estate tail or other estate under such settlement, shall be a bare trustee, such trustee shall, during the continuance of the estate conferring on him the right to make the tenant to such writ of entry or other writ, be the protector of such settlement.

Where a bare trustee under a settlement made before the passing of this Act shall be the protector.

XXX. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for any settlor entailing lands to appoint, by the settlement by which the lands shall be entailed, any number of persons in esse, not exceeding three, and not being aliens, to be protector of the settlement in lieu of the person who would have been the protector if this clause had not been inserted, and either for the whole or any part of the period for which such person might have continued protector, and by means of a power to be inserted in such settlement to perpetuate during the whole or any part of such period the protectorship of the settlement in any one person or number of persons in esse, and not being an alien or aliens, whom the donee of the power shall think proper by deed to appoint protector of the settlement, in the place of any one person or number of persons who shall die or shall by deed relinquish his or their office of protector; and the person or persons so appointed shall, in case of there being no other person then protector of the settlement, be the protector, and shall, in case of there being any other person then protector of the settlement, be protector jointly with such other person: Provided nevertheless, that by virtue or means of any such appointment the number of the persons to compose the protector shall never exceed three: Provided further nevertheless, that every deed by which a protector shall be appointed under a power in a settlement, and every deed by which a protector shall relinquish his office, shall be void, unless inrolled in his Majesty's High Court of Chancery in Ireland within six calendar months after the execution thereof: Provided further nevertheless, that the person who but for this clause would have been sole protector of the settlement may be one of the persons to be appointed protector under this clause, if the settlor shall think fit, and shall, unless otherwise directed by the settlor, act as sole protector if the other persons constituting the protector shall have ceased to be so by death or relinquishment of the office by deed, and no other person shall have been appointed in their place.

Power to any settlor to appoint the protector.

Enrolment of deeds appointing protector, or relinquishing the office.

XXXI. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that if any person, protector of a settlement, shall be lunatic, idiot, or of unsound mind, and whether he shall have been found such by inquisition or not, then the lord high chancellor of Ireland, or the lord keeper or the lords commissioners for the custody of the great seal of Ireland for the time being, or other the person or persons for the time being intrusted by the King's sign manual with the care and commitment of the custody of the persons and estates of persons found lunatic, idiot, and of unsound mind, shall be the protector of such settlement in lieu of the person who shall be such lunatic or idiot or of unsound mind as aforesaid; or if any person, protector of a settlement, shall be convicted of treason or felony, or if any person, not being the owner of a prior estate under a settlement, shall be protector of such settlement, and shall be an infant, or if it shall be uncertain whether such last-mentioned person be living or dead, then his Majesty's High Court of Chancery in Ireland shall be the protector of such settlement in lieu of the person who shall be an infant, or whose existence cannot be ascertained as aforesaid; or if any settlor entailing lands shall in the settlement by which the lands shall be entailed declare that the person who as owner of a prior estate under such settlement would be entitled to be protector of the settlement, shall not be such protector, and shall not appoint any person to be protector in his stead, then the said Court of Chancery shall, as to the lands in which such prior estate shall be subsisting, be the protector of the settlement during the continuance of such estate; or if in any other case where there shall be subsisting under a settlement an estate prior to an estate tail under the same settlement, and such prior estate shall be sufficient to qualify the owner thereof to be protector of the settlement, and there shall happen at any time to be no protector of the settlement as to the lands in which the prior estate shall be subsisting, the said Court of Chancery shall, while there shall be no such protector, and the prior estate shall be subsisting, be the protector of the settlement as to such lands.

Where there is a protector, his consent shall be requisite to enable an actual tenant in tail to create a larger estate than a base fee.

XXXII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that if at the time when any person, actual tenant in tail of lands under a settlement, but not entitled to the remainder or reversion in fee immediately expectant on the determination of his estate tail, shall be desirous of making under this Act a disposition of the lands entailed, there shall be a protector of such settlement, then and in every such case the consent of such protector shall be requisite to enable such actual tenant in tail to dispose of the lands entailed to the full extent to which he is herein-before authorized to dispose of the same; but such actual tenant in tail may without such consent make a disposition under this Act of the lands entailed, which shall be good against all persons who, by force of any estate tail which shall be vested in or might be claimed by, or which but for some previous act or default would have been vested in or might have been claimed by, the person making the disposition at the time of his making the same, shall claim the lands entailed.

Where there is a base fee, and a protector, his consent shall be requisite to the exercise of the power of disposition.

XXXIII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that where an estate tail shall have been converted into a base fee, in such case, so long as there shall be a protector of the settlement by which the estate tail was created, the consent of such protector shall be requisite to enable the person who would have been tenant of the estate tail if the same had not been barred to exercise, as to the lands in respect of which there shall be such protector, the power of disposition herein-before contained.

XXXIV. AND be it further enacted, that any device, shift, or contrivance by which it shall be attempted to control the protector of a settlement in giving his consent, or to prevent him in any way from using his absolute discretion in regard to his consent, and also any agreement entered into by the protector of a settlement to withhold his consent, shall be void; and that the protector of a settlement shall not be deemed to be a trustee in respect of his power of consent; and a court of equity shall not control or interfere to restrain the exercise of his power or consent, nor treat his giving consent as a breach of trust.

The protector to be subject to no control in the exercise of his power of consenting.

XXXV. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that the rules of equity in relation to dealings and transactions between the donee of a power and any object of the power in whose favour the same may be exercised, shall not be held to apply to dealings and transactions between the protector of a settlement and a tenant in tail under the same settlement, upon the occasion of the protector giving his consent to a disposition by a tenant in tail under this Act.

Certain rules of equity not to apply between a protector and a tenant in tail.

XXXVI. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that when a tenant in tail of lands under a settlement shall have already created or shall hereafter create in such lands or any of them a voidable estate in favour of a purchaser for valuable consideration, and shall afterwards under this Act, by any assurance other than a lease not requiring enrolment, make a disposition of the lands in which such voidable estate shall be created, or any of them, such disposition, whatever its object may be, and whatever may be the extent of the estate intended to be thereby created, shall, if made by the tenant in tail with the consent of the protector (if any) of the settlement, or by the tenant in tail alone if there shall be no such protector, have the effect of confirming such voidable estate in the lands thereby disposed of to its full extent as against all persons except those whose rights are saved by this Act; but if at the time of making the disposition there shall be a protector of the settlement, and such protector shall not consent to the disposition, and the tenant in tail shall not without such consent be capable under this Act of confirming the voidable estate to its full extent, then and in such case such disposition shall have the effect of confirming such voidable estate so far as such tenant in tail would then be capable under this Act of confirming the same without such consent: Provided always, that if such disposition shall be made to a purchaser for valuable consideration, who shall not have express notice of the voidable estate, and if the deed or instrument creating such voidable estate shall not have been registered previous to such disposition, then and in such case the voidable estate shall not be confirmed as against such purchaser and the persons claiming under him.

A voidable estate by a tenant in tail, in favour of a purchaser, shall be confirmed by a subsequent disposition of such tenant in tail under this Act, but not against a purchaser without notice.

XXXVII. LII. LIII. AND be it further enacted, that if any commissioner acting in the execution of any such commission as aforesaid shall under this Act dispose of any lands of any tenure of which the bankrupt shall be actual tenant in tail, and in consequence of there being a protector of the settlement by which the estate of such actual tenant in tail was created, and of his not giving his consent, only a base fee shall by such disposition be created in such lands; and if at any time afterwards during the continuance of the base fee there shall cease to be a protector of such settlement, then and in such case, and immediately thereupon, such base fee shall be enlarged into the same estate into which the same could have been enlarged under this Act, if at the time of the disposition by such commissioner as aforesaid there had been no such protector.

Subsequent enlargement of base fees created by the disposition of the commissioner.

Enlargement of base fees subsequent to the sale or conveyance of the same under Bankruptcy Acts.

LIV. AND be it further enacted, that if a tenant in tail entitled to a base fee in lands of any tenure shall be adjudged a bankrupt at the time when there shall be a protector of the settlement by which the estate tail converted into the base fee was created, and if such lands shall be sold or conveyed under the said Act of the eleventh and twelfth years of King George the Third, or any other Act hereafter to be passed concerning bankrupts, and if at any time afterwards during the continuance of the base fee in such lands there shall cease to be a protector of such settlement, then and in such case, and immediately thereupon, the base fee in such lands shall be enlarged into the same estate into which the same could have been enlarged under this Act, if at the time of the adjudication of such bankruptcy there had been no such protector, and the commissioner acting in the execution of the commission under which the tenant in tail so entitled shall have been adjudged a bankrupt had disposed of such lands under this Act.

LV. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that where an actual tenant in tail of lands of any tenure, or a tenant in tail entitled to a base fee in lands of any tenure, shall have already created or shall hereafter create in such lands, or any of them, a voidable estate in favour of a purchaser for valuable consideration, and such actual tenant in tail, or tenant in tail so entitled as aforesaid, shall be adjudged a bankrupt under any such commission as aforesaid, and the commissioner acting in the execution of such commission shall make any disposition under this Act of the lands in which such voidable estate shall be created, or any of them, then and in such case, if there shall be no protector of the settlement by which the estate tail of the actual tenant in tail, or the estate tail converted into a base fee, as the case may be, was created, or being such protector he shall consent to the disposition by such commissioner as aforesaid, whether such commissioner may have made under this Act a previous disposition of such lands or not, or whether a prior sale or conveyance of the same lands shall have been made or not under the said Act of the eleventh and twelfth years of King George the Third, or any other Acts hereafter to be passed concerning bankrupts, the disposition by such commissioner shall have the effect of confirming such voidable estate in the lands thereby disposed of to its full extent as against all persons, except those whose rights are saved by this Act; and if at the time of the disposition by such commissioner, in the case of an actual tenant in tail, there shall be a protector, and such protector shall not consent to the disposition by such commissioner, and such actual tenant in tail, if he had not been adjudged a bankrupt, would not without such consent have been capable under this Act of confirming the voidable estate to its full extent, then and in such case such disposition shall have the effect of confirming such voidable estate so far as such actual tenant in tail, if he had not been adjudged a bankrupt, could at the time of such disposition have been capable under this Act of confirming the same without such consent; and if at any time after the disposition of such lands by such commissioner, and while only a base fee shall be subsisting in such lands, there shall cease to be a protector of such settlement, and such protector shall not have consented to the disposition by such commissioner, then and in such case such voidable estate, so far as the same may not have been previously confirmed, shall be confirmed to its full extent as against all persons except those whose rights are saved by this Act: Provided always, that if the disposition by any such commissioner as aforesaid shall be made to a purchaser for valuable consideration, who shall not have express notice of the voidable estate, and if the deed or instrument making such voidable estate shall not have been registered previous to such disposition, then and in such case the voidable estate shall not be confirmed against such purchaser and the persons claiming under him.

LVI. AND be it further enacted, that all acts and deeds done and executed by a tenant in tail of lands of any tenure who shall be adjudged a bankrupt under any such commission as aforesaid, and which shall affect such lands or any of them, and which, if he had been seised of or entitled to such lands in fee simple absolute, would have been void against the assignees of the bankrupt's estate and all persons claiming under them, shall be void against any disposition which may be made of such lands under this Act by such commissioner as aforesaid.

Acts of a bankrupt tenant in tail void against any disposition under this Act by the commissioner.

LVII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that subject and without prejudice to the powers of disposition given by this Act to the commissioner acting in the execution of any such commission as aforesaid, under which a person being, or before obtaining his certificate becoming, an actual tenant in tail of lands of any tenure, or a tenant in tail entitled to a base fee in lands of any tenure, shall be adjudged a bankrupt, and also subject and without prejudice to the estate in such lands which may be vested in the assignees of the bankrupt's estate, and also subject and without prejudice to the rights of all persons claiming under the said assignees in respect of such lands or any of them such actual tenant in tail or tenant in tail so entitled as aforesaid shall have the same powers of disposition under this Act in regard to such lands, as he would have had if he had not become bankrupt.

Subject to the powers given to the commissioner, and to the estate in the assignees, a bankrupt tenant in tail shall retain his powers of disposition.

LVIII. AND be it further enacted, that any disposition under this Act of lands of any tenure by any commissioner acting in the execution of any such commission as aforesaid, under which a person being, or before obtaining his certificate becoming, an actual tenant in tail of such lands, or a tenant in tail entitled to a base fee in such lands, shall be adjudged a bankrupt, shall, although the bankrupt be dead at the time of the disposition, be in the following cases as valid and effectual as the same would have been, and have the same operation under this Act as the same would have had, if the bankrupt were alive; (that is to say,) in case at the time of the bankrupt's decease there shall be no protector of the settlement by which the estate tail of the actual tenant in tail, or the estate tail converted into a base fee, (as the case may be,) was created; or in case the bankrupt had been an actual tenant in tail of such lands, and there shall at the time of the disposition be any issue inheritable to the estate tail of the bankrupt in such lands, and either no protector of the settlement by which the estate tail was created, or a protector of such settlement who in the manner required by this Act shall consent to the disposition, or a protector of such settlement who shall not consent to the disposition; or in case the bankrupt had been a tenant in tail entitled to a base fee in such lands, and there shall at the time of the disposition be any issue who, if the base fee had not been created, would have been actual tenant in tail of such lands, and either no protector of the settlement by which the estate tail converted into a base fee was created, or a protector of such settlement who in the manner required by this Act shall consent to the disposition.

The disposition by the commissioner of the lands of a bankrupt tenant in tail shall, if the bankrupt be dead, have in the cases herein mentioned the same operation as if he were alive.

Assignees to recover rents of the lands of the bankrupt of which the commissioner has power to make disposition and to enforce covenants, as the bankrupt could have done if not adjudged bankrupt.

The powers of disposition given to a married woman by this Act not to interfere with any other powers.

LXIX. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that the powers of disposition given to a married woman by this Act shall not interfere with any power which, independently of this Act, may be vested in or limited or reserved to her, so as to prevent her from exercising such power in any case, except so far as by any disposition made by her under this Act she may be prevented from so doing in consequence of such power having been suspended or extinguished by such disposition ; but such powers of disposition shall not enable a married woman to dispose of lands, or any estate therein, where the settlement or other instrument under which she may be entitled to the same shall contain a valid restriction against the anticipation thereof by such married woman.

LXXVI. AND be it further enacted, that every such certificate as aforesaid of the taking of an acknowledgment by a married woman of any such deed as aforesaid, together with an affidavit by some person verifying the same and the signature thereof by the party by whom the same shall purport to be signed, shall be lodged with some officer of the Court of Common Pleas in Dublin to be appointed as herein-after mentioned; and such officer shall examine the certificate, and see that it is duly signed, either by some judge or master in Chancery, or by two commissioners appointed pursuant to this Act, and duly verified by affidavit as aforesaid, and shall also see that it contains such statement of particulars as to the consent of the married woman as shall from time to time be required in that behalf; and if all the requisites in this Act in regard to the certificate shall have been complied with, then such officer shall cause the said certificate and the affidavit to be filed of record in the said Court of Common Pleas.

The officer with whom the certificates are lodged shall make an index of the same.

LXXIX. AND be it further enacted, that after the filing of any such certificate as aforesaid the officer with whom the certificate shall be lodged shall at any time deliver a copy, signed by him, of any such certificate, to any person applying for such copy; and every such copy shall be received as evidence of the acknowledgment of the deed to which such certificate shall refer.

5 &amp; 6 WILLIAM IV. A.D. 1835.

STATUTES MADE AT THE PARLIAMENT BEGUN AND HOLDEN AT WESTMINSTER, THE NINETEENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, A.D. 1835,

IN THE FIFTH YEAR OF THE REIGN OF KING WILLIAM THE FOURTH, BEING THE FIRST SESSION OF THE TWELFTH PARLIAMENT OF THE UNITED KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND.

CHAPTER XVI.

AN ACT for altering and amending the Law regarding Commitments by Courts of Equity for Contempts, and the taking Bills pro Confesso, in Ireland.

[30th July 1835.]

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law regarding commitments by courts of equity for contempts, and the taking bills pro confesso, in Ireland: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that the marshal of the marshalsea of the four courts prison shall keep a register of the names of all persons committed by the courts of equity for contempts, stating the dates and the grounds of their several commitments, and the dates of their respective discharges, and shall, on the twentieth day of January, the twentieth day of April, the twentieth day of July, and the twentieth day of October, in every year, make a report to the lord chancellor of the names and descriptions of such prisoners in his custody on each of such days respectively, with the causes and dates of their respective commitments.

Marshal of the four courts marshalsea to keep a register of persons committed by courts of equity for contempts, and report to lord chancellor.

II. AND whereas sometimes persons have withdrawn themselves beyond the seas or otherwise absconded, to avoid appearing in courts of equity, or being served with process for that purpose, or, being brought into court by habeas corpus, have refused to appear: For remedy of the inconvenience thence ensuing, be it further enacted, that if in any suit, not being for the foreclosure of a mortgage, which hath been or hereafter shall be commenced in any court of equity, any defendant against whom any subpoena or other process shall issue shall not cause his appearance to be entered upon such process within such time and in such manner as according to the rules of the court the same ought to have been entered in case such process had been duly served, and an affidavit or affidavits shall be made to the satisfaction of such court that such defendant is beyond the seas, or that upon inquiry at his usual place of abode he could not be found so as to be served with such process, and that there is just ground to believe that such defendant is gone out of the realm, or has otherwise absconded, to avoid being served with the process of such court, then and in such case the court out of which such process issued may make an order directing and appointing such defendant to appear at a certain day therein to be named; and a copy of such order shall, within fourteen days after such order made, be inserted in the Dublin Gazette, and published on some Lord's day immediately after divine service in the parish church where such defendant made his usual abode within thirty days next before such his absenting, and also a copy of such order shall within the time aforesaid be posted up in some public place at the Royal Exchange in Dublin; and if the defendant do not appear within the time limited by such order, or within such further time as the court shall appoint, then, on proof made of such publication of such order as aforesaid, the court, being satisfied of the truth thereof, may order the plaintiff's bill to be taken pro confesso, and make such decree thereupon as shall be thought just, and may thereupon issue process to compel the performance of such decree, either by an immediate sequestration of the real and personal estate and effects of the party so absenting (if any such can be found), or such part thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the demands of the plaintiff in the said suit, or by causing possession of the estate or effects demanded by the bill to be delivered to the plaintiff, or otherwise, as the nature of the case shall require; and the said court may likewise order such plaintiff to be paid and satisfied his demands out of the estate or effects so sequestered, according to the true intent and meaning of such decree, such plaintiff first giving sufficient security, in such sum as the court shall think proper, to abide such order touching the restitution of such estate or effects, as the court shall think proper to make concerning the same upon the defendant's appearance to defend such suit and paying such costs to the plaintiff as the court shall order; but in case such plaintiff shall refuse or neglect to give such security as aforesaid, then the said court shall order the estate or effects so sequestered, or whereof the possession shall be decreed to be delivered, to remain under the direction of the court, either by appointing a receiver thereof, or otherwise, as to such court shall seem meet, until the appearance of the defendant to defend such suit, and his paying such costs to the plaintiff as the said court shall think reasonable, or until such order shall be made therein as the court shall think just.

Persons in custody refusing to appear, &c. shall be served with a copy of the decree made on such refusal, &c.

III. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that if any person, against whom any decree shall be made upon refusal or neglect to enter his appearance or appoint a clerk in court or attorney to act on his behalf, shall be in custody or forthcoming, so that he may be served with a copy of such decree, then he shall be served with a copy thereof before any process shall be taken out to compel the performance thereof.

Persons out of the realm affected by any such decree shall, if they return within 7 years, be served with a copy; or, in case of their death within that time, their heirs, &c. shall be so served.

IV. PROVIDED also, and be it further enacted, that if any decree shall be made in pursuance of this Act against any person being out of the realm or absconding in manner aforesaid at the time such decree is pronounced, and such person shall within seven years after the making such decree return or become publicly visible, then and in such case he shall likewise be served with a copy of such decree within a reasonable time after his return or public appearance shall be known to the plaintiff; and in case any defendant against whom such decree shall be made shall within seven years after the making such decree happen to die before his or her return into this realm or appearing openly as aforesaid, or shall within the time last before mentioned die in custody before his or her being served with a copy of such decree, then his or her heir, if such defendant shall have any real estate sequestered, or whereof possession shall have been delivered to the plaintiff, and such heir may be found, or if such heir shall be a feme covert, infant, or non compos mentis, the husband, guardian, or committee of such heir respectively, or if the personal estate of such defendant be sequestered, or possession thereof delivered to the plaintiff, then his executor or administrator (if any such there be), may and shall be served with a copy of such decree within a reasonable time after it shall be known to the plaintiff that the defendant is dead, and who is his heir, executor, or administrator, or where he may be served therewith.

V. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that if any person so served with a copy of such decree shall not within six months after such service appear and petition to have the said cause reheard, such decree so made as aforesaid shall stand absolutely confirmed against the person so served with a copy thereof, his heirs, executors, and administrators, and all persons claiming or to claim by, from, or under him or any of them by virtue of any act done or to be done subsequent to the commencement of any suit.

If any person so served does not petition for a rehearing of the cause within 6 months, the decree shall be absolutely confirmed.

VI. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that if any person so served with a copy of such decree shall within six months after such service, or if any person not being so served shall within seven years next after the making such decree, appear in court and petition to be heard with respect to the matter of such decree, and shall pay down or give security for payment of such costs as the court shall think reasonable in that behalf, the person so petitioning, or his representatives, or any person claiming under him by virtue of any act done before the commencement of the suit, may be admitted to answer the bill exhibited, and issue may be joined, and witnesses on both sides examined, and such other proceedings, decree, and execution may be had thereon, as there might have been in case the same party had originally appeared, and the proceedings had then been newly begun, or as if no former decree or proceedings had been in the same cause.

Persons who, if so served, within 6 months, and, if not served, within 7 years, petition to be heard, and give security for costs, may be admitted to answer, &c.

VII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that if any person against whom such decree shall be made, his heirs, executors, or administrators, shall not within seven years next after the making of such decree appear and petition to have the cause reheard, and pay down or give security for payment of such costs as the court shall think reasonable in that behalf, such decree made as aforesaid shall stand absolutely confirmed against the person against whom such decree shall be made, his heirs, executors, and administrators, and against all persons claiming or to claim by, from, or under him, or any of them, by virtue of any act done or to be done subsequent to the commencement of such suit; and at the end of such seven years it shall and may be lawful for the court to make such further order as shall be just and reasonable, according to the circumstances of the case.

If any person or his heirs, &c. does not petition for a rehearing within 7 years, the decree shall be absolutely confirmed.

VIII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that this Act shall not extend or be construed to extend to warrant or make good any proceeding against any person beyond the seas, unless it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court by affidavit or affidavits, before the making of such decree, that such person had been in Ireland within two years next before the subpoena in such suit issued against such person.

This Act not to affect persons beyond the seas, except in certain cases.

IX. AND whereas in many cases persons having privilege of Parliament are named as defendants in suits instituted in courts of equity against them, either alone or jointly with other persons, for enforcing against them demands and duties cognizable in courts of equity, and in some cases such defendants having privileges of Parliament have stood out to the return of process of sequestration issued against them for enforcing appearance, and such process of sequestration hath not been found sufficient to enforce such appearance: Be it therefore enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act, in case any defendant having privilege of Parliament shall, upon a return of process of sequestration issued against him for not putting in an appearance to any original or other bill of complaint instituted against him in a court of equity for enforcing discovery and relief, or discovery alone, (as the case may be,) neglect to appear, that then and in such case such court, upon producing the return of such sequestration in court, may, on the motion or other application of the plaintiff in such cause, appoint a clerk in court to enter an appearance for such defendant so having privilege of Parliament, and such proceedings may be thereupon had in the cause as if the party had actually appeared.

Appearances in courts of equity may be put in for defendants having privilege of Parliament, on return of process of sequestration.

Where persons having privilege of Parliament neglect to answer any bill in equity, bill shall be taken pro confesso.

X. AND whereas in many cases it is necessary, on the part of the persons having legal rights against persons having privilege of Parliament, to proceed by bill in equity against such persons so having privilege of Parliament, to obtain from them discovery on oath of facts intended to be used or given in evidence in courts of law against the persons making such discovery; and in cases where such persons having such privilege as aforesaid shall stand out process of contempt, parties entitled to such discovery against them have not sufficient means of compelling or obtaining the same in all cases: Be it therefore enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act, when any defendant having privilege of Parliament shall have appeared to any bill filed against him seeking a discovery upon oath, or when an appearance shall have been entered for such defendant according to the provisions aforesaid, and such person shall refuse or neglect to put in his answer to such bill within the time for that purpose allowed by the rules and orders of such court, that then it shall and may be lawful for the plaintiff in such suit to apply to the court for an order that such bill shall be taken pro confesso against such defendant, and upon such application such court of equity shall make an order that such bill shall be taken pro confesso, unless the defendant shall within eight days after being served with such order show good cause to the contrary.

Such bill shall be read in evidence as an answer admitting the facts.

XI. AND be it further enacted, that when and so soon as any such order shall have been pronounced by any such court of equity for taking such bill pro confesso, such bill in equity, or an examined copy thereof, so taken pro confesso, shall be taken and read in any court of law or equity as evidence of the facts and matters and things therein contained, in the same manner as if such facts, matters, and things had been admitted to be true by the answer of the defendant put in to such bill; and such bill so taken pro confesso shall be received and taken in evidence of such and the same facts, and on behalf of such and so many persons, as the answer of the defendant to the said bill could and might have been read and received in evidence of, in case such answer had been put in by the defendant thereto, and had admitted the same facts, matters, and circumstances, as in such bill stated and set forth; and in like manner every other bill of discovery taken pro confesso, under any of the provisions of this Act, shall or may be taken and read as evidence of the facts and matters and things therein contained, to the extent aforesaid.

Rules of the Court of Chancery as to process of con-

XII. AND for remedying the practice of courts of equity in regard to process of contempt and the taking of bills pro confesso, be it further enacted, that the rules and regulations herein-after provided and contained shall be adopted by the High Court of Chancery in Ireland, and shall from henceforth become orders and rules of the said Court of Chancery, and be observed and enforced in and by the said court; (that is to say,) tempt and taking bills pro confesso.

1. That where a defendant is confined for a misdemeanor, and has been brought before the court upon an habeas corpus, and thereupon has been turned over to the said marshalsea, pro formâ, but has been carried back to the prison from whence he came with his cause, another writ of habeas corpus may issue, directed to the gaoler or keeper of the prison to which he has been carried back; and thereupon the defendant shall be brought into court, and remanded to the prison from whence he came, with his cause, without being turned over again to the said marshalsea, and the bill may be taken pro confesso in the same manner in all respects as if the defendant had been all along in the custody of the marshal of the said marshalsea.
2. That if the defendant, under process of contempt for not appearing or not answering, be in actual custody, and shall not have been sooner brought to the bar of the court under process to answer his contempt, the plaintiff, if the contempt be not sooner cleared, shall bring the defendant by an habeas corpus to the bar of the court within thirty days from the time of his being actually in custody, or detained (being already in custody) upon process of contempt, and if the last day of such thirty days shall happen out of term, then within the four first days of the ensuing term; and where the defendant is in custody of the serjeant at arms or of the messenger upon an attachment or other process the plaintiff shall, within ten days after his being taken into such custody, or, if the last of such ten days shall happen out of term, then within the first four days of the next ensuing term, cause the defendant to be brought to the bar of the court; and in case any such defendant shall not be brought to the bar of the court within the respective times aforesaid the sheriff, gaoler or keeper, serjeant at arms or messenger, in whose custody he shall be, shall thereupon discharge him out of custody without payment by him of the costs of contempt, which shall be payable by the party on whose behalf the process issued;
3. That if a defendant, upon being brought before the court upon an habeas corpus, shall make oath (which shall be administered to him by the registrar, and he shall be examined in open court,) that he is unable by reason of poverty to employ a solicitor to put in his answer, the court shall thereupon refer it to a master in rotation to inquire into the truth of that allegation, and to report thereon to the court forthwith; and thereupon the court may make such order as upon other reports of the like nature under the provisions herein-after contained.
4. That on the thirtieth day of January, the thirtieth day of April, the thirtieth day of July, and the thirtieth day of October in every year, or if any of those days happen on a Sunday, then on the following day, one of the masters of the Court of Chancery, to be named by the court, shall visit the said marshalsea prison, and examine the prisoners confined there for contempt, and shall report his opinion on their respective cases to the court; and thereupon it shall be lawful for the court to order, if it shall see fit, that the costs of the contempt of any such prisoner shall be paid out of the interest and dividends arising from the several government or parliamentary securities standing in the name of the accountant general of the said Court of Chancery, intituled "Account of monies placed out for the benefit and better security of the suitors of the High Court of Chancery," and "Account of securities purchased with surplus interest arising from securities carried to an account of monies placed out for the benefit and better security of the suitors of the High Court of Chancery," or out of any cash standing to either of such accounts, or to any other account which is now or hereafter may be standing to the credit of the suitors of the said Court of Chancery, (after and subject to the payment of all charges which by any Act heretofore passed are directed to be paid thereout,) and to assign a solicitor and counsel to such prisoner, for putting in his answer and defending him in formâ pauperis, and to direct any such prisoner, having previously done such acts as the court shall direct, to be discharged out of custody; provided that if any such defendant shall become entitled to any funds out of such cause, the same shall be applied, under the direction of said court, in the first instance, to the reimbursement of the suitors fund.

5. That it shall be lawful for the master visiting the said marshalsea, or to whom the case of a prisoner shall be referred by the court itself, to examine the prisoner and all other persons whom he may think it proper to examine upon oath, and to administer an oath or oaths to any such prisoner and other persons accordingly, and to cause any officers, clerks, and ministers of any court of law or equity to bring and produce upon oath before him any records, orders, books, papers, or other writings belonging to the said courts, or to any officers within the same as such officers.
6. That if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court that any such prisoner is an idiot, lunatic, or of unsound mind, although no commission has issued, the court shall appoint a guardian to put in his answer, and discharge the defendant, providing for the costs in any of the ways pointed out by this Act, as shall seem just; and if the court shall see fit, the defence may be made by such guardian in formâ pauperis.
7. That where the defendant has been brought to the bar of the court for his contempt in not answering, and refuses or neglects to answer, (not being idiot, lunatic, or of unsound mind,) the court may, upon motion or petition, of which due notice shall be given personally to the defendant, authorize the plaintiff to amend his bill, without such amendment operating as a discharge of the contempt, or rendering it necessary to proceed with the process of contempt de novo; but after such amendment the plaintiff may proceed to take the amended bill pro confesso, in the same manner as if it had not been amended: Provided nevertheless, that if the defendant shall be desirous to answer such amended bill, the court shall allow him such time as shall seem just for that purpose; but if he shall not within the time allowed by the court put in a sufficient answer to the amended bill, the process for taking the bill pro confesso may be resumed and carried on.

8. That in every case where the defendant has been brought to the bar of the court to answer his contempt for not answering, and shall refuse or neglect to answer within the next twenty-one days, the plaintiff shall be at liberty, with the leave of the court, upon ten days previous notice to the defendant, after the expiration of such twenty-one days, unless good cause be shown to the contrary, instead of proceeding to have the bill taken pro confesso, to put in such an answer to the bill as herein-after is mentioned, in the name of the defendant, without oath or signature; and thereupon the suit shall proceed in the same manner as if such answer were really the answer of the defendant, with which the plaintiff was satisfied, and the costs of the contempt and of putting in such answer may be provided for in like manner as if the defendant himself had put in such answer; and such answer, besides the formal parts thereof, shall be to the following effect; that the defendant leaves the plaintiff to make such proofs of the several matters in the bill alleged as he shall be able or be advised, and submits his interests to the court.
9. That in any case where, upon the application of the plaintiff, the court shall be satisfied that justice cannot be done to the plaintiff without an answer to the bill or to the interrogatories from the defendant himself, it shall be lawful for the court to order the defendant to remain in custody until answer or further order, but without prejudice to the plaintiff's availing himself of any of the provisions of this Act.
10. That where the defendant is in contempt for not appearing or not answering, and in actual custody under process for such contempt, or being already in custody shall be detained by an attachment for such contempt, and shall not, where the contempt is for not appearing, enter an appearance within twenty-one days after he is lodged in gaol or prison, or the attachment is lodged against him (he being already in prison), as the case may be, or, where the contempt is for not answering, put in an answer within two calendar months after he is lodged in gaol or prison, or the attachment is lodged against him, he being already in prison, the plaintiff shall (as the case may be), within fourteen days after the period computed from the expiration of such twenty-one days within which he may by the provisions of this Act be able to enter such appearance, cause an appearance to be entered for the defendant under the powers of this Act, and shall at the expiration of such two calendar months proceed to take the bill pro confesso, and shall accordingly obtain an order for taking the same pro confesso within six weeks after the period computed from the expiration of such two calendar months within which he may be able to take the same pro confesso; or in default of so doing in either of such cases the defendant shall, upon application to the court, be entitled to be discharged out of custody without paying any of the costs of the contempt, unless the court shall, under the power herein-before contained, see good cause to remand and detain the defendant in custody;
- . . . . .
11. That where a defendant is in custody for a contempt in not answering, and shall be able to put in his answer without taking an office copy of the bill, he shall not be compellable to take any such copy, but the proper officer may (if he think the defendant is of sufficient ability to pay for an office copy, and an office copy ought by the practice of the court to be taken out,) require him, before the answer is filed, to make an affidavit denying his ability in consequence of poverty to pay for an office copy of the bill.

12. That when any person shall have been directed by any decree or order to execute any deed or other instrument, or make a surrender or transfer, and shall have refused or neglected to execute such deed or instrument, or to make such surrender or transfer, and shall have been committed to prison under process for such contempt, or, being confined in prison for any other cause, shall have been charged with or detained under process for such contempt, and shall remain in such prison, and the court shall, under the powers of an Act passed in the fourth and fifth years of his present Majesty's reign, have ordered one of the masters to execute any deed or other instrument, surrender or transfer, for and in the name of such person, in every such case, within ten days after the execution or making of any such deed or other instrument or surrender or transfer, notice thereof shall be given by the adverse solicitor to the party in whose name the same is executed or made; and such party, as soon as the deed or other instrument or surrender or transfer shall be executed, made, levied, or suffered, shall be considered as having cleared his contempt, except as far as regards the payment of the costs of the contempt, and shall be entitled to be discharged therefrom under any of the provisions of this Act applicable to his case; and the court shall make such order as shall be just touching the payment of the costs of or attending any such deed, surrender, instrument, or transfer.
13. Law Rev. Act, 1874.] wheresoever, in any such bond or security as aforesaid, or in the condition thereof respectively, or in any Act or Acts now in force, mention is made of the receiver general of stamp duties or of the receiver general of land and assessed taxes for the London district, the same, with reference to any act, matter, or thing to be done or performed after the commencement of this Act, shall be deemed and construed to apply to and to mean the receiver general of stamps and taxes; and that wheresoever in any such bond or security or condition as aforesaid, or in any Act or Acts now in force, mention is made of the accountant and comptroller general of stamp duties or the comptroller of accounts of land and assessed taxes, the same, with reference to any such act, matter, or thing as aforesaid, shall be deemed and construed to apply to and to mean the accountant and comptroller general of stamps and taxes.

AND whereas by an Act passed in the forty-third year of the reign of King George the Third, intituled "An Act for consolidating certain of the provisions contained in any Act or Acts relating to the duties under the management of the commissioners for the affairs of taxes, and for amending the same," it is enacted, that the commissioners of taxes shall make out their schedules containing the sums discharged from assessment for any cause specially allowed by law, and the sums with which each and every defaulter ought to be charged, and the sums which shall not have been collected by occasion of the collector's neglect, and which ought to be re-assessed on the parish, ward, or place, and shall cause the said several particulars to be inserted in a schedule fairly written on parchment under the hands and seals of such commissioners or any two or more of them, containing the names and surnames of the said collectors, and the same to be delivered to the receiver general, to be returned by such receiver general into his Majesty's Court of Exchequer, whereupon every person so making default of payment, and each parish, ward, or place so in default, may be charged by process of court according to the course thereof in that behalf: And whereas it is expedient that such schedules as aforesaid should be deposited and remain with the said commissioners of stamps and taxes at their head office: Be it therefore enacted, that all such schedules as aforesaid, which shall be made out at any time after the commencement of this Act, shall be delivered over or transmitted by the receiver general, receiving inspector, or other receiver to whom the same shall have been delivered, to the commissioners of stamps and taxes, and shall be deposited and remain in the head office of the said last-mentioned commissioners; and the production of any schedule so deposited and purporting to contain the name or names of any such defaulter or defaulters as aforesaid shall be conclusive evidence against any person named therein as making default of payment, and against every parish, ward, or place named therein as in default, of the sum or sums mentioned in any such schedule being due and owing and in arrear and unpaid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, unless payment thereof shall be proved ; and every such sum shall be recoverable from the person and persons making default of payment thereof as a debt upon record to the King's Majesty, his heirs and successors, with full costs of suit, and all charges attending the same.

XVI. AND whereas by the last-recited Act, where any person shall quit his or her place of residence and remove to any other parish or place without first discharging or paying the duties charged upon him or her, the commissioners acting within the parish or place where such duties are charged upon and unpaid by the person removing as aforesaid, are directed to sign and cause to be transmitted a certificate thereof to the commissioners acting within the parish or place where the person making such default or payment shall happen to reside ; which commissioners, or any two or more of them, are thereby directed and empowered to raise and levy the said duties charged upon the party removed as aforesaid : And whereas it frequently happens that no sufficient distress can be found within the district or division of the said last-mentioned commissioners whereby the said duties may be levied, and it is expedient to provide a further remedy for the recovery of the said duties in such cases : Be it therefore enacted, that where, upon the transmission of any such certificate as aforesaid, no sufficient distress can be found within the district or division of the commissioners acting for the parish or place within which the person removed shall happen to reside whereby the said duties may be levied, then and in every such case any two or more of such last-mentioned commissioners are hereby authorized and required, by warrant under their hands and seals, to commit the person so making default of payment as aforesaid to the common gaol, there to be kept without bail or mainprise until payment shall be made of the said duties and of all reasonable costs and expenses.

XVIII. AND be it enacted, that where, under or by virtue of any Act or Acts in force, any person hath been or shall be committed to prison by or under any warrant of the commissioners of taxes acting within or for any district or division, for or by reason of his or her neglect or omission to pay any duties which may have been assessed or charged upon him or her, or any penalty incurred by him or her under any Act or Acts in force relating to the land or assessed taxes, and he or she is or shall be detained in custody solely under the authority of any such warrant as aforesaid, it shall be lawful for the same commissioners, or for any two or more of the commissioners acting within or for the same district or division, and they are hereby fully authorized and required, at the request or by the direction of the commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury or the commissioners of stamps and taxes for the time being, signified in writing signed by the secretary or one of the secretaries of the said respective commissioners last mentioned, to issue their warrant to the gaoler or keeper of any gaol or prison in which any such person may be detained, for the liberation of such prisoner; and upon the receipt of such last-mentioned warrant such gaoler or keeper shall forthwith release and discharge out of custody such prisoner, if for no other cause than as aforesaid he or she shall be detained.

CHAPTER XXVI.

AN ACT for the Appointment of convenient Places for the holding of Assizes in Ireland. [21st August 1835.]

WHEREAS, by a statute made in the sixth year of the reign of King Richard the Second, it was ordained, that the justices assigned to take assizes and deliver the gaols should hold their sessions in the principal and chief towns of every of the counties where the shire courts of the same counties should be holden: And whereas by a statute made in the eleventh year of the same reign, reciting so much of the said statute of the sixth year as is herein-before recited, and stating that the said statute was in part prejudicial and grievous to the people of divers counties in England, it was provided that the chancellor of England for the time being should have power thereof to make and provide remedy, by advice of the justices, from time to time when need should be, notwithstanding the said statute: And whereas the places at which the assizes are now held in various counties of Ireland are inconvenient to the inhabitants thereof, and it would conduce to the more cheap, speedy, and effectual administration of justice to appoint other places instead thereof for the holding of assizes; but doubts may be entertained whether that object can be fully effected by virtue of the statutes herein-before referred to: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that so much of each of the said statutes as relates or may be construed to relate to holding assizes or sessions in Ireland shall be and the same is hereby repealed. Lord lieutenant, &c. in council may direct at what places assizes and sessions shall be held, and that they may be held in more than one place in the county; as also special commissions.

III. PROVIDED always, and be it enacted, that it shall not be lawful for the lord lieutenant or other chief governor or governors of Ireland, and the privy council there, to make any order for changing the place for holding the assizes in any county, or for dividing any county, for the purposes of this Act, unless a memorial shall have been presented to him or them by a majority of the grand jury of the assizes of such county, praying that such change or division may be made.

IV. AND be it enacted, that in case the lord lieutenant or other chief governor or governors of Ireland, by and with the advice of the privy council of Ireland, shall think fit to order and direct that the assizes or any such special commissions shall be holden at more than one place in any one county, it shall be lawful for the lord lieutenant or other chief governor or governors,

Parliament of Ireland in the eleventh year of the reign of her said late Majesty, each of such Acts being intituled "An Act for the better preventing " of excessive and deceitful gaming," it was enacted, that from and after the several days therein respectively mentioned all notes, bills, bonds, judgments, mortgages, or other securities or conveyances whatsoever, given, granted, drawn, or entered into or executed by any person or persons whatsoever, where the whole or any part of the consideration of such conveyances or securities should be for any money or other valuable thing whatsoever won by gaming or playing at cards, dice, tables, tennis, bowls, or other game or games whatsoever, or by betting on the sides or hands of such as did game at any of the games the same, such mortgages, securities, or other conveyances should enure and be to and for the sole use and benefit of and should devolve upon such person or persons as should or might have or be entitled to such lands or heredita-

Repeal of so much of 9 Ann. c. 19. and Irish Act 11 Ann. c. 5. as enacts that securities shall enure for the benefit of parties in remainder.

III. AND be it further enacted, that so much of the said Acts of the ninth and eleventh years of the reign of her said late Majesty Queen Anne as enacts that where such mortgages, securities, or other conveyances as therein mentioned should be of lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or should be such as should incumber or affect the same, such mortgages, securities, or other conveyances should enure and be to and for the sole use and benefit of and should devolve upon such person or persons as should or might have or be entitled to such lands or hereditaments in case the grantor or grantors thereof, or the person or persons incumbering the same, had been naturally dead, and as if such mortgages, securities, or other conveyances had been made to such person or persons so to be entitled after the decease of the person or persons so incumbering the same, and that all grants or conveyances to be made for the preventing XIII. AND whereas a practice has prevailed of administering and receiving oaths and affidavits voluntarily taken and made in matters not the subject of any judicial inquiry, nor in anywise pending or at issue before the justice of the peace or other person by whom such oaths or affidavits have been administered or received: And whereas doubts have arisen whether or not such proceeding is illegal: For the more effectual suppression of such practice and removing such doubts, be it enacted, that from and after the commencement of this Act it shall not be lawful for any justice of the peace or other person to administer or cause or allow to be administered, or to receive or cause or allow to be received, any oath, affidavit, or solemn affirmation touching any matter or thing whereof such justice or other person hath not jurisdiction or cognizance by some statute in force at the time being: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to extend to any oath, affidavit, or solemn affirmation before any justice in any matter or thing touching the preservation of the peace, or the prosecution, trial, or punishment of offences, or touching any proceedings before either of the Houses of Parliament or any committee thereof respectively, nor to any oath, affidavit, or affirmation which may be required by the laws of any foreign country to give validity to instruments in writing designed to be used in such foreign countries respectively.

XIV. AND be it further enacted, that in any case in which it has been the usual practice of the Bank of England to receive affidavits on oath to prove the death of any proprietor of any stocks or funds transferable there, or to identify the person of any such proprietor, or to remove any other impediment to the transfer of any such stocks or funds, or relating to the loss, mutilation, or defacement of any bank note or bank post bill, no such oath or affidavit shall in future be required to be taken or made, but in lieu thereof the person who might have been required to take or make such oath or affidavit shall make and subscribe a declaration to the same effect as such oath or affidavit.

[XV.] AND whereas an Act was passed in the fifth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Second, intituled "An Act for the more easy recovery of debts in his Majesty's plantations and colonies in America": And whereas another Act was passed in the fifty-fourth year of the reign of

XVI. AND be it further enacted, that it shall and may be lawful to and for any attesting witness to the execution of any will or codicil, deed or instrument in writing, and to and for any other competent person, to verify and prove the signing, sealing, publication, or delivery of any such will, codicil, deed, or instrument in writing, by such declaration in writing made as aforesaid; and every such justice, notary, or other officer shall be and is hereby authorized and empowered to administer or receive such declaration.

SCHEDULE referred to by the foregoing Act.

I A.B. do solemnly and sincerely declare, that and I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing the same to be true, and by virtue of the provisions of an Act made and passed in the year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled "An Act" [here insert the title of this Act].

CHAPTER LXIII.

AN ACT to repeal an Act of the Fourth and Fifth Year of His present Majesty relating to Weights and Measures, and to make other Provisions instead thereof. [9th September 1835.]

WHEREAS an Act was passed in the fourth and fifth years of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled "An Act to amend and render more effectual two Acts of the fifth and sixth years of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Fourth, relating to weights and measures": And whereas it is expedient to repeal the same, and to make other provisions instead thereof: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that the said Act shall be and the same is hereby repealed. [Rep., Stat. Law Rev. Act, 1874.]

Recital of 4 & 5 Will. 4.
c. 49.

Recited Act
repealed.

III. AND whereas an Act passed in the fifth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Fourth, intituled "An Act for ascertaining and establishing uniformity of weights and measures": And whereas another Act passed in the sixth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, intituled "An Act to prolong the time of the commencement of an Act of the last session of Parliament, for ascertaining and establishing uniformity of weights and measures, and to amend the said Act": And whereas, notwithstanding the provisions of the said recited Acts, many sets of weights and measures of old accustomed and different shapes have been made and verified and stamped by the chamberlains as well as by the auditor in the Exchequer, as models of the said new standards, and have been used as standard weights and measures under the said recited Acts, although different in shape and form from the standards prescribed by the said recited Act of the fifth year aforesaid; and it is therefore expedient that such standard weights and measures should be made legal, and that the comptroller general or some other officer of the Exchequer duly authorized should be empowered to compare and verify, and stamp as so compared and verified, standards of length, weight, or measure, although not exact models and copies in shape and form of the respective standards of length, weight, and measure deposited under the provisions of the said first-recited Acts in the office of the said chamberlains and auditor: And whereas it is expedient that the use of all weights and measures not in conformity with the weights and measures established by the said recited Acts should be prohibited, and that the use of the heaped measure should be abolished: Be it therefore enacted, that so much of the said last-mentioned recited Acts as require that all weights and measures shall be models and copies in shape or form of the standards deposited in the Exchequer, and also so much of the said recited Acts as allow the use of weights and measures not in conformity with the imperial standard weights and measures established by the said Acts, or allow goods or merchandise to be bought or sold by any weights or measures established by local custom or founded on special agreement, shall be and the same are hereby repealed. [Rep., Stat. Law Rev. Act, 1874.]

Provisions of last recited Acts as to models and copies of standard weights and measures
repealed.

IV. AND be it enacted, that all weights and measures which have been so verified and stamped at the Exchequer at Westminster as copies of the standard weights and measures, corresponding in weight and capacity with those established by the said recited Acts, shall be deemed and taken to be legal weights and measures, to be used for comparison as copies of the imperial standard required by recited Acts.

Officer may verify and

and measures
of other form than those prescribed by 5 Geo. 4. c. 74.

Copies of

weights and measures, although not similar in shape to those required under the provisions of the said recited Acts; and that the comptroller general, or some other officer of the Exchequer at Westminster duly authorized, may compare and verify, and stamp as so compared and verified, as correct standard measures of a yard, and as correct standard weights, and as correct standard measures of capacity, any weights and measures which shall correspond in length, weight, and capacity with the standards, or parts or multiples thereof respectively, deposited in the Exchequer under the said Act of the fifth year aforesaid, although such weights and measures may not be models or copies in shape or form of the standards so deposited as aforesaid, anything in the said recited Acts to the contrary notwithstanding.

V. AND be it enacted, that all copies of the imperial standard weights and measures which may have become defective, or have been mended in consequence of any wear or accident, shall forthwith be sent to the Exchequer at Westminster for the purpose of being again compared and verified, and shall be stamped as re-verified copies of the imperial standard weights and measures, provided that the comptroller general or other officer appointed for such verification shall deem them fit to be used for the purposes of standards; and every new comparison and verification shall be endorsed upon the original indenture of verification; . . . . . and the comptroller general or other officer at the Exchequer duly authorized shall keep an account or register of all copies of the imperial standard weights and measures that shall have been verified at the Exchequer.

VI. AND be it enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act the measure called the Winchester bushel, and the lineal measure called the Scotch ell, and all local or customary measures, shall be abolished; and every person who shall sell, by any denomination of measure other than one of the imperial measures, or some multiple or some aliquot part, such as half, the quarter, the eighth, the sixteenth, or the thirty-second parts thereof, shall, on conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding the sum of forty shillings for every such sale: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the sale of any articles in any vessel, where such vessel is not represented as containing any amount of imperial measure, or of any fixed, local, or customary measure heretofore in use.

VII. AND whereas the heaped measure is liable to considerable variation: Be it therefore enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act so much of the said recited Acts as relate to the heaped measure shall be and are hereby repealed, and the use of the heaped measure shall be abolished, and all bargains, sales, and contracts which shall be made after the passing of this Act by the heaped measure shall be null and void; and every person who shall sell any articles by the heaped measure shall, on conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings for every such sale.

VIII. AND whereas some articles heretofore sold by heaped measure are from their size and shape incapable of being stricken, and from their nature and quality may not be conveniently sold by weight: Be it therefore enacted, that all such articles may henceforth be sold by a bushel measure, corresponding in shape with the bushel prescribed in and by the said Act passed in the fifth year of the reign of his late Majesty for the sale of heaped measure, or by any multiple or by some aliquot part, such as the half, the quarter, or the eighth part thereof, filled in all parts as nearly to the level of the brim as the size and shape of the articles sold will admit: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the sale by weight of any article heretofore sold by heaped measure.

IX. AND whereas the sale of all coals, slack, culm, and cannel of every description by weight, and not by measure, would tend greatly to prevent the commission of frauds and impositions in the vend and delivery of such coals, slack, culm, and cannel of every description: Be it therefore enacted, that from and after the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and thirty-six all coals, slack, culm, and cannel of every description shall be sold by weight, and not by measure; and every person who shall from and after the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and thirty-six sell any coals, slack, culm, or cannel of every description by measure, and not by weight, shall, on conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings for every such sale.

Coals to be sold by weight and not by measure.

X. AND be it enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act all articles sold by weight shall be sold by avoirdupois weight, except gold, silver, platina, diamonds, or other precious stones, which may be sold by troy weight, and drugs, which, when sold by retail, may be sold by apothecaries weight.

All articles to be sold by avoirdupois weight, except as herein stated.

XI. AND whereas by local customs in markets, towns, and other places throughout the United Kingdom the denomination of the stone weight varies: Be it therefore enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act the weight denominated a stone shall in all cases consist of fourteen standard pounds avoirdupois, and that the weight denominated an hundredweight shall consist of eight such stones, and that the weight denominated a ton shall consist of twenty such hundredweight: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall prevent any bargain, sale, or contract being made by any multiple or by some aliquot part, such as the half, the quarter, the eighth, or the sixteenth part of the pound weight.

Definition of the stone weight, hun-dredweight, and ton.

XII. AND be it enacted, that all weights which shall be made after the passing of this Act of the weight of one pound avoirdupois or more shall have the number of pounds contained in every such weight stamped or cast on the top or side thereof in legible figures and letters; and that all measures of capacity which shall be made after the passing of this Act shall have their contents denominated, stamped, or marked on the outside of such measures in legible figures and letters.

Contents of weights and measures to be stamped on them.

XIII. AND whereas the use of weights made of soft materials affords facility to fraud: Be it therefore enacted, that from and after the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and thirty-six no weight made of lead or of pewter, or of any mixture thereof, shall be stamped or used: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the use of lead or pewter, or of any mixture thereof, in the manufacture of weights, if they be wholly and substantially cased with brass, copper, or iron, and legibly stamped or marked "cased," or shall prevent the insertion of such a plug of lead or pewter into weights as shall be bonâ fide necessary for the purpose of adjusting them and of affixing thereon the stamp herein-after mentioned.

Weights made of lead or pewter not to be stamped or used, unless they be cased,
&c.

AND for the purpose of ascertaining and providing for the fulfilment of all existing contracts, and fixing the payments to be made of all stipends, feu duties, rents, tolls, customs, casualties, and other demands whatsoever payable in grain, malt, or meal, or any other commodity or thing, in Scotland, or in any other place or district of the same, according to the weights and measures heretofore in use, when such payments shall not have been already ascertained and fixed by agreement between parties, or under the provisions of the said Act of the fifth year of his late Majesty, be it enacted, that the sheriff in each shire in Scotland shall, on the application of any party to such sheriff, as soon as conveniently may be after the expiration of three calendar months from and after the passing of this Act, summon and impanel a jury, of the same number and of the same qualifications which are required in the jury who strike the fiar prices of grain within the same shire, to assemble at such place or places as he shall find convenient, which jury shall inquire into and ascertain the amount, according to the standards by this Act established, of all such stipends, feu duties, rents, tolls, customs, casualties, and other demands whatsoever payable in grain, malt, meal, or any other commodity or thing, according to the weights and measures heretofore in use within the same shires; and in taking such inquisition care shall be taken that in every case in which grain, malt, or meal, or any other commodity or thing, having before the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five been sold by weight, shall henceforth be sold by measure, or, having before the said first day of January been sold by measure, shall henceforth be sold by weight, no increase or diminution be made in the amount of any stipend, feu duty, rent, toll, custom, or casualty heretofore payable for such grain, malt, or any other commodity or thing, due regard being had to the substitution of measure for weight, or of weight for measure, as the case may be; and such inquisitions, when taken, shall be transmitted by the respective sheriff clerks of such shire into his Majesty's Court of Exchequer at Edinburgh, and shall there be enrolled of record, and shall and may be given in evidence in any action at law; and the amount so to be ascertained shall, when converted into the standard weights and measures, be the rule of payment in regard to all such stipends, feu duties, rents, tolls, customs, casualties, and other demands whatsoever in all time coming; and the costs and charges of such inquisitions and the enrolment thereof shall be assessed and levied, paid and defrayed, by the party on whose application such inquisition shall have been taken.

Treasury may compound with the East India Company for the stamp duties on India bonds.

IV. AND whereas it is expedient that the bonds to be made and issued by the East India Company for the payment of any definite and certain sum of money should be freed and exempted from all stamp duties upon payment by the said company of an annual sum as a composition for and in lieu of such duties, in the manner, herein-after mentioned: Be it therefore enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act it shall be lawful for the commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury for the time being, or any three or more of them, from time to time to compound and agree with the East India Company for the payment by the said company of such an annual sum of money as the said commissioners shall deem to be a reasonable composition for and in lieu of the stamp duties which would otherwise be payable on such bonds as aforesaid, to be made and issued by the said company at any time during the term for which such composition shall be made; which said sum of money so agreed upon shall be paid to the receiver general of stamps and taxes by two equal half-yearly payments on such days in every year during the said term as the said commissioners shall appoint for that purpose, and the payment thereof accordingly shall be secured by the bond of the said company, which is hereby exempted from stamp duty; and every such composition shall be made either for one year or for any term not exceeding five years, at the discretion of the said commissioners, and may be renewed and continued from time to time for any further term not exceeding as aforesaid, and for the payment of the same or any greater or less annual sum, as the said commissioners shall deem to be reasonable; and upon such composition being agreed upon and secured in manner aforesaid, all the bonds for the payment of any definite and certain sum or sums of money, which shall be made and issued by the said company during the term for which such composition shall be made, renewed, or continued, shall be and the same are hereby freed and exempted from all stamp duties.

Treasury may appoint distributors and sub-distributors of stamps to be collectors of the land and assessed taxes in Scotland, &c.

X. AND whereas the revenues arising from the duties of stamps and the land and assessed taxes in Great Britain are now under the care and management of one consolidated board of commissioners of stamps and taxes, and it would facilitate the collection of the land and assessed taxes in Scotland, and tend to reduce the expense of receiving and remitting that branch of the public revenue, if the several distributors and sub-distributors of stamps or other persons employed in the receipt and collection of the stamp duties in Scotland were also appointed collectors of the land and assessed taxes: Be it therefore enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act it shall be lawful for the commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury, or any three or more of them, to appoint such and so many of the distributors and sub-distributors of stamps in Scotland, or such other persons as the said commissioners may think fit, to be collectors or other officers for collecting and receiving the land tax and assessed taxes in Scotland, and for such parts of Scotland and with such salaries and allowances as the said commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury shall think fit, and such persons shall hold their respective offices during the will and pleasure of the said commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury or of the commissioners of stamps and taxes, in such manner as the said commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury shall direct; and such persons shall in all matters and things relating to the execution of their duties be subject to the authority, directions, and control of the commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury and the commissioners of stamps and taxes, and shall obey such orders and instructions as shall from time to time be issued to them by the said commissioners respectively: Provided always, that the land tax commissioners and commissioners for putting in execution the Assessed Tax Acts in Scotland shall have no power or authority whatever to appoint persons to collect the said land tax and assessed taxes, or to remove, or call to account, or examine, or enforce payment of balances due by the persons appointed by virtue of this Act, anything in any Act or Acts contained to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided also, that if any persons other than the distributors and sub-distributors of stamps in Scotland shall be appointed as aforesaid to be collectors or other officers as aforesaid, then the names of such persons, with their respective salaries and allowances, shall be laid by the said commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury before Parliament within twenty-one days after the commencement of the session of Parliament which shall next follow every such appointment.

XI. AND be it enacted, that the collectors and other officers to be appointed as aforesaid shall, before they shall act in the execution of their respective offices, give security by bond to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, to such an amount and in such terms as the commissioners of stamps and taxes shall think fit, and with sufficient sureties to the satisfaction of the said commissioners.

Such collectors, &c. to give security.

WHEREAS his Majesty was pleased, by letters patent bearing date on the sixth day of June one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three, under the great seal appointed by the treaty of union to be kept and made use of in place of the great seal of Scotland, to appoint certain commissioners with instructions to inquire, inter alia, "as to the present form of enforcing "judicial decrees by the diligence of horning and caption and imprisonment, "and the expediency of any alteration in the law or forms touching such "proceedings": And whereas the said commissioners have made a report, from which it appears that great hardship is frequently suffered by poor persons in consequence of imprisonment for civil debts to a small amount, without producing thereby any adequate benefit to their creditors: And whereas it is expedient that a remedy should be provided: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from and after the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and thirty-six it shall not be lawful to imprison any person or persons on account of any civil debt which shall not exceed the sum of eight pounds six shillings and eight-pence sterling, exclusive of interest and expences thereon: . . . . .

Gaolers, &c. not to receive into their custody nor to apprehend any person for a debt not exceeding 8*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*

III. AND be it enacted, that on application made to the sheriff of the county in which the prison shall be situated, or to the magistrates having charge of any prison, by any prisoner incarcerated therein, showing that he is imprisoned or detained in gaol for a civil debt or debts contrary to the provisions of this Act, such sheriff or magistrates shall cause intimation to be made to the incarcerating creditor or creditors, upon induciæ of six days after intimation; and on being satisfied that the statement of the prisoner is consistent with truth, such sheriff or magistrates shall without delay grant warrant for his liberation in so far as regards the debt due to such creditor.

IV. AND be it enacted, that it shall not be lawful for any person to acquire from third parties, by assignation or otherwise, except by marriage or inheritance, one or more civil debts of or below the amount of eight pounds six shillings and eight-pence sterling, against any one individual, to the effect of accumulating such debts into one decree or warrant or writ, or of adding the same to debts previously due to him of or below the said amount, for the purpose of defeating this Act, by imprisoning the debtor for such accumulated debts.

AN ACT to provide that Persons accused of Forgery in Scotland shall not be entitled to Bail, unless in certain Cases. [9th September 1835.]

2 & 3 Will. 4.
c. 123.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the second and third years of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled "An Act for abolishing the punishment of death in certain cases of forgery," the punishment of death was commuted for that of transportation for life in all cases of forgery therein mentioned: And whereas since the passing of the said Act persons accused of forgery, in consequence of their crime being no longer capital, in general apply for and are admitted to bail, but very frequently abscond and avoid standing their trial, whereby the ends of justice are defeated: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from and after the passing of this Act no person or persons committed for trial in Scotland for any forgery or other offence which, prior to the passing of the before-mentioned Act, was a capital offence, and the punishment of which is by the said Act limited to and declared to be transportation for life, shall be entitled to insist on liberation on bail; but without prejudice to the liberation of such person or persons as heretofore on such bail as the public prosecutor may agree to.

No person committed for trial
for an offence formerly capital shall be entitled to insist on liberation on bail.

High Court or Circuit Court of Justiciary may grant privilege of bail when consistent with the ends of justice.

II. PROVIDED always, and be it enacted, that it shall be in the power of the High Court or Circuit Court of Justiciary in Scotland respectively, on the application of any person or persons accused of any crime which by the before-mentioned Act is declared to be no longer punishable with death, to admit him or them to the privilege of bail, provided it shall appear to the court to which such application is made to be consistent with the ends of justice to do so; but the bail so to be taken shall be of such amount, greater or less than the maximum fixed by the statutes applicable to Scotland now in force for crimes that are bailable, as the said court shall, under the whole circumstances of the case, think necessary for insuring the appearance for trial of the person or persons accused; any law or practice to the contrary notwithstanding.

CHAPTER LXXIV.

AN ACT for the more easy Recovery of Tithes.

[9th September 1835.]

WHEREAS an Act was passed in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of King William the Third, intituled "An Act for the more easy recovery of small tithes," whereby it was amongst other things enacted, that two or more of his Majesty's justices of the peace were authorized and required to hear and determine complaints touching small tithes, oblations, and compositions subtracted or withheld, not exceeding forty shillings: And whereas an Act was passed in the fifty-third year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Third, intituled "An Act for the better regulation of ecclesiastical courts in England, and for the more easy recovery of church rates and tithes," whereby the jurisdiction of the said justices was extended to all tithes, oblations, and compositions subtracted or withheld, where the same should not exceed ten pounds in amount from any one person: And whereas by an Act of the seventh and eighth years of the reign of King William the Third, chapter thirty-four, provision is made for the recovery of great and small tithes (not exceeding the amount of ten pounds) due from Quakers, by distress and sale, under the warrant of two justices: And whereas by an Act of the first year of the reign of King George the First, chapter six, the provisions of the said last-mentioned Act were extended, in the case of Quakers, to all tithes or rates, and customary rights, dues, and payments belonging to any church or chapel: And whereas by the said recited Act of the fifty-third year of the reign of King George the Third the aforesaid provisions in relation to Quakers were amended, and were also made applicable to any amount not exceeding fifty pounds: And whereas by an Act of the Parliament of Ireland of the seventh year of the reign of King George the Third, chapter twenty-one, amended and extended by an Act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom of the fifty-fourth year of the reign of King George the Third, chapter sixty-eight, similar provisions are in force in Ireland for the recovery, from Quakers, of great and small tithes, and customary and other rights, dues, and payments belonging to any church or chapel, not exceeding the amount of fifty pounds: And whereas it is highly expedient, and would further tend to prevent litigation, if, in the cases and with the exceptions herein-after mentioned, all claimants were restricted to the respective remedies provided by the said recited Acts: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from and after the passing of this Act no suit or other proceeding shall be had or instituted in any of his Majesty's courts in England now having cognizance of such matter for or in respect of any tithes, oblations, or compositions withheld, of or under the yearly value of ten pounds (save and except in the cases provided for in the two first-recited Acts); but that all complaints touching the same shall, except in the case of Quakers, be heard and determined only under the powers and provisions contained in the said two first-recited Acts of Parliament, in such and the same manner as if the same were herein set forth and re-enacted; and that no suit or other proceeding shall be had or instituted in any of his Majesty's courts either in England

Division of certain boroughs into wards by the barristers appointed to revise the lists, subject to approval of his Majesty.

XXXIX. AND whereas it is expedient that certain boroughs of large population should be divided into wards before any election of councillors for such boroughs should take place: Be it therefore enacted, that every borough in the said schedule.(A.) shall be divided into the number of wards mentioned in such schedule in conjunction with the name of such borough; and that it shall be lawful for the barrister or barristers appointed in pursuance of the provisions herein-before contained to revise the burgess and councillors lists of any borough in the present year, and he or they is and are hereby required, within the space of six weeks next after the passing of this Act, to determine and set out the extent, limits, and boundary lines of such wards, and what portions of such borough shall be included therein respectively; and the copy of the particulars of such division shall be forthwith transmitted to one of his Majesty's principal secretaries of state, and, if his Majesty by advice of his privy council shall approve such determination, shall be published in the London Gazette; and another copy of such particulars shall be delivered to the town clerk of such borough, to be by him safely kept among the public documents of such borough; and every such borough shall, after such publication as aforesaid, be deemed to be divided into such wards as shall be so determined and set out as aforesaid, and such division shall continue and be in force until the same shall be altered by authority of Parliament: Provided always, that if his Majesty, by advice of his privy council, shall not approve such determination, such publication as aforesaid shall nevertheless be made, and such division be in force for the purpose of any election under the provisions of this Act, and until such time as his Majesty shall by advice of his privy council, upon further information and report from such barristers, definitively approve the division of such borough into wards in manner herein-before mentioned.

Number of councillors for each ward to be assigned by the barristers according to certain rules, subject to approval of his Majesty.

XL. AND be it enacted, that the said barrister or barristers shall, after the division of the borough into such number of wards as is directed by this Act, apportion among the several wards of such borough the number of councillors mentioned in conjunction with the name of such borough in the said schedule (A.); and in assigning the number of councillors to each ward the said barrister or barristers shall, as far as in his or their judgment he or they may deem it to be practicable, have regard as well to the number of persons rated to the relief of the poor in such ward as to the aggregate amount of the sums at which all the said persons shall be so rated: Provided always, that the number of councillors assigned to each ward shall be a number divisible by three; and a copy of the particulars of the number of councillors so assigned to the several wards of the borough shall be forthwith transmitted to one of his Majesty's principal secretaries of state, and, subject as aforesaid to the approval of his Majesty by the advice of his privy council, shall be published in the London Gazette; and another copy of such particulars shall be delivered to the town clerk of the borough, to be by him safely kept among the public documents of such borough; and the number of councillors so assigned to each ward of such borough shall, after such publication as aforesaid, be the number to be elected in such ward, and shall so continue until the same shall be altered by authority of Parliament: Provided always, that if his Majesty, by the advice of his privy council, shall not approve the number of councillors so assigned to each ward, such publication shall nevertheless be made, and the number of councillors so assigned to each ward of such borough by such barrister shall be the number to be elected in such ward at any election of councillors under this Act until such time as his Majesty shall by advice of his privy council, upon further information and report from such barrister, definitively approve such assignment in manner herein-before mentioned.

XLII. AND whereas it may be convenient in divers boroughs to adhere in the division of the same into wards to the ancient division thereof into parishes or into districts under any local Act, or to adapt such division to local circumstances, and such division so made might render difficult such apportionment of councillors as is herein-before directed: Be it therefore enacted, that in every such case the said barrister or barristers shall be empowered, at his or their discretion, subject as aforesaid to the approval of his Majesty by the advice of his privy council, to divide any borough in conjunction with the name of which, in the said schedule (A.), shall be mentioned any number of wards greater than two, into any number of wards more or less by one than the number of wards mentioned in conjunction with the name of such borough in the said schedule.

Where ancient divisions are adhered to, the specified number of wards may be departed from.

XLIII. AND be it enacted, that the said barrister or barristers shall have power to require any overseer, or person having the custody of any book containing any rate made for the relief of the poor, in any parish wholly or in part within any borough to be divided into wards, to produce such book before and allow the same to be inspected by the said barrister or barristers; and the said barrister or barristers shall have power to administer an oath to the overseers and to all other persons, who are hereby required to answer upon oath all such questions as the said barrister or barristers may put to them or any of them touching any matter which the said barrister or barristers may deem necessary for enabling them to execute the duties by this Act imposed upon them. [XLIV.*] AND be it enacted, that every burgess of any borough shall be entitled to vote in the election of the councillors and assessors to be chosen within that ward in which the property of such burgess for which he appears to be rated on the burgess roll for the time being of such borough shall appear to be situated, and not otherwise; and if any burgess shall be rated in respect of distinct premises in two or more wards, then he shall be entitled to be enrolled and to vote in such one of the said wards as he shall select, but not in more than one.

Burgess roll to be made out in the form of ward lists.

XLV. AND be it enacted, that, for the purpose of better ascertaining who are the burgesses of any such ward, the burgess roll of every borough so divided into wards shall thenceforward be made out, by or under the direction of the town clerk, in alphabetical lists of the burgesses in each ward, to be called "Ward Lists."

Mode of proceeding if any person is elected a councillor or assessor in more than one ward.

[XLVI.*] AND be it enacted, that if at any election of councillors or assessors for any borough any person shall be elected a councillor or assessor in more than one of the wards of such borough, he shall within three days after notice thereof choose, or in his default the mayor shall declare, for which one of the said wards such councillor or assessor shall serve; and such person shall thereupon be held to be elected in that ward only which he shall so choose, or which the mayor shall so declare.

AND be it enacted, that the council to be elected for any borough shall, immediately after their first election, and so from time to time thereafter as they shall deem expedient, appoint, for such time as they may think proper, a sufficient number of their own body, who, together with the mayor of the borough for the time being, shall be and be called the watch committee for such borough; and all the powers herein-after given to such committee may be executed by the majority of those who shall be present at any meeting of such committee, the whole number present at such meeting being not less than three; and such watch committee shall, within three weeks after their first formation, and so from time to time thereafter as occasion shall require, appoint a sufficient number of fit men who shall be sworn in before some justice of the peace having jurisdiction within the borough to act as constables for preserving the peace by day and by night, and preventing robberies and other felonies, and apprehending offenders against the peace; and the men so sworn shall not only within such borough, but also within the county in which such borough or part thereof shall be situated, and also within every county being within seven miles of any part of such borough, and also within all liberties in any such county, have all such powers and privileges, and be liable to all such duties and responsibilities, as any constable duly appointed now has or hereafter may have within his constablewick by virtue of the common law of this realm, or of any statutes made or to be made, and shall obey all such lawful commands as they may from time to time receive from any of the justices of the peace having jurisdiction within such borough, or within any county in which they shall be called on to act as constables, for conducting themselves in the execution of their office.

LXXVII. AND be it enacted, that the watch committee for any such borough as aforesaid may from time to time frame such regulations as they shall deem expedient for preventing neglect or abuse, and for rendering such constables efficient in the discharge of their duties; and the said committee, or any two justices of the peace having jurisdiction within the borough, may at any time suspend or dismiss any constable whom they shall think negligent in the discharge of his duty, or otherwise unfit for the same; and when any man shall be so dismissed, or cease to belong to the said constabulary force, all powers vested in him as a constable by virtue of this Act shall immediately cease; and no man so dismissed as aforesaid shall be re-appointed without the consent of two of the justices of the peace having jurisdiction within the borough.

LXXIX. AND be it enacted, that where any person charged with any petty misdemeanor shall be brought without the warrant of a justice of the peace into the custody of any constable appointed under this Act, during his attendance in the night-time at any watch-house within any such borough as aforesaid, it shall be lawful for such constable, if he shall think fit, to take bail by recognizance, without any fee or reward, from such person, conditioned that such person shall appear for examination within two days before a justice of the peace within the borough at some time and place to be specified in the recognizance; and every recognizance so taken shall be of equal obligation on the parties entering into the same, and liable to the same proceedings for the estreating thereof, as if the same had been taken before a justice of the peace; and the constable shall enter in a book, to be kept for that purpose in every watch-house, the names, residence, and occupation of the party, and his surety or sureties, if any, entering into such recognizance, together with the condition thereof, and the sums respectively acknowledged, and shall lay the same before such justice as shall be present at the time and place when and where the party is required to appear; and if the party does not appear at the time and place required, or within one hour after, the justice shall cause a record of the recognizance to be drawn up to be signed by the constable, and shall return the same to the next general or quarter sessions of the peace for the borough, or for the county in which such borough is situate, in those boroughs for which there shall be no separate general or quarter sessions of the peace, with a certificate at the back thereof, signed by such justice, that the party has not complied with the obligation therein contained; and the clerk of the peace shall make the like estreats and schedules of every such recognizance as of recognizances forfeited in the sessions of the peace; and if the party not appearing shall apply by any person on his behalf to postpone the hearing of the charge against him, and the justice shall think fit to consent thereto, the justice shall be at liberty to enlarge the recognizance to such further time as he shall appoint; and when the matter shall be heard and determined, either by the dismissal of the complaint or by binding the party over to answer the matter thereof at the sessions, or otherwise, the recognizance for the appearance of the party before a justice shall be discharged without fee or reward.

Constables attending at the watch-houses in the night may take bail by recognizance from persons brought before them for petty misdemeanors; such recognizance to be conditioned for the appearance of the parties before a magistrate.

In default of appearance recognizance to be forfeited.

Time of hearing the charge may be postponed, &c.

LXXX. AND be it enacted, that if any constable of any borough shall be guilty of any neglect of duty or of any disobedience of any lawful order, every such offender, being convicted thereof before any two justices of the peace, shall for every such offence be liable to be imprisoned for any time not exceeding ten days, or to be fined in any sum not exceeding forty shillings, or to be dismissed from his office, as such justices shall in their discretion think meet.

LXXXI. AND be it enacted, that if any person shall assault or resist any constable of any borough appointed under this Act in the execution of his duty, or shall aid or incite any person so to assault or resist, every such offender, being convicted thereof before any two justices of the peace, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay such sum not exceeding five pounds as the said justices shall think meet: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall prevent any prosecution by way of indictment against any person so offending, but so as that such person shall not be prosecuted by indictment and also proceeded against under this Act for the same offence.

Council may order parts of a borough not within a local Act as to lighting to be included in such Act.

LXXXVII. AND whereas parts of certain boroughs are within the provisions of one or more local Act or Acts for regulating the lighting thereof; and certain other parts of the same boroughs are not within the provisions of any local Act for regulating the lighting thereof, and for want of such lighting the efficiency of the constables may be much diminished, and great facilities afforded for the commission of crimes and for the escape of offenders: For remedy thereof be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for the council of any borough, in any part of which there is a local Act for the lighting thereof, to make an order that any part of such borough not being within the provisions of any local Act for the lighting thereof shall, from and after a certain day to be named in such order, be taken to be within the provisions of such local Act or Acts for lighting any part of such borough as the common council shall specify in such order; and after such day the part named in such order shall be within the provisions of the Act or Acts so specified, so far as relates to lighting, or to any rates authorized to be levied for the purpose of lighting, as fully as if such part had been originally named in such Act or Acts, any thing in such Act or Acts to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided always, that every part named in such order shall be lighted in the like manner as those parts which before the making of such order were within the provisions of such local Act, and that the rate to be raised for the purpose of defraying the expences of lighting any part so named in such order shall not exceed the average expence in the pound of the lighting of the other parts of such borough.

LXXXIX. PROVIDED always, and be it enacted, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to interfere with the watching, paving, or lighting, and internal regulations established for the government and security of any of his Majesty's dockyards, victualling establishments, arsenals, and barracks respectively; nor shall any of the tenements within the said dockyards, victualling establishments, arsenals, or barracks, or the inhabitants of the same, be liable to be assessed to the rates for watching, paving, or lighting the other parts of the city, borough, or parish within which the same may be respectively situated, unless such tenements or the inhabitants thereof are now or may hereafter become liable to be assessed to any such rates made under or by virtue of any law or statute now in force; nor shall any thing herein contained extend to defeat or affect the authority of justices of the peace which by an Act passed in the second year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled "An Act to amend the laws relating to the business of the civil departments of the navy, and to make other regulations for more effectually carrying on the duties of the said departments," is vested in the commissioners for executing the office of lord high admiral of the United Kingdom, . . . . . in all places and in all matters relating to his Majesty's naval service, and to the stores, provisions, ammunition, and accounts thereof.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make certain additions to and alterations in the present law touching letters patent for inventions, as well for the better protecting of patentees in the rights intended to be secured by such letters patent, as for the more ample benefit of the public from the same: Be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that any person who, as grantee, assignee, or otherwise, hath obtained or who shall hereafter obtain letters patent, for the sole making, exercising, vending, or using of any invention, may, if he think fit, enter with the clerk of the patents of England, Scotland, or Ireland, respectively, as the case may be, having first obtained the leave of his Majesty's attorney general or solicitor general in case of an English patent, of the lord advocate or solicitor general of Scotland in the case of a Scotch patent, or of his Majesty's attorney general or solicitor general for Ireland in the case of an Irish patent, certified by his fiat and signature, a disclaimer of any part of either the title of the invention or of the specification, stating the reason for such disclaimer, or may, with such leave as aforesaid, enter a memorandum of any alteration in the said title or specification, not being such disclaimer or such alteration as shall extend the exclusive right granted by the said letters patent; and such disclaimer or memorandum of alteration, being filed by the said clerk of the patents and enrolled with the specification, shall be deemed and taken to be part of such letters patent or such specification in all courts whatever: Provided always, that any person may enter a caveat, in like manner as caveats are now used to be entered, against such disclaimer or alteration; which caveat

Any person having obtained letters patent for any invention may enter a disclaimer of any part of his title or specification, or a memorandum of any alteration therein, which, when filed, shall be deemed part of such letters patent or specification.

Disclaimer, &c. shall not affect actions pending at the time.

Attorney general may require the party to advertise his disclaimer, &c.

Confirmation of letters patent, &c. in certain cases where patentee is proved not to be the first inventor.

being so entered shall give the party entering the same a right to have notice of the application being heard by the attorney general or solicitor general or lord advocate respectively: Provided also, that no such disclaimer or alteration shall be receivable in evidence in any action or suit (save and except in any proceeding by scire facias) pending at the time when such disclaimer or alteration was enrolled; but in every such action or suit the original title and specification alone shall be given in evidence, and deemed and taken to be the title and specification of the invention for which the letters patent have been or shall have been granted: Provided also, that it shall be lawful for the attorney general or solicitor general or lord advocate, before granting such fiat, to require the party applying for the same to advertise his disclaimer or alteration in such manner as to such attorney general or solicitor general or lord advocate shall seem right, and shall, if he so require such advertisement, certify in his fiat that the same has been duly made.

II. AND be it enacted, that if in any suit or action it shall be proved or specially found by the verdict of a jury that any person who shall have obtained letters patent for any invention or supposed invention was not the first inventor thereof, or of some part thereof, by reason of some other person or persons having invented or used the same, or some part thereof, before the date of such letters patent, or if such patentee or his assigns shall discover that some other person had, unknown to such patentee, invented or used the same, or some part thereof, before the date of such letters patent, it shall and may be lawful for such patentee or his assigns to petition his Majesty in council to confirm the said letters patent or to grant new letters patent, the matter of which petition shall be heard before the judicial committee of the privy council; and such committee, upon examining the said matter, and being satisfied that such patentee believed himself to be the first and original inventor, and being satisfied that such invention or part thereof had not been publicly and generally used before the date of such first letters patent, may report to his Majesty their opinion that the prayer of such petition ought to be complied with, whereupon his Majesty may, if he think fit, grant such prayer; and the said letters patent shall be available in law and equity to give to such petitioner the sole right of using, making, and vending such invention as against all persons whatsoever, any law, usage, or custom to the contrary thereof notwithstanding: Provided, that any person opposing such petition shall be entitled to be heard before the said judicial committee: Provided also, that any person, party to any former suit or action touching such first letters patent, shall be entitled to have notice of such petition before presenting the same.

III. AND be it enacted, that if any action at law or any suit in equity for an account shall be brought in respect of any alleged infringement of such letters patent heretofore or hereafter granted, or any scire facias to repeal such letters patent, and if a verdict shall pass for the patentee or his assigns, or if a final decree or decretal order shall be made for him or them upon the merits of the suit, it shall be lawful for the judge before whom such action shall be tried to certify on the record, or the judge who shall make such decree or order to give a certificate under his hand, that the validity of the patent came in question before him; which record or certificate being given in evidence in any other suit or action whatever touching such patent, if a verdict shall pass, or decree or decretal order be made, in favour of such patentee or his assigns, he or they shall receive treble costs in such suit or action, to be taxed at three times the taxed costs, unless the judge making such second or other decree or order, or trying such second or other action, shall certify that he ought not to have such treble costs. [Rep., 5 & 6 Vict. c. 97. s. 2.]

IV. AND be it further enacted, that if any person, who now hath or shall hereafter obtain any letters patent as aforesaid, shall advertise in the London Gazette three times, and in three London papers, and three times in some country paper published in the town where or near to which he carried on any manufacture of any thing made according to his specification, or near to or in which he resides in case he carried on no such manufacture, or published in the county where he carries on such manufacture or where he lives in case there shall not be any paper published in such town, that he intends to apply to his Majesty in council for a prolongation of his term of sole using and vending his invention, and shall petition his Majesty in council to that effect, it shall be lawful for any person to enter a caveat at the council office; and if his Majesty shall refer the consideration of such petition to the judicial committee of the privy council, and notice shall first be by him given to any person or persons who shall have entered such caveats, the petitioner shall be heard by his counsel and witnesses to prove his case, and the persons entering caveats shall likewise be heard by their counsel and witnesses; whereupon, and upon hearing and inquiring of the whole matter, the judicial committee may report to his Majesty that a further extension of the term in the said letters patent should be granted, not exceeding seven years; and his Majesty is hereby authorized and empowered, if he shall think fit, to grant new letters patent for the said invention for a term not exceeding seven years after the expiration of the first term, any law, custom, or usage to the contrary in anywise notwithstanding: Provided that no such extension shall be granted if the application by petition shall not be made and prosecuted with effect [Rep., 2 & 3 Vict. c. 67. s. 1.] before the expiration of the term originally granted in such letters patent.

In actions for infringement of patent, &c. notice of objections shall be given.

VI. AND be it enacted, that in any action brought for infringing the right granted by any letters patent, in taxing the costs thereof regard shall be had to the part of such case which has been proved at the trial, which shall be certified by the judge before whom the same shall be had; and the costs of each part of the case shall be given according as either party has succeeded or failed therein, regard being had to the notice of objections, as well as the counts in the declaration, and without regard to the general result of the trial.

Costs in such actions.

Penalty for using the name of a patentee

CHAPTER XLII.

AN ACT to grant certain Powers to Heirs of Entail in Scotland, and to authorize the Sale of Entailed Lands for the Payment of certain Debts affecting the same.

[28th July 1836.]

WHEREAS by an Act of the Parliament of Scotland made in the year one thousand six hundred and eighty-five, intituled "Act concerning " tailzies," it is statuted and declared that it shall be lawful to his Majesty's subjects to tailzie or entail their lands and estates, and to substitute heirs in their tailzies or entails, with such provisions and conditions as they shall think fit, and to affect the said entails with irritant and resolute clauses, whereby it shall not be lawful to the heirs of entail to sell, analzie, or dispose of the said lands or any part thereof, to contract debt, or do any other deed whereby the same might be apprized, adjudged, or evicted from the other substitutes in the entail, or the succession frustrate or interrupted, declaring all such deeds to be in themselves null and void; and provision is made by the said Act for the recording such entails in the manner therein set forth:

Scotch Act of

Heirs of entail in possession may grant tacks of any part of entailed estates under the restrictions herein contained.

And whereas it is expedient that certain powers should be conferred upon heirs of entail in relation to granting tacks and making excambions, and to selling portions of entailed estates for payment of the entailer's debts: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that notwithstanding any prohibitory, irritant, and resolute clauses contained in any entails already made and established, or which may hereafter be made and established, pursuant to the directions of the said Act passed in the Parliament of Scotland in the year one thousand six hundred and eighty-five, it shall be lawful for the respective heirs of entail in possession to grant tacks of any parts of the lands, estates, or heritages therein contained, for the fair rent of such lands or heritages at the period of letting, either by public auction or private bargain, and notwithstanding any prohibition against diminution of the rental, for any period not exceeding twenty-one years, and to grant tacks of any mines and minerals contained in such lands and estates for any period not exceeding thirty-one years: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall authorize any heir of entail in possession of any entailed lands, estates, or heritages, to take any grassum or valuable consideration, other than the tack duty or rent, for granting any tack, or to grant any tack of the home farm, nor of the mansion house and offices, or of the garden, lawn, park, or policy attached thereto, for any period beyond his own life; and in case any such grassum or consideration shall be taken, or in case any tack hereby prohibited shall be granted, such tack shall be null and void.

This Act not to restrain any more extensive powers contained in any entail.

II. PROVIDED also, and be it enacted, that nothing herein contained shall prevent or be construed to prevent any heir of entail in possession from exercising any power of granting tacks, which may be contained in the entail under which he possesses, more extensive than the power of granting tacks hereby conferred.

Heirs in possession may make excambion of entailed estates in the mode herein prescribed.

III. ## CHAPTER LXV.

AN ACT for granting Relief from the Duties of Assessed Taxes, and on Stage Carriages, in certain Cases, and to regulate the charging of the Duty payable for taking or killing Game, in Great Britain; and to provide for the Collection of certain Local Taxes in Scotland.

IX. AND whereas by an Act passed in the first and second years of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled "An Act to amend the laws in England "relative to game," it is enacted that where any person shall be charged on the oath of a credible witness with any offence punishable upon summary conviction by virtue of the said last-mentioned Act before a justice of the peace, the justice may summon the party charged to appear before himself or any one or two justices of the peace, as the case may require, at a time and place to be named in such summons, and if such party shall not appear accordingly, then the justice or justices may proceed in the case in the manner directed by the said Act; and it is expedient to explain and amend the said enactment as herein-after mentioned: Be it therefore enacted and declared, that upon any information made or exhibited before a justice of the peace of any such offence as aforesaid, it shall not be necessary that the charge contained in such information should be made on the oath of the informer or prosecutor in such case; provided that before any proceeding shall be had or taken upon such information, either for summoning the party accused, or compelling his appearance to answer the same, the charge contained in such information shall be deposed to on the oath of some other person or persons being a credible witness or credible witnesses.

1 & 2 Will. 4.
c. 32. s. 41.

Information on oath not necessary in first instance under recited Act.

X. AND whereas by law the appointment of collectors of land tax in Scotland is now vested in the lords commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury, and by certain statutes it is provided that the collection of certain local and other taxes and assessments and the performance of certain acts should be made and done by collectors of the land tax, and it is expedient in such matters to substitute for the collectors of the land tax the collectors of county, city, and town assessments respectively, or such other person or persons as the commissioners of supply shall appoint in that behalf: Be it therefore enacted, that with respect to all local taxes and assessments, and other matters and duties in Scotland not affecting his Majesty's revenue of land or assessed taxes,

Local taxes in Scotland heretofore collected by the collector of the land tax to be collected by the collectors of county, &c. assessments.

as to which the collector of the land tax is mentioned, or has matters or things to do or has powers granted to him, such matters or things shall be and are hereby required to be done by and such powers shall be and are hereby granted to the principal collector or collectors, or officer or officers of the nature of principal collector or collectors of county, city, or town assessments respectively, or to such other person or persons as the commissioners of supply shall appoint in that behalf, as fully and effectually to all intents and purposes as if in such statutes respecting local and other matters the words principal collector of county, city, or town assessments respectively, or officer of the nature of such principal collector, or such person or persons as the commissioners of supply shall appoint in that behalf, had been inserted as to such matters, instead of the words collector of the land tax or other words descriptive of the office of collector of the land tax.

Appointment of collectors of county, &c. assessments in Scotland to be vested in the commissioners of supply, &c.

XI. PROVIDED also, and be it declared, that notwithstanding the transfer of the appointment of collectors of the land tax in Scotland to the said lords commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury, the commissioners of supply, or other persons by whom collectors of the land tax were appointed before such transfer, continue to have and shall have full power to appoint collectors and other officers in regard to the county, city, or town assessments formerly collected by collectors of the land tax; and such collectors of county, city, or town assessments, and other officers, shall have, in regard to such assessments, all the powers exercised in regard to such assessments by the collectors of the land tax.

Counties, &c. in Scotland not liable for deficiencies in land, &c. taxes through default of collectors appointed by Treasury.

XII. AND whereas the collectors of the land and assessed taxes in Scotland are now appointed by the lords commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury, and doubts have arisen touching the liability of the several counties and burghs in Scotland charged with the raising, collecting, and paying over of the said taxes to answer for the failure or default of such collectors so appointed; and it is just and reasonable that such counties and burghs should be relieved from such liability as aforesaid, and that all doubts touching the same should be removed: Be it therefore enacted and declared, that no county or burgh in Scotland shall be liable to make good or to be assessed or reassessed for any defalcation or deficiency in the collection of the land tax or assessed taxes, which shall or may be occasioned by the failure or default of any collector or collectors appointed or to be appointed as aforesaid.

LXV. AND be it enacted, that the commissioners, if they shall see fit, before confirming any agreement, award, or apportionment, may require notice thereof to be given, in such manner as they shall direct, to the person next in remainder, reversion, or expectancy of an estate of inheritance in any lands or tithes, or any other person to whom they may think notice ought to be given, and may by themselves or by some assistant commissioner hear and determine any objection made to such confirmation by any person interested therein, and may direct any award or apportionment to be amended accordingly.

provided; and instead thereof there shall be payable thenceforth to the person in that behalf mentioned in the said apportionment a sum of money equal in value, according to the prices ascertained by the then next preceding advertisement, to the quantity of wheat, barley, and oats respectively mentioned therein to be payable instead of the said tithes, in the nature of a rent-charge issuing out of the lands charged therewith; and such yearly sum shall be payable by two equal half-yearly payments on the first day of July and the first day of January in every year, the first payment, except in the case of barren reclaimed lands, as herein-after provided, being on the first day of July next after the lands shall have been discharged from tithes as aforesaid; and such rent-charge may be recovered at the suit of the person entitled thereto, his executors or administrators, by distress and entry as herein-after mentioned; and after every first day of January the sum of money thenceforth payable in respect of such rent-charge shall vary so as always to consist of the price of the same number of bushels and decimal parts of a bushel of wheat, barley, and oats respectively, according to the prices ascertained by the then next preceding advertisement, and any person entitled from time to time to any such varied rent-charge shall have the same powers for enforcing payment thereof as are herein contained concerning the original rent-charge: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be taken to render any person whomsoever personally liable to the payment of any such rent-charge: Provided always, that the rent-charge which shall be apportioned upon any lands in the said parish which, during any part of the said period of seven years preceding Christmas one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five, were exempted from tithes by reason of having been inclosed under any Act of Parliament, or converted from barren heath or waste ground, shall be payable for the first time on the first day of July or first day of January next following the confirmation of the apportionment which shall be nearest to the time at which tithes were or would have become payable for the first time in respect of the said lands, if no commutation thereof had taken place.

free from tithes when lands are given in lieu

LXVIII. AND be it enacted, that, from the first day of January next following the confirmation of every parochial or other agreement for giving land instead of any tithes or rent-charge, the lands of the parish in which any such agreement shall be made shall be absolutely discharged from the payment of the tithes or rent-charge for which it shall have been agreed that such land shall be given.

Rent-charge to parochial and

LXIX. AND be it enacted, that every rent-charge payable as aforesaid instead of tithes shall be subject to all parliamentary, parochial, and county and other rates, charges, and assessments, in like manner as the tithes commuted for such rent-charge have heretofore been subject.

How rates and

LXX. AND be it enacted, that all rates and charges, to which any such rent-charge is liable, shall be assessed upon the occupier of the lands out of which such rent-charge shall issue, and, in case the same shall not be sooner paid by the owner of the rent-charge for the time being, may be recovered from such occupier in like manner as any poor rate assessed on him in respect of such lands; and any occupier holding such lands under any landlord, and who shall have paid any such rate or charge in respect of any such rent-charge, shall be entitled to deduct the amount thereof from the rent next payable by him to his landlord for the time being, and shall be allowed the same in account with his landlord; and any landlord or owner in possession who shall have paid any such rate or charge, or from whose rent the amount of any such rate or charge in respect of any such rent-charge shall have been so deducted, or who shall have allowed the same in account with any tenant paying the same, shall be entitled to deduct the amount thereof from the rent-charge, or by all other lawful ways and means to recover the same from the owner of the rent-charge, his executors and administrators; provided that the owner of every such rent-charge shall have and be entitled to the like right of demanding, inspecting, and taking copies of every assessment containing such rate or charge, and of appeal against the same, and the like power of prosecuting such appeal, and the like remedies in respect thereof, as any occupier or rate-payer has or may have in the case of poor rates, although such rate or charge is herein made assessable upon the occupier, and the owner of the rent-charge is not mentioned by name in such assessment.

LXXI. AND be it enacted, that any person having any interest in or claim to any tithes, or to any charge or incumbrance upon any tithes, before the passing of this Act, shall have the same right to or claim upon the rent-charge for which the same shall be commuted, as he had to or upon the tithes, and shall be entitled to have the like remedies for recovering the same as if his right or claim to or upon the rent-charge had accrued after the commutation; provided that nothing herein contained shall give validity to any mortgage or other incumbrance which before the passing of this Act was invalid or could not be enforced; and every estate for life, or other greater estate, in any such rent-charge, shall be taken to be an estate of freehold; and every estate in any such rent-charge shall be subject to the same liabilities and incidents as the like estate in the tithes commuted for such rent-charge; and where any lands were exempted from tithe whilst in the occupation of the owner thereof by reason of being glebe or of having been heretofore parcel of the possessions of any privileged order, the same lands shall be in like manner exempted from the payment of the rent-charge apportioned on them whilst in the occupation of the owner thereof; and where by virtue of any Act or Acts of Parliament heretofore passed any tithes are authorized to be sold, exchanged, appropriated, or applied in any way, the rent-charges for which such tithes may be commuted under the provisions of this Act, or any part thereof, shall or may be saleable or exchangeable, appropriated and applied, to all intents and purposes in like manner as such tithes, and the same powers of sale, exchange, and appropriation shall in all such cases extend to and may be exercised in respect of the said commutation rent-charges; and the money to arise by the sale of such rent-charges shall or may be invested, appropriated, and applied to the same purposes and in like manner as the money to arise by the sale of any such tithes might have been invested, appropriated, and applied under such particular Act or Acts, in case this Act had not been passed; and no such rent-charge shall merge or be extinguished in any estate of which the person for the time being entitled to such rent-charge may be seised or possessed in the lands on which the same shall be charged: Provided always, that it shall be lawful for any person seised in possession of an estate in fee simple or fee tail of any tithes or rent-charge in lieu of tithes, by any deed or declaration under his hand and seal, to be made in such form as the said commissioners shall approve, and to be con-

Apportionment may be altered by commissioners of land tax, if desired.

LXXII. AND be it enacted, that if at any time subsequent to the confirmation of any such instrument of apportionment the owner of any lands charged with any such rent-charge shall be desirous that the apportionment thereof shall be altered, it shall be lawful for the commissioners of land tax for the county or place where the said lands are situate, or any three of them, to alter the apportionment in such manner and in such proportion and to the exclusion of such of the lands as the land owner, with the consent of two justices of the peace acting for the county, riding, division, or other jurisdiction in which the lands are situated, may direct; and such altered apportionment shall be made by an instrument in writing under the hands and seals of the said commissioners of land tax and of the said land owner and justices, of the like form and tenor as to the said lands as the original apportionment, and bearing date the day of its execution by the said commissioners of land tax, subject to the provision herein-before contained with respect to the value of lands on which any rent-charge may be charged on account of the tithes of any other lands; and every such altered apportionment shall be as valid as if made and confirmed by the tithe commissioners as aforesaid, and shall be taken to be an amendment of the original apportionment; and in every such case two counterparts of the instrument of altered apportionment, under the hands and seals of the said commissioners of land tax and justices and land owner, shall be sent, one to the registrar of the diocese, and one to the incumbent and church or chapel wardens, or other person having the custody of the other copy of the original instrument of apportionment; and one counterpart shall be annexed to the copy of the instrument of apportionment in the custody of the registrar and such other person respectively, and taken to be an amendment thereof; and thenceforward such lands shall be charged only according to such altered apportionment; and all expences of such alteration shall be borne by the land owner desiring the same.

Expences of witnesses, &c. in proceedings under this Act to be paid under the direction of the commissioners.

LXXIII. AND be it enacted, that the commissioners or assistant commissioner, in any case where they or he may see fit, may order such expences of witnesses, and of the production of any books, deeds, contracts, agreements, accounts, or writings, terriers, maps, plans, and surveys, or copies thereof, and all other expences (except the salary or allowance to any commissioner or assistant commissioner) incurred in the settlement of any suit or difference, or in the hearing and determining any objection to any award or apportionment before the said commissioners or any assistant commissioner, to be paid by such parties interested in the production thereof respectively or in the event of such suit, difference, or objection, and in such proportions, as the commissioners or assistant commissioner shall think fit and reasonable.

Expences of making any award to be paid by the land owners and tithe owners as the commissioners may direct.

LXXIV. AND be it enacted, the allowances to and expences of land surveyors and tithe valuers necessary for making any award, and all other expences of or incident to making the said award, except the salary or allowance to any commissioner or assistant commissioner, and except any expences which the commissioners or any assistant commissioner, or any court or arbitrator, may be authorized to order and may have ordered to be otherwise paid, shall be borne and pay by the land owners and tithe owners interested in the said award, in such proportion, time, and manner as the commissioners or assistant commissioner shall direct.

LXXV. AND be it enacted, that all the expences of or incident to making any apportionment (except the salary or allowance to any commissioner or assistant commissioner, and except any expence which the commissioners or assistant commissioner may be authorized and may have ordered to be otherwise paid,) shall be borne and paid by the owners of lands included in the apportionment in rateable proportion to the sum charged on the said lands in lieu of tithes by such apportionment.

Expences of apportionment to be borne rateably by the land owners.

LXXVI. AND be it enacted, that if any difference shall arise touching the said expences, or the share thereof to be paid by any person, it shall be lawful for the commissioners or some assistant commissioner to certify under their or his hand the amount to be paid by such person; and in case any person shall neglect or refuse to pay his share so certified to be payable by him, and upon the production of such certificate before any two justices of the peace for the county or other jurisdiction wherein the lands mentioned in the agreement or award or apportionment are situate, such justices, upon the nonpayment thereof, are hereby required, by warrant under their hands and seals, to cause the same and the costs of the distress to be levied by distress and sale of the goods of the person liable to pay the same, and to render the surplus (if any), after deducting the charges of the distress and sale, to the person distrained upon.

Expences shall, in case of difference, be certified by commissioners, and may be recovered by warrant of distress.

LXXVII. AND be it enacted, that every owner of an estate in land or tithes less in the whole than an immediate estate of fee simple or fee tail, or which shall be settled upon any uses or trusts, may, with the consent of the commissioners, and in such manner as they may direct, charge so much of the expences of commutation as is to be defrayed by him, or any part thereof and the interest thereon, after the rate of four pounds by the hundred, upon the lands whereof the tithes are commuted, or upon the rent-charge to be received by him instead of such tithes respectively, but so nevertheless that the charge upon such lands or rentcharge respectively shall be lessened in every year following such commutation by one twentieth part at least of the whole original charge thereon.

Owners of particular estates may charge expences on the lands for twenty years.

LXXVIII. AND be it enacted, that every ecclesiastical beneficed person who shall commute the tithes of his benefice under this Act, may advance or borrow the sum necessary to defray so much of the expences of commutation as is to be defrayed by him, or any part thereof, and as a security for repayment may charge or assign the rent-charge to be received instead of such tithes for twenty years, or until the principal sum advanced or borrowed, and the interest thereon after the rate of four pounds by the hundred, and the expences of such charge or assignment, shall be sooner paid; and every incumbent successively shall pay the interest of the sum advanced or borrowed, or of so much thereof as shall then remain unpaid, as the same shall become due, or within one calendar month next following, and also an instalment at the rate of five pounds for every hundred pounds of the principal sum advanced or borrowed, and in default of such payment the ordinary may sequester the profits of the benefice until such payments shall be made; provided that the sum to be so advanced or borrowed shall be ascertained and certified under the hand of any commissioner or assistant commissioner, and shall be by him stated to have been the amount of such expences

If tenant of lands at rack rent dissent from paying the rent-charge, the landlord may take the tithes during the tenancy.

LXXIX. AND be it enacted, that any tenant or occupier, who at the time of such commutation shall occupy at rack rent any lands of which the tithes shall be so commuted, may, within one calendar month next after the confirmation of the apportionment by the commissioners, signify, by writing under his hand given to or left at the usual residence of his landlord or his agent, his dissent from being bound to pay any rent-charge apportioned and charged on the said lands as aforesaid, and in that case such landlord shall be entitled, from the time when the said apportionment shall take effect, and during the tenancy or occupation of such tenant or occupier, to stand, as to the perception and collection of tithes, or receipt of any composition instead thereof, in the place of the owner of the tithes so commuted, and to have all the powers and remedies for enforcing render and payment of such tithes or composition which the tithe owner would have had if the commutation had not taken place.

Tenant paying rent-charge to be allowed the same in account with his landlord.

LXXX. AND be it enacted, that any tenant or occupier at the time of such commutation who shall have signified his dissent from being bound to pay any such rent-charge as aforesaid, or who shall hold his lands under a lease or agreement providing that the same shall be holden and enjoyed by him free of tithes, and every tenant or occupier who shall occupy any lands by any lease or agreement made subsequently to such commutation, and who shall pay any such rent-charge, shall be entitled to deduct the amount thereof from the rent payable by him to his landlord, and shall be allowed the same in account with the said landlord.

When rent-charge is in arrear for twenty-one days after half-yearly days of payment, the person entitled thereto may distrain.

LXXXI. AND be it enacted, that in case the said rent-charge shall at any time be in arrear and unpaid for the space of twenty-one days next after any half-yearly day of payment, it shall be lawful for the person entitled to the same, after having given or left ten days notice in writing at the usual or last known residence of the tenant in possession, to distrain upon the lands liable to the payment thereof, or on any part thereof, for all arrears of the said rent-charge, and to dispose of the distress when taken, and otherwise to act and demean himself in relation thereto as any landlord may for arrears of rent reserved on a common lease for years; provided that not more than two years arrears shall at any time be recoverable by distress.

When rent-charges are in arrear for forty days after half-yearly days of payment, and no sufficient distress on the premises, writ to be issued directing sheriff to summon jury to assess arrears.

LXXXII. AND be it enacted, that in case the said rent-charge shall be in arrear and unpaid for the space of forty days next after any half-yearly day of payment, and there shall be no sufficient distress on the premises liable to the payment thereof, it shall be lawful for any judge of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, upon affidavit of the facts, to order a writ to be issued, directed to the sheriff of the county in which the lands chargeable with the rent-charge are situated, requiring the said sheriff to summon a jury to assess the arrears of rent-charge remaining unpaid, and to return the inquisition thereupon taken to some one of his Majesty's courts of law at Westminster, on a day therein to be named, either in term time or vacation; a copy of which writ, and notice of the time and place of executing the same, shall be given to the owner of the land, or left at his last known place of abode, or with his known agent, ten days previous to the execution thereof; and the sheriff is hereby required to execute such writ according to the exigency thereof; and the costs of such inquisition shall be taxed by the proper officer of the court; and thereupon the owner of the rent-charge may sue out a writ of habere facias possessionem, directed to the sheriff, commanding him to cause the owner of the rent-charge to have possession of the lands chargeable therewith until the arrears of rent-charge found to be due, and the said costs, and also the costs of such writ and of executing the same, and of cultivating and keeping possession of the lands, shall be fully satisfied: Provided always, that not more than two years arrears over and above the time of such possession shall be at any time recoverable.

Owner of rent-charge may sue out writ of habere facias possessionem, &c.

LXXXIII. AND be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for the court out of which such writ shall have issued, or any judge at chambers, to order the owner of the rent-charge who shall be in possession by virtue of such writ from time to time to render an account of the rents and produce of the lands and of the receipts and payments in respect of the same, and to pay over the surplus (if any) to the person for the time being entitled thereunto, after satisfaction of such arrears of rent-charge and all costs and expences as aforesaid, and thereupon to order a writ of supersedeas to issue to the said writ of habere facias possessionem, and also by rule or order of such court or judge from time to time to give such summary relief to the parties as to the said court or judge shall seem fit.

Account of rents, &c. to be rendered by owner of rent-charge in possession, &c.

Recovery of rent-charges from Quakers.

LXXXV. AND be it enacted, that whenever any rent-charge payable under the provisions of this Act shall be in arrear, notwithstanding any apportionment which may have been made of any such rent-charge, every part of the land situate in the parish in which such rent-charge shall so be in arrear, and which shall be occupied by the same person who shall be the occupier of the lands on which such rent-charge so in arrear shall have been charged, whether such land shall be occupied by the person occupying the same as the owner thereof, or as tenant thereof, holding under the same landlord under whom he occupies the land on which such rent-charge so in arrear shall have been charged, shall be liable to be distrained upon or entered upon as aforesaid for the purpose of satisfying any arrears of such rent-charge, whether chargeable on the lands on which such distress is taken or such entry made, or upon any other part of the LXXXVI. AND be it enacted, that the several provisions of an Act passed in the fourth and fifth years of his present Majesty, intituled "An Act to amend an Act of the eleventh year of King George the Second, respecting the apportionment of rents, annuities, and other periodical payments," shall extend to all rent-charges payable under this Act:

Leases of tithes may be surrendered.

LXXXVIII. AND be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for the lessee being in occupation of any tithes commuted under this Act, by an instrument in writing under his hand and seal, to be made in such form as the commissioners shall direct, and confirmed under their seal, to surrender and make void the lease by which the said tithes are held or enjoyed by such lessee at the time of the commutation, so far as the same may relate to the said tithes; and it shall be lawful for the commissioners, by the same instrument, to direct what compensation (if any) shall be given by the immediate lessor of any lessee at rack rent so surrendering any lease of any such tithes to such lessee, and what allowance (if any) shall be made by any lessee to his immediate lessor of any such surrendered lease, in consideration of the non-fulfilment of any conditions contained in such lease, and what deduction (if any) shall be made from the rent thenceforth payable by any lessee to his immediate lessor in respect of other hereditaments which may have been included with the said tithes in any such lease: Provided always, that any intermediate lessor to whom any such lease shall have been surrendered shall as regards his immediate lessor be taken to be the lessee in occupation of the tithes included in the said lease.

Tithes due before commutation not to be affected.

LXXXIX. AND be it enacted, that nothing in this Act contained shall affect any right to any tithes which shall have become due before the commutation.

Bishops, with consent of patrons, &c. may license chapels for the solemnization of marriages in populous places.

XXVI. AND whereas it is expedient that provision should be made, under proper restrictions, for relieving the inhabitants of populous districts remote from the parish church, or from any chapel wherein marriages may be lawfully celebrated according to the rites and ceremonies of the Church of England, from the inconvenience to which they may be thereby subjected in the solemnization of their marriages: Be it therefore enacted, that, with the consent under the hand and seal of the patron and incumbent respectively of the church of the parish or district in which may be situated any public chapel with or without a chapelry thereunto annexed, or any chapel duly licensed for the celebration of divine service according to the rites and ceremonies of the Church of England, or any chapel the minister whereof is duly licensed to officiate therein according to the rites and ceremonies of the Church of England, or without such consent after two calendar months notice in writing given by the registrar of the diocese to such patron and incumbent respectively, the bishop of the diocese may, if he shall think it necessary for the due accommodation and convenience of the inhabitants, authorize by a licence under his hand and seal the solemnization of marriages in any such chapel for persons residing within a district the limits whereof shall be specified in the bishop's licence, and under such provisions as to the amount, appropriation, or apportionment of the dues, and as to other particulars, as to the said bishop may seem fit, and as may be specified in the said licence; provided that it shall be lawful for any patron or incumbent who shall refuse or withhold consent to the grant of any such licence to deliver to the bishop, under his or her hand and seal, a statement of the reasons for which such consent shall have been so refused or withholden; and no such licence shall be granted by any bishop until he shall have inquired into the matter of such reasons; and every instrument of consent of the patron and incumbent, or, if such consent be refused or withholden, a copy of the notice under the hand of the registrar, and every statement of reasons alleged as aforesaid by the patron or incumbent, with the bishop's adjudication thereupon under his hand and seal, shall be registered in the registry of the diocese; and thenceforth and until the said licence be revoked marriages solemnized in such chapel shall be as valid to all intents and purposes as if the same had been solemnized in the parish church, or in any chapel where marriages might heretofore have been legally solemnized.

XXVII. AND be it enacted, that all fees, dues, and other emoluments on account of the solemnization of marriages which belong to the incumbent or clerk respectively of any church or chapel in any parish or district within which the solemnization of marriages shall be authorized as aforesaid, shall respectively be received, until the avoidance of such church or chapel next after the passing of this Act, for and on account of such incumbent, and, until the vacancy in the office of clerk next after the passing of this Act, for and on account of such clerk, and be paid over to them, except such portion of the fees, dues, or other emoluments, as the said bishop of the diocese, with the consent of the said incumbent and clerk respectively, shall in such aforesaid licence assign to the minister and clerk respectively of the chapel in which the solemnization of marriages shall be authorized as aforesaid; and that it shall be lawful for the said bishop in and by such licence, without any such consent, to declare that from and after such next avoidance or vacancy respectively the whole or such part of the fees, dues, and other emoluments on account of the solemnization of marriages in such last-mentioned chapel as shall be specified in such licence, shall be receivable, and the same shall thenceforth be received, by or for the minister and clerk of such chapel respectively.

Appropriation of fees on marriages performed in such chapels.

XXVIII. AND be it enacted, that when the said bishop shall authorize the solemnization of marriages in any such chapel as aforesaid, without the consent under the hand and seal of the patron and incumbent respectively, it shall be lawful for them or either of them to appeal within one calendar month to the archbishop of the province, who shall hear the same in a summary manner, and shall make such order confirming, revoking, or varying the licence so given, as to him shall seem meet and expedient; which order shall be registered in the registry of the diocese and shall be conclusive and binding on all parties whatsoever.

Patron or incumbent may appeal to the archbishop against such licences.

XXIX. AND be it enacted, that there shall be placed in some conspicuous part in the interior of every chapel, in respect of which such licence shall be given as aforesaid, a notice in the words following: "Marriages may be solemnized in this chapel." [Rep., Stat. Law Rev. Act, 1874.]

Notice of such licences to be affixed in chapels.

XXX. AND be it enacted, that all provisions which shall from time to time be in force relative to marriages, and to providing, keeping, and transmitting register books and copies of registers of marriages solemnized in any parish church, shall extend to any chapel in which the solemnization of marriages shall be authorized as aforesaid, in the same manner as if the same were a parish church, and everything required by law to be done relating thereto by the rector, vicar, curate, or churchwardens respectively of any parish church, shall be done by the officiating minister, chapelwarden, or other person exercising analogous duties in such chapel respectively.

Marriages performed in such chapels to be under the same regulations as those performed in parish churches.

in which case the registers shall be sent to the incumbent of the parish church, &c.

XXXIII. AND be it enacted, that in case of the revocation of the licence to solemnize marriages in any such chapel, all registers of marriages solemnized therein under such licence, which shall be in the custody or possession of the minister of such chapel at the time of such revocation, shall forthwith be transmitted to the incumbent or officiating minister of the parish church, and shall thenceforth be preserved, and in all other respects dealt with in the same manner, and be of the same force and validity, to all intents and purposes, as if they had been originally made and deposited with such incumbent or officiating minister; and that such incumbent or minister shall, when he next transmits to the superintendent registrar copies of the registers of marriages solemnized in such parish church, also therewith transmit copies of all such entries as shall have been made in such first-mentioned registers subsequent to the date of the last entry, a copy whereof was transmitted to the superintendent registrar, and shall also transmit to him one copy of every register book so transmitted to him, of which no copy shall have been already transmitted to the superintendent registrar, having first signed his name at the foot of the last entry therein.

c. 76.

WHEREAS by reason of certain defects in an Act passed in the last session of Parliament, intituled "An Act to provide for the regulation of municipal corporations in England and Wales," the administration of civil and criminal justice is injuriously hindered and delayed in certain boroughs named in the schedules (A.) and (B.) to the said Act annexed: . . . . .

5 & 6 Will. 4.
c. 76. s. 104.

Oaths required to be taken by recorder, &c. may be taken before mayor or two aldermen, &c.

AND whereas it is by the said recited Act enacted, that no recorder or person assigned to keep the peace within any such borough shall be capable of acting as recorder or justice of the peace within such borough until he shall have taken the oaths provided to be taken by justices of the peace, except the oath as to qualification by estate: Be it enacted, that all oaths so required to be taken by any such recorder or person assigned to keep the peace may be taken before the mayor or any two aldermen or councillors of the said borough, without suing out or obtaining any special dedimus or other commission or authority for administering such oaths.

5 & 6 Will. 4.
c. 76. s. 49.

Mayor to hold office until acceptance of office, &c. by his successor.

IV. AND whereas by the said Act it is provided that the mayor of every borough named in the said schedules (A.) and (B.) shall continue in his office for one whole year: Be it enacted, that the mayor of every such borough shall continue in office for one whole year, and until his successor shall have accepted the office of mayor, and shall have made and subscribed the declaration required in that behalf.

Repeal of 5 & 6 Will. 4. c. 76. s. 61., in part. Sheriff to be appointed on ninth November, &c.

V. AND be it enacted, that so much of the said Act as provides for the appointment of any sheriff on the first day of November in this or any following year is hereby repealed; and that every such appointment of sheriff shall be on the ninth day of November, at the quarterly meeting of the council, and immediately after the election of mayor, and in all other respects according to the provisions of the said Act; and every sheriff appointed under the provisions of the said Act or of this Act shall hold his office until the appointment of his successor.

Coroner to appoint a deputy in case of illness or unavoidable absence.

VI. AND be it enacted, that in case of illness or unavoidable absence the coroner for the time being of any borough, town, or city named in the said Act shall be empowered and he is hereby required, by writing under his hand and seal, to appoint a fit person, being a barrister at law or an attorney of one of his Majesty's courts at Westminster, and not being an alderman or councillor of such borough, town, or city, to act for him as deputy coroner during the illness or unavoidable absence of such coroner, but no longer or otherwise: Provided always, that the mayor or two justices of such borough, town, or city, shall on each occasion certify under their hands and seals the necessity for the appointment of such deputy coroner; and such certificate shall state the cause of absence of the coroner, and shall be openly read to every inquest jury summoned by such deputy coroner; and the particulars of every inquest holden before any deputy coroner shall be included in the return to be made by the coroner to the secretary of state, as provided by the said Act.

VII. AND be it enacted, that in every case in which before the passing of the said Act a court of requests or of conscience for the recovery of small debts was established in any borough, town, city, or county of a town or city, the boundary whereof shall have been enlarged by the said Act, the jurisdiction of such court shall be extended to such enlarged boundary: Provided nevertheless, that nothing herein contained shall extend to give such court cognizance of any suit which before the passing of this Act could not be brought therein, and could be brought in some other court of conscience or requests.

Extension of jurisdiction of courts of requests.

VIII. AND be it enacted, that every thing provided under any local Act of Parliament to be done exclusively by any particular or limited number, class, or description of the members of any body corporate named in the schedules (A.) and (B.) annexed to the said Act for regulating corporations, the continuance of which is not inconsistent with the provisions of the said Act, and also every thing provided in any such local Acts to be done by the justices, or by some particular class or description of members of such body corporate, being justices, at some court of general or quarter sessions assembled, and which does not relate to the business of a court of criminal or civil judicature, shall and may be done by the council at some quarterly meeting of the council, or by some committee of the council, or any three or more of such committee to be appointed at a quarterly meeting of the council: Provided also, that every thing herein authorized to be done at a quarterly meeting of the council may be done at a meeting of the council to be specially summoned for that purpose as soon as may be after the passing of this Act: Provided also, that no recorder by virtue of his office shall have power to allow, apportion, make, or levy, or do any act whatsoever with relation to the allowance, apportionment, making, or levying of any rate whatsoever.

Things provided under local Acts to be done by certain members of corporations or justices in quarter sessions, not being masters of criminal or civil judicature, shall be done by the council, &c.

IX. AND whereas doubts have arisen as to the provisions of the said Act for regulating corporations respecting judges in borough courts of record for the trial of civil actions not regulated by the provisions of any local Act of Parliament, or in which at the time of passing the said Act a barrister of five years standing did not act as judge or assessor: Be it therefore enacted and declared, that from and after the passing of this Act the recorder, and in the absence of the recorder such person, being a barrister of not less than five years standing, as shall be appointed by the recorder under his hand and seal to hold the said court, shall be the judge of such court and shall hold the said court at such times as the said recorder in his discretion may think fit, or as his Majesty shall think fit to direct; and every recorder or person so appointed to hold such court shall be entitled to have such salary paid to him out of the borough fund as the council shall fix by some bye law to be made in that behalf: Provided also, that all rules hereafter to be made for regulating the practice of such courts shall be approved and signed by the recorder of such borough, if there shall be a recorder, before the same shall be submitted to the judges of the superior courts for allowance and confirmation by them according to the provisions of said recited Act.

CHAPTER CVI.

AN ACT to make Provision for the better and more expeditious Administration of Justice in the Stannaries of Cornwall, and for the enlarging the Jurisdiction and improving the Practice and Proceedings in the Courts of the said Stannaries.]* [20th August 1836.]

WHEREAS there has existed throughout the stannaries of Cornwall a court in which the vice warden has in certain cases, wherein tin or tinnors or matters connected with tin are concerned, exercised original equitable jurisdiction: And whereas there has existed a court in each of the stannaries of Cornwall, called the steward's court, and in which the steward of the stannaries has exercised a common law jurisdiction in such like cases: And whereas the jurisdiction so exercised by the vice warden and the steward respectively has been confined to cases wherein tin or tinnors are concerned: And whereas in late times lead, copper, and other metals and metallic minerals than tin, have been discovered in the county of Cornwall, and over the matters connected with the working for and purifying and smelting of which lead, copper, and other metals and metallic minerals such jurisdiction has not been considered to extend: And whereas the various persons in the said county working and interested in such lead, copper, and other metals and metallic minerals, are greatly inconvenienced in their disputes in cases where such metals and metallic minerals other than tin are concerned, and are put to great inconvenience in obtaining redress therein: And whereas it is expedient to unite the court of equity of the vice warden with the courts of common law of the steward of the said stannaries, and to extend the jurisdiction of the court to and over all metals and metallic minerals in the said stannaries, and to and over all transactions connected therewith in the said county of Cornwall, in manner herein-after mentioned, and also to confirm, alter, and enlarge the powers of such court in various particulars, and to make other provision than heretofore for the hearing of appeals and writs of error therefrom: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from and after the death or resignation or other removal of the present vice warden it shall and may be lawful for the duke of Cornwall for the time being, if of full age, or his Majesty and his successors, king or queen regnant of England for the time being, if there be no duke of Cornwall or if the duke of Cornwall for the time being is under age, to nominate and appoint from time to time (by letters patent under the privy seal of the duchy of Cornwall or under the great seal of England, as the case may be,) a fit person, being a barrister at law of five years standing at the least, to be and be called the vice warden of the stannaries.

Appointment
of vice warden
of the stannaries.

Vice warden
to be judge of stannaries

office during good behaviour.

II. AND be it further enacted, that the present vice warden and every future vice warden shall be judge of the court herein-after mentioned, and which shall have both a common law and an equity side, and shall comprehend the court heretofore the court of the vice warden and the court heretofore the courts of the stannaries, and that the vice warden for the time being shall hold such office during his good behaviour: Provided always, that it shall and may be lawful for the duke of Cornwall for the time being, if of full age, or his Majesty and his successors, king or queen regnant of England for the time being, if there is no duke of Cornwall or if the duke of Cornwall for the time being be under age, on a requisition to him for that purpose, stating therein at length sufficient grounds, and signed by the majority or five of the council or of the commissioners or principal officers of the duchy of Cornwall, but not otherwise, (the lord warden of the stannaries being always one of the persons signing such requisition,) to remove the person for the time being holding the said office of vice warden.

IV. AND be it further declared and enacted, that the original equitable jurisdiction heretofore lawfully exercised by the vice warden for the time being shall and may be henceforth exercised by the present and every future vice warden for the time being; and that the present and every future vice warden for the time being shall have, exercise, and enjoy the same equitable jurisdiction, and the same power and authority in all matters and things brought before him, so far as relates to the working, managing, conducting, or carrying on any mine worked for any lead, copper, or other metal or metallic mineral within the said county of Cornwall, or to the searching for, working, smelting, or purifying any lead, copper, or other metal or metallic mineral within the said county, in as full and ample a manner as if the same had related to any tin or tin ore, or tin mine, or mine worked for tin, in the said county: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be deemed or taken to affect any suit or matter now pending in any court of law or equity.

Original equitable jurisdiction of vice warden confirmed, and extended to matters connected with all metals and metallic minerals in Cornwall in the same way as heretofore over tin.

VI. AND be it further enacted, that the courts of law of the respective stannaries heretofore held before the stewards or steward thereof shall be one court for all the stannaries, and shall be held by and before the vice warden for the time being, who as judge thereof shall have, exercise, and enjoy the same common law jurisdiction, and the same powers, privileges, and authorities with reference thereto, and shall transact, do, and perform the same duties, matters, and things in relation thereto, as have heretofore been lawfully transacted, done, performed, or to be exercised or enjoyed by the steward for the time being of any of the stannaries.

The courts of law of the stannaries shall be one court held before the vice warden, who shall have the same common law jurisdiction as the stewards have had;

VII. AND be it further enacted, that such vice warden for the time being shall also have, exercise, and enjoy the same common law jurisdiction and the same power and authority in all matters and things which shall be brought before him in any way connected with the working, managing, conducting, or carrying on any mine worked for lead, copper, or any other metal or metallic mineral within the said county of Cornwall, or in any way relating to lead, copper, or any other metal or metallic mineral, or the searching for, working, smelting, or purifying lead, copper, or any other metal or metallic mineral within the said county, in as full and ample a manner as if the same had been connected with or related to any tin or tin ore, or tin mine, or mine worked for tin, in the said county: . . . . .

and also similar jurisdiction in matters connected with all metals and metallic minerals in Cornwall.

Vice warden
may grant a new trial.

[VIII.] AND be it further enacted, that any party to any action at law brought in the said court may apply for a new trial in any such action to the vice warden within eight days after the trial of such cause, if the said vice warden shall be then sitting, or within the first four days of the next term, and the said vice warden may grant a new trial upon any of the grounds on which new trials are now granted by the courts at Westminster, and upon such terms and conditions as by the said vice warden shall be thought reasonable; and the said vice warden, if he shall think that an impartial trial cannot be had in Cornwall, may direct that the . . . record on any cause shall be sent to the judges of assize for the county of Devon, who shall have authority to try such cause, and after the trial to cause such record to be transmitted to the court of the vice warden, who shall proceed on the said record as if the cause had been tried in his own court: . . .

and to be enforced by process from

provided ex-

PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that the said Court of King's Bench shall not in any such case as aforesaid proceed against or punish any person, nor shall any such person be liable to any action, for having made default by not appearing to give evidence in obedience to any such writ of subpoena as aforesaid for that purpose issued under the authority of this Act, unless it shall be made to appear to the said Court of King's Bench that a reasonable and sufficient sum of money to defray the expences of coming and attending to give evidence, and of returning from giving such evidence, had been tendered to such person at the time when such writ of subpoena was served upon such person.

or townships becoming possessed of such respective lands and fields shall not be subject or liable (and they are hereby respectively discharged from being subject or liable) to pay any further or larger share of such monies than his or their proportion thereof according to such last-mentioned condition, or any interest for the same save only from the day of the death, resignation, or cession of the preceding incumbent of the said rectories or vicarages respectively; and that it shall and may be lawful to and for the person or persons who shall advance and lend such monies, his, her, or their heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, for the more easily recovering the said one thirtieth part of the said principal and the whole of the interest which is enacted annually to be paid, to have, use, exercise, and take such and the same powers and remedies, by entry and distress upon the premises so to be charged, mortgaged, and demised, and sale of such distress, as by the laws now in force are provided for and given to landlords or as they can use and take for the recovery of rack rents in arrear.

CHAPTER LI.

AN ACT to amend an Act of His late Majesty King George the Second, for the more easy assessing, collecting, and levying of County Rates.<sup>[a]</sup>

WHEREAS the laws now in force are found ineffectual for the correction of the disproportions which now exist, or which may from time to time take place, in the assessments of county rates: Be it hereby enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from and after the passing of this Act it shall be lawful for the justices of the peace of the several counties in that part of Great Britain called England, assembled at their general or quarter sessions, or at any adjournment or adjournments thereof, and they are hereby authorized and empowered, whenever circumstances shall appear to require it, to order and direct a fair and equal county rate to be made, for all the purposes to which the county stock or rate is now or shall hereafter be made liable by law, according to the directions herein-after mentioned; and for that purpose to assess and tax every parish, township, and other place, whether parochial or extra-parochial, within the respective limits of their commissions, rateably and equally, according to a certain pound rate (to be from time to time fixed and publicly declared by such justices) of the full and fair annual value of the messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, rateable to the relief of the poor therein, any law or statute to the contrary thereof notwithstanding: Provided also, that nothing in this Act contained shall extend or be construed to extend to give any jurisdiction to the justices of the peace of the said several counties over any places situate within the limits of any liberties or franchises having a separate jurisdiction, which before the passing of this Act were subject to rates in the nature of county rates imposed and assessed by the justices of the peace for such liberties or franchises, or which were exempt from the rates of the county in which they lie, either in the whole or in part; nor to alter any proportion of county rate payable by any liberty or franchise having a separate jurisdiction, as established between the county and the said liberty or franchise, provided such exemption or proportion shall have been created by or derived from grant, charter, or any special local Act of Parliament; nor to compel any such liberty or franchise, paying to some one or more of the rates specified in the preamble of an Act passed in the twelfth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Second, intituled "An Act for the more

The Act is rep., 15 & 16 Vict. c. 81. s. 1., except as to the provision in clause 17, relating to the allowance to the county treasurer, and save also so far as it provides for or relates to any matter or thing other than the county rate.]

sessions or adjournment thereof, for the assessing the rates of any county, or for the raising, levying, or collecting the same; but that such provisions so fixing the time or place of holding such general or annual general sessions or adjournment thereof, and of then and there exclusively transacting the matters therein mentioned respecting the county rates, shall be and remain in full force; and that all the matters and things which in and by this Act are authorized to be done by the justices of the peace at their general or quarter sessions, or at any adjournment or adjournments thereof, shall be done and performed exclusively at such general or annual general sessions or at some adjournment thereof, and at no other time or place than such as shall have been fixed by any such Act.

II. AND for the better enabling the said justices to make such fair and equal county rates, be it hereby further enacted, that it shall be lawful for them, at any general or general quarter sessions of the peace, or at any adjournment or adjournments thereof (to be holden after the passing of this Act), and as often as they shall deem it expedient, and they are hereby authorized and empowered to issue precepts, signed by their chairman, or by the clerk of the peace under the authority of the said court, to the high constables, petty constables, churchwardens, overseers of the poor, assessors and collectors of public rates and taxes of or for the several and respective parishes, townships, and places, whether parochial or otherwise, within their jurisdiction, or to such and so many of them as to the said justices shall seem expedient, requiring the said constables, churchwardens, and overseers of the poor, assessors and collectors respectively, to make returns in writing to the justices of their respective divisions in petty sessions assembled (which returns shall be verified on oath, at the time of delivery, before any two or more such justices), of the total amount of the full and fair annual value of the several estates and rateable property within the parish, township, or place, whether parochial or otherwise, to which they respectively belong, charged, or assessed to the poor's rate at the time of making such return, or liable so to be, or charged or assessed on any other rate or assessment, whether parochial or public, without regard nevertheless to the actual amounts or sums assessed on the property therein, save and except in such parishes, townships, or places only where such property is assessed to the full and fair estimated annual productive value.

III. AND be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said justices so assembled at their general or quarter sessions as aforesaid, and they are hereby authorized and empowered from time to time, whenever they shall deem it expedient for the purposes of this Act, also to make an order or orders for the justices of the peace, within the limits of their commissions, to meet from time to time within the several divisions in and for which they respectively act, and to fix therein the time of such first meeting; and the said justices in their respective divisions shall have power to adjourn from time to time until the purposes of this Act shall be completed; and any two or more such justices, assembled at any such meeting, shall receive the returns of the said constables, churchwardens, overseers, assessors, and collectors, causing the same to be verified as before directed, and them and every or any of them to examine on oath touching any matters and things contained in such returns, as in the judgment of the said justices may appear necessary for the purposes of this Act, and to report their proceedings to the said justices assembled at the next or any subsequent general or quarter sessions, as they shall have ordered and directed.

IV. AND be it further enacted, that in case any constable, churchwarden, overseer, assessor, or collector aforesaid shall neglect or make default in making any such return in manner aforesaid to the precepts which shall be issued by or under the authority of the said justices, then and in every such case each and every such constable, churchwarden, overseer, assessor, or collector so neglecting and making default (without sufficient excuse to be allowed by the said justices in their said general or quarter sessions), shall forfeit and pay such sum and sums of money, not exceeding twenty pounds, as shall or may be ordered or adjudged by such justices so assembled as aforesaid, to be levied on the goods and chattels of each and every churchwarden and overseer of the poor so neglecting or making default.

to the precepts which shall be issued by any two or more justices acting for the division wherein such default shall be made, then and in every such case each and every such officer before described, so neglecting and making default as aforesaid, without sufficient excuse to be allowed by the said justices acting for such division, shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding twenty pounds, as shall or may be ordered and adjudged by such last-mentioned justices, to be levied on the goods and chattels of the officers so neglecting or making default.

wardens, &c.
may enter upon lands to ascertain value.

X. AND for the better enabling the churchwardens and overseers of the poor, chief constables, and other persons, to make accurate returns as herein-before required in cases where doubts are entertained, be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for them, or any of them, or for such other person or persons as they may select for that purpose, by warrant under the hands and seals of any two or more justices of the peace of the county in general or quarter sessions assembled, to enter upon, view, and examine all and any lands or other property chargeable to the county rate, in order to ascertain the annual value at which the same ought to be charged: Provided always, that no such entry shall in any case be made, unless fourteen days previous notice of the intention of making such entry shall have been given under the hands and seals of the justices authorizing the same to the churchwardens or overseers, or to the person or persons appointed to act in default of such churchwardens or overseers of the parish, township, or place, whether parochial or otherwise, and to the person or persons whose lands are to be entered upon for the purpose of making such valuation.

divisions to certify value

XI. AND be it further enacted, that whenever the justices in general or quarter sessions assembled shall have ordered any county rate to be made, which they are hereby authorized to order from time to time whenever the same shall be necessary, and the justices in petty sessions shall by any of the aforesaid ways and means have ascertained to their own satisfaction the fair and just annual value of any or of all the rateable property within their respective divisions, and they are hereby required from time to time to certify under their hands the true amount thereof to the then next general or quarter sessions of the peace for the same county, to the intent that at such general or quarter sessions, or at some adjournment or adjournments thereof, or at some subsequent general or quarter sessions, or adjournment or adjournments thereof, the justices there assembled may from time to time, and as often as they shall deem it necessary, make a fair and equal rate on all such rateable property, or correct any inequalities which upon appeal shall be shewn to their satisfaction to exist in any rate now existing or hereafter to be made.

XII. AND be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful to and for the justices of the peace of any county, or the major part of them, in general or quarter sessions, or at any adjournment or adjournments thereof, assembled, as often as they shall have deemed it necessary to make a rate or rates, assessment or assessments, on all the rateable property within the limits of their jurisdiction, according to the fair annual value of the same, as derived from any or all of the several sources of information which are herein-before mentioned; and they are hereby authorized and empowered to order warrants to be from time to time issued, in the same manner as now authorized and practised by law for collecting the county rates, to the several high constables within their respective counties, ordering and requiring them to issue their warrants to the respective overseers of the poor within their respective divisions to levy, collect, and pay to the said high constables, within the time to be named and limited in the warrant to be issued from the sessions as aforesaid, all such rate or rates, assessment or assessments, which each high constable shall and he is hereby directed and required to pay, at such time as shall be specified in such warrant, to the treasurer of the county for the time being, to be applied and disposed of in such manner and for such purposes as the county stock or rate is now applicable or may hereafter be made applicable by law; and in case any overseer or overseers of the poor, or other person appointed to act as such under the provisions of this Act, in any of the several parishes, townships, or places, whether parochial or otherwise, within any county liable to pay the same, shall neglect, make default, or refuse to pay the same, within the time to be specified and limited for that purpose as aforesaid, to the high constable of the division within which such overseer or overseers or other person or persons so liable and neglecting to pay shall reside or be appointed to act, it shall and may be lawful for any justice of the peace of the said county, upon complaint thereof made by any such high constable, by warrant under the hand and seal of any such justice, to levy the same by distress and sale of the offender's goods; and the overseer or overseers of the poor of any parish, township, or place, whether parochial or otherwise, or other person or persons appointed to act as such overseer or overseers, shall and may and is and are hereby empowered to levy and raise by an equal rate or assessment upon all and every the several estates and property rateable to the relief of the poor, within their respective parishes, townships, or places, whether parochial or otherwise, such sum and sums of money as shall be required and necessary, in order to raise the several sums assessed upon such parishes, townships, or places respectively, or to reimburse such overseer or overseers, or other person or persons as aforesaid, such sum or sums of money as they shall respectively have paid on account of the same; such rate or assessment to be paid by the occupier or occupiers for the time being of such estates and rateable property as aforesaid.

XIII. AND whereas it would be inconvenient and oppressive to many townships or places that the sum of money which may be assessed on them, as or for a county rate under this Act, should be paid out of any rate made for the relief of the poor, where such poor rate doth not apply separately and distinctly to the parish, township, or place: Be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for the justices of the peace, at their general or quarter sessions, or at any adjournment thereof, if they shall think convenient, to order the sum of money directed to be assessed as or for the county rate on any such parish, township, or place, whether parochial or otherwise, to be paid and levied on the churchwardens, overseers, or petty constables of or for any such parish, township, or place, in such manner as the same is herein directed to be paid and levied in cases where no rate is made for the relief of the poor; any thing herein contained, or any law, usage, or custom, to the contrary notwithstanding.

XIV. PROVIDED always, and be it enacted, that if the churchwarden or churchwardens, overseer or overseers of the poor, or other inhabitant or inhabitants of any parish, township, or place, whether parochial or otherwise, where there is no churchwarden or overseer, or person appointed to act as such, shall at any time have reason to think that such parish, township, or place is aggrieved by any rate now existing or hereafter to be made, either in pursuance of this Act or of any Act or Acts now in force, whether it be on account of the proportions assessed upon the respective parishes, townships, or places being unequal, or on account of some one or more of them being without sufficient cause omitted altogether from the rate, or on account of such parish, township, or place being rated at a higher proportion of the pound sterling according to the fair annual value of the rateable property therein, or on account of some other parish or parishes, township or townships, place or places, being rated at a lower proportion of the pound sterling according to the fair annual value of the rateable property therein than has been fixed and declared by the justices of the peace of the said county in sessions assembled as the basis of the rate of the said county, or on account of any other just cause of complaint whatsoever, it shall be lawful for such churchwarden or churchwardens, overseer or overseers of the poor, or other inhabitant or inhabitants where there is no churchwarden or overseer, or person appointed to act as such, to appeal to the justices of the peace for the county, at any general or quarter sessions, against such part of the rate only as may affect the parish or parishes, township or townships, place or places, which are unequally rated, or which shall appear to be over-rated or under-rated, or omitted altogether from the rate; and the said justices are hereby empowered to hear and finally determine the same, and either to confirm such parts of the rate as have been appealed against, or to correct such inequalities, disproportions, or omissions as shall be proved to exist therein, in such manner as to them the said justices shall appear fair, just, and equitable; any thing in this Act, or any former Act or Acts, or any law, usage, or custom to the contrary thereof notwithstanding: Provided nevertheless, that upon such appeal no such rate shall be quashed or destroyed in regard to any other parish, township, or place, unless in cases where the justices of the peace of any county in general or quarter sessions assembled, or the major part of them, shall deem it necessary to proceed to the making of an entire new rate, and shall proceed therein according to the provisions of this Act.

Expences of appeals, &c.
to be paid by parishes, &c.

XV. AND be it further enacted, that in case of any appeals, actions, suits, or proceedings at law respecting any thing done in pursuance of this Act, or any other Act or Acts relating to the county rate, the expences of all such appeals, actions, suits, or proceedings at law shall be borne and paid by such respective parishes, townships, places, and persons, or such of them, and in such proportions, as the said justices shall upon any appeal in their general or quarter sessions award and order, or as such courts wherein such actions, suits, or proceedings shall be instituted, shall adjudge and order, and shall not be charged to or be paid out of the county rate.

Justices may compensate persons employed out of county rate.

XVI. AND be it further enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the justices of the peace of any county, in general or quarter sessions or any adjournment thereof from time to time assembled, to order such allowances and compensations to be made to the overseers, churchwardens, constables, assessors, collectors, clerks, or other persons employed in the execution of this Act, which have not herein-before been provided for, from, by, and out of the monies assessed, levied, and collected by any county rate made under this or any former Act or Acts, as to the said justices shall appear reasonable and proper.

Repeal of 12 Geo. 2. c. 29.
in part.
Further allowance may be made to treasurer.

XVII. AND whereas the allowance which the justices of the peace are authorized to make to the treasurer or treasurers for his or their care and pains in the execution of his or their office stands limited by the before recited Act, made in the twelfth year of the reign of his Majesty King George the Second, to a sum not exceeding twenty pounds a year: And whereas such sum has been in some and may be found in many cases inadequate to remunerate him or them for such care and pains: Be it hereby further enacted, that so much of the said Act as limits the said allowance to twenty pounds a year is hereby repealed; and that it shall and may be lawful for the said justices of the peace, at their respective general or quarter sessions, or the greater part of them then and there assembled, to allow to the treasurer or treasurers of their counties, and to every of them insisting on the same, such reasonable sum or sums of money for such purpose as aforesaid as they in their discretion shall think fit, of which they are hereby empowered to direct the payment out of the monies arising by the rates of their respective counties: Provided always, that no such augmentation of allowance shall be made at any such general or quarter sessions, unless application for such augmentation shall have been made by the said treasurer or treasurers, or the justices of the peace at some previous general or quarter sessions assembled, and unless notice of the intention of taking the said augmentation into consideration shall have been advertised for three successive weeks in some newspaper usually circulating in such county, in the month immediately preceding the time fixed for considering the same.

c. 51.

XVIII. AND be it further enacted, that the said several treasurers of counties, or of divisions of counties, shall and they are hereby required once in every year to publish, in some one of the newspapers usually circulating in the county or division of the county in which they respectively act, a true and accurate abstract of the account of their receipts and expenditures, under their several heads, for the year immediately preceding the publication of such abstract, signed by the justices of the peace who shall have audited the same, under a penalty of fifty pounds for every omission of such publication.

Treasurers of counties, or of divisions of counties, to publish once in every year an abstract account of their receipts and expenditures.

XIX. AND be it further enacted, that the justices of the peace of the said several counties are hereby authorized and empowered to demand and take, whenever they shall think fit, good and sufficient security, to be approved of by the said justices in general or quarter sessions assembled, from the high constables employed in the collecting and levying the rates; and that if any such high constable, upon being so called upon by the said justices, shall neglect or refuse to give such security as shall be approved by them, it shall then be lawful for the said justices of the peace, in quarter sessions assembled, to order and direct the churchwardens and overseers of the poor, or other persons appointed to assess, collect, and levy the rates of any parish, township, or place, to pay the quota which shall be assessed thereupon towards the county rate to the treasurer of the county, division, or place in which such parish, township, or place shall be situate; and the receipt of such treasurer shall be a sufficient discharge for the same.

High constables to give security, &c.

XX. AND be it further enacted and declared, that all and every the clauses, powers, directions, provisions, and authorities contained in the said Act made in the twelfth year of his late Majesty King George the Second, intituled "An Act for the more easy assessing, collecting, and levying county rates," and also so much of another Act made in the thirteenth year of the reign of his said late Majesty King George the Second, intituled "An Act to continue several Acts therein mentioned, for punishing such persons as shall wilfully and maliciously pull down or destroy turnpikes, for repairing highways, or locks or other works erected by authority of Parliament for making rivers navigable, for preventing exactions of the occupiers of locks and weirs upon the river of Thames westward, and for ascertaining the rates of water carriage upon the said river, for preventing frivolous and vexatious arrests, and for better securing the lawful trade of his Majesty's subjects to and from the East Indies, and for the more effectual preventing all his Majesty's subjects trading thither under foreign commissions, and for limiting the time for suing forth writs of certiorari upon proceedings before justices of the peace, and for regulating the time and manner of applying for the same, for the better and more speedy execution of process within particular franchises and liberties, and for extending the powers and authorities of justices of the peace of counties, touching county rates, to the justices of the peace of such liberties and franchises as have commissions of the peace within themselves," as relates to county rates (save and except such parts thereof respectively as are hereby varied, altered, or repealed), shall be good, valid, and effectual for the purposes of assessing, levying, collecting, and enforcing the payment of the rate or rates hereafter to be made in pursuance of this Act, and for carrying this Act into execution.

Provisions of 12 Geo. 2. c. 29. and 13 Geo. 2. c. 18. as to county rates shall extend to this Act.

XXI. AND whereas several Acts have passed in the reign of his present Majesty, and are now in force, empowering the justices of the peace of certain counties to make fair and equal county rates within their respective counties: Be it hereby enacted, that it shall and may be lawful to and for the said justices respectively, and they are hereby empowered, at any time and at all times after the passing of this Act, to proceed in the assessing, levying, and collecting and enforcing the payment of the county rate, and in all matters relating to the equalizing the same, either under the authority and according to the provisions and enactments of this Act, or under the authority and according to the provisions and enactments of the particular Acts affecting their respective counties, as to them shall seem fit and proper, in all cases in which the provisions and enactments of this Act are not inconsistent with the provisions and enactments of such particular Acts.

Counties, where rates have been regulated by particular Acts, may make use of the provisions of this Act.

XXII. AND be it further enacted, that the several forfeitures and penalties inflicted by this Act shall, if not immediately paid, be levied by distress and sale of the offender's goods and chattels, by virtue of any warrant under the hand and seal of any one justice of the peace for the county, not only in the county in which the offence shall have been committed, but in any other county, city, town, borough, franchise, or place, (the warrant or warrants for levying the same being in such last-mentioned case first indorsed by some justice of the peace for the county, or mayor or other head officer of the city, town, borough, or franchise where any goods of the respective defaulters shall be found,) returning the overplus (if any) after the charges of such distress and sale shall be deducted; and in case sufficient distress shall not be found, then it shall be lawful for such justices to commit the offender to the common gaol of the said county, there to remain without bail or mainprize for any time not exceeding three calendar months, unless the forfeitures and charges be sooner paid; and the said forfeitures, when recovered, shall be paid to the treasurer of the county, or of any division thereof, in which they shall have been incurred, to be applied in aid of the rates of the said county or division thereof; and no person shall be deemed incompetent to be a witness for the execution of the purposes of this Act, or in any appeal or other proceeding instituted by virtue thereof, by reason of his paying or being liable to pay towards the poor rates or county rates within the said county.

XXIV. AND be it further enacted, that where any ridings or divisions have separate commissions of the peace, or where any cities, towns, or other places within that part of Great Britain called England have commissions of the peace within themselves, and are not subject to the jurisdiction of the commissions of the peace for the counties at large in which such liberties or franchises lie, and do not, nor did before the passing of this Act, contribute or pay to the several rates made for the said counties at large, it shall and may be lawful to and for the justices of the peace of such separate jurisdictions, within the respective limits of their commissions, to have, use, and exercise all and singular the powers, authorities, and methods given or prescribed by this Act; and all such separate jurisdictions are hereby declared to be subject thereto in the same manner to all intents and purposes as counties at large, any law, usage, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.
